SHOULDER TO SHOULDER

(Arthur Guiterman in New York American)

Let us have done with these quavers of fear and defeat!
Life is for labor and gales are for courage to weather.
What is the task that we have not the vigor to meet
Close up the ranks as aforetime, and onward together!
Heed not the babblers who speak but to scare and sneer,
Out with the cynical prig and the querulous soldier!
Heroes again to the vanward and fields to the rear;
Americans, shoulder to shoulder!

Lift up your heads in the pride that belonged to our youth;
Nothing is lost, and the noblest is yours for the winding;
Clear vistened, joyous and resolute, facing the truth,
Give of your best to the work that is only beginning!
Root out the base and the evil and tread them beneath,
Leaving the weeds in their rankness to winter and molder;
Let not the bright sword of justice corrode in its sheath;
Americans, shoulder to shoulder!

Clothe to your leaders, the men you may honor and trust;
Follow them not in the test of the storm you shall know them.
Stanch as the oak when the reeds bow to the gusts of the east;
Strengthen their hearts and their wills by the faith that you owe them.
Mock with the sweep of the stars in the banner above,
Battling and striving and conquering, hail to the Right!
Not for a faction or class, but the whole of the nation,
Americans, shoulder to shoulder!
