Help Rid Carlisle of Mosquitoes

By Observing These Simple Rules

1. Cut the grass and weeds around your home. In this way the mosquitoes will have less protection and their life will be shortened.

2. Do not throw tin cans out in yard or alley. Punch holes or better still cut the bottom out of all cans in order that they may not hold water.

3. Get a garbage can and keep all cans and refuse matter in this garbage can and keep it covered.

4. See that the gutters and downspouts to your home are not holding water.

5. Fill in all stagnant pools of water that may exist about your home. Do not keep open barrels partly filled with water about the house.

6. Put a cup full of kerosene in your cistern every two weeks. This will not poison your water and the oil can be poured off after drawing the water for use.

7. Every two weeks (Saturday night) put-a quart of kerosene in your sink or commode.

It will cost you very little money and time to carry out the above mentioned rules and it will rid our town of mosquitoes and to a large extent of the flies.

These two insects carry the most deadly of diseases namely—yellow fever, malaria, typhoid fever, and tuberculosis.

Will you help me to rid Carlisle of these two pests by doing your part?

MIDDLE CLASS RESPECTABILITY

(A. A. Bowmar in Woodford Sun)

These people who are always writing about "Victorian middle class respectability" bore me almost to tears. Most of them are young snips who know nothing about the Victorians except by hearsay, or by reading the fulminations of touch old men who are furious because, having been reared in that era, they were not as bad in their youth as they could have been had they been "emancipated."

I know all about the Victorian era, because I spent my childhood in its atmosphere, allowing for the differences in the two nations, it was the same in America as in England. I am thoroughly Victorian in feeling. I like to be respectable, myself. And I prefer a public sentiment which compels people who do vile things to cover them up, instead of running around and poking their offenses in everyone's face. I like people who are decent, and if they cannot be decent, I like for them to pretend to be so.

The reason that respectability is associated with the "middle class" is because there is always more that is sound and reliable more "bone and substance," as the horse men say, in the middle class of a nation than anywhere else. Aristotle said that the truth lies in the middle, or words to that effect, and this is also the case with people. It is the feeling of the rank which is most likely to give you the stomach ache.

The middle class are always sneered at by writers who have communist or bolshevistic tendencies, and often by others, because of their absurdities in making money. The middle class like to make money to secure comfort for their wives, to educate their children, to give to their churches and to leave their widows a competency. All other classes are equally anxious to get money, but (perhaps because they do not) they call their middle class respectability," they frequently want it to "raise hell" with.

PRICES GOING UP

(Lexington Herald)

One of the chief problems before General Hugh Johnson, who has been appointed by President Roosevelt as the head of the national industrial recovery administration, is to be prepared to head off price increases.

Prices on many commodities, chief necessities, including food and clothing, are going up rapidly that a serious problem is presented.

President Roosevelt has asked business to be losing power extra up to increase the operation of that part of the program which is expected to put millions back to work, but apparently it is not possible to control matters in this extreme.

Food and clothing articles are increasing in price, or is holding steady. Now is the time that buying should be done. At a time when prices are going down every penny saved is little to be cut. But when prices start upward it is wise to make purchases and all purchases are good economies.

The fact that Mr. Roosevelt's plan is to keep down the price of necessities until wages and employment can catch up with the trend is being received does not show an unwillingness to cooperate with the President, but merely a difficulty in overcoming natural events.

Some hardships, of course, will be worked, but there are far fewer sufferers when prices are going up.

REMARKABLE LONGEVITY

A group of reporters called on a distinguished Southerner who had just attained the age of 100. They wanted to know to what he attributed his remarkable longevity. Did he drink? Did he use tobacco? "Had he any recipe he hand on to others?

"Well, gentlemen," he explained, I attribute my age chiefly to the fact that I was born in 1873."

—Archibald Rutledge

In this country in 1931 enough cattle to fill 16 trainloads of 50 cars each and nine trainloads of hogs were condemned and destroyed for tuberculosis alone.

Former Resident Remembers Many Names And Places

The Mercury recently received a letter from John T. Clay, of Lowry City, Mo., a former resident of this county, containing an interesting list of names and places in Nicholas county as remembered by Mr. Clay. Following is the letter:

Lowry City, Mo.
June 17th, 1933
Friday and the seventh, nineteen thirty-three

I again get The Mercury, this is the longest you ever.

And as I scan its pages of the events that take place.

Of the places and the people, it gives me great solace.

When I read of the Peckoffs, of the Hutchies and Greens.

Of Powers and Bradens and Mitchelsees,

Of the Berrys and McGinleys, of the Johnsons and Sapps.

Of the Potts and Tinsworthsons.

Pryors, Wells and Snapps.

Of the Bowens and Harbetts, of the Hitchens and Hooks.

Of the Barnetts and Earlywines, Cayces and Brooks.

Of the Standifords and Lassons, of the Ahrens and Parks.

Of the Vaughns and McClanahans, the Sellers and Sparks.

Of the Matthews and Joneses, the Mortises and Smarts.

Of the Campbells and Metcalfes, the Porters and Swarts.

Of the Wassons and Birkes, the Shannons and O'Neals,

Of the Prathers and Hayfers, the Ramsports and Fields.

Of the Kentons and Rafferys, the Sellers and Bears.

Of the Floras and the Prices, the Scotts and Myers.

Of the Hughes and Argos, Pirtpatricks and Days.

Of the Hitchcocks and Hedges, the Eads and Clays.

Of the Mullers and Wilsons, the Bradys and Manns.

Of the Kennicks and Howes, the Bustos and Morans.

Of the Clarks and the Pyeases the Crutchfields and Bates.

Of the McCanns and Pumphreys, the Anderssons and Bowens.

And a lot of others whose names absent (but I read.

I would like for them to write me a letter some time, indeed.

I can locate some of the places, Headquarters and Mayes,

Along Mt. Carmel Weeks, East Union and Drives.

Stony Creek and Licking is my old stamping ground,

But Goose Creek is the finest stream of all places I have found.

Blue Lick Springs, though it has been demolished by the ravages of time,

The weak,

While the hotels in summer were keen as bees in the hive.

And the old tollgate where old man Birdie

Watched to see a little money from all who came.

And old Uncle Billy Hook a little

Had a residence and blacksmith shop which was named Hookdom.

Then Mike Rafferty kept store under the Masonic Hall

And usually sold some tanglefoot which would make a seller tall.

Then there was Stony Creek with its tobacco sticks,

Maple Grove and Scrub Grass, Oakland and Ellisville,

Saltwell and Barclou. Concord and Mt. Martin and Miranda and Moreland Glory is the deal.

Buffalo Three and Little Rock and Jackson, my county line,

Taylor's Creek and Mt. Tabor and Ell Creek to combine.

Matthews Station and Whetstone, those people there still use the blade,

And then Sprout, which means a shoot, the best place that God ever made.

Above's Mills and Rose Hill, Panther Creek and McBride's Run—

People dear for The Mercury are truly efficient ones.

—John T. Clay, Lowry City, Mo.

HELPFUL HINTS

Many stores sell day-old bread cheaper than fresh bread, and it is just as nourishing.

To save food money, buy bulk rather than package food.

In laundering table linens rubbing roughens the fine fiber and shortens the life of the article so don't rub—squeeze in heavy suds from mild soap.

Berries do not like sugar and should be strained with sugar and water, a cloth dipped in turpentine is o. k.

Shorter seeds make good bait for rat traps.

If the stems of freshly cut roses have been mixed with a match before being placed in water they will not open but will remain buds for several days.

Light canes caused fruit to fade. Store in a dark, dry place to avoid mold.

Preparation stains may be removed from delicate silks by rubbing gently with a dry, soft cloth.

A thimble placed on a curtain end will make inserting easier.

One half cup of boiled linseed oil thinned with one and a half cups of turpentine makes an excellent floor or woodwork oil.

Dent use abrasives on nickel plate. Wash with hot water and soap and polish with whiting moistened with ammonia.

An inverted baking powder can makes an excellent utensil for cleaning boiled potatoes.

To clean a square soak it over night in warm soapy water to which lemon juice or borax has been added.

If you have a little of several kinds of jellies and preserves left over mix them together and cook down as a marmalade.

To remove fresh fruit stains from table linen, stretch the stained part over a bowl and pour boiling water over it.

Old white bones make good sink brushes. If the ends are sharply cut them off even.

A dilute spray of nicotine sulphate on shrubbery and flower beds will keep down and cats away. Be sure to burn done to the animals or plants.

To prevent silk dresses from slipping off wood or wire coat hangers paste or sew a piece of velvet ribbon on each of the hangers.

You will find a pair of heavy duty scissors a useful kitchen tool. They can cut meats for salads and other things with them.

Fine meringue can be used to clean felt hats before putting them away until next fall.

All domestic animals should be fed three times a day and given plenty of fresh drinking water during the hot months.

Blackings can be prevented from fading by washing in water to which a little turpentine has been added, a tablespoonful to two quarts of water.

If you want pastry to be light and flaky, roll in one direction only. If rolled first in one way and another it is sure to be tough.

If clothes are scorched in ironing, wet the scorched part, cover it with cornstarch and rub in well. When dry, remove the cornstarch and all trace of scorch will be removed.

If a pinch of bicarbonate of soda is sprinkled on fruit while stewing, it will lessen the amount of sugar to be used. Only half the required quantity of sugar will be needed.

A fine knitting needle is excellent in testing whether baked or boiled fruit and vegetables are sufficiently cooked. It does not break them or leave unsightly marks like a fork.

Some people use the water in which potatoes have been boiled for making bread.

Zinc laundry tubs can be cleaned by scrubbing with coarse salt and paraffin.

Use but a very small quantity of soap in the last rinse water for linens.

Dry mustard mixed with milk instead of water will not dry out, but will keep moist until it has been used.

To freshen stale bread or rolls sprinkle the inside of a paper bag, put the bread in the bag and place in a hot oven for a few minutes.

Window screens can be washed with the hose.

Scorched spots can sometimes be removed by moistening with peroxide, covering with a cloth and pressing with a hot iron.

Wheat Adjustment Plan To Raise Price Of Flour

The wheat adjustment plan, under which farmers who agree to reduce acreage in 1934 and 1933, will receive cash benefits in 1933 34, and 35, is not a price fixing measure, nor does it place restrictions on a farmer in selling his own crop on any elevator man or grain processor in buying or selling wheat. Mr. Wilson, wheat administrator says.

The farmer who comes under the adjustment program can sell his wheat to anybody he wishes, for any price he wishes, at any time he wishes. There are no "strings" to the contract. The farmer reduces his acreage if reduction is required, and gets the payments as per contract in his contract, but the sale of the crop he does raise are not under regulation.

Mr. Wilson points out that the amount to be paid on the allotment of each farmer is fixed at the beginning of the season. If is the same per bushel of wheat for every farmer, regardless of when he sells his crop or what he get for it, or for his crop or what he get per acre. Whether he sells his crop or what he gets for it, or for his crop or what he get per acre, each year, the Administration will attempt to make the payment sufficient to bring the total return to the farmer on his crop up to the point where it will have as much buying power as it did in the pre-war period, 1909-1914. However, if one farmer sells his wheat for a certain price, and his neighbor sells for more or for less, this will not affect the amount of the benefit payment of either. The payment is fixed for each year and remains at that figure during that year.

It is announced that the tax on wheat ground for food, under the Allotment Plan, will go into effect early in July, and that the tax will be about 30 cents per bushel.

This will cause an advance in the price of flour of about 40 cents per bbl or 20 cents for a 24 pound sack.

Dosing Sheep For Worms Reduces Losses In Flocks

Early summer is a desirable time for the removal of stomach worms which cause unthriftiness and sometimes deaths in farm flocks, says Dr. E. M. Nighbert, extension veterinarian for the United States Department of Agriculture. During warm weather, Dr. Nighbert explains, the stomach-worm eggs in the manure of infested animals hatch in a few days and the larvae crawl up on grass blades where they are swallowed by healthy sheep and lambs as these animals graze.

Infested flocks in Central and Northern States should be dosed with copper-sulphate solution at intervals of from 20 to 30 days, and in the Southern States every 2 weeks. In case the flocks are also infested with tapeworms, a mixture of copper sulphate and nicotine sulphate should be used.

If the flock is not doing well, it is a good idea to have a local veterinarian visit the place and see if there are complications that require treatment other than that used for removing parasites. Further information conversing parasites of sheep and control measures may be obtained from the county extension agents, State colleges of agriculture or from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Changing the flock from old to fresh pasture is an aid in the control of stomach worms. Treated flocks go into the breeding season in better condition than flocks not treated. Treated sheep also yield more wool per fleece than those injured by parasites.

PATIENCE PAYS

(Cynthiana Democrat)

Orville Baird, grocerymne, has been fishing for many hours, or rather he had been amusing the fish and furnishing them with lots of juicy morsels which they took from his hook with the exercises of any fish that had been deprived of the luxuries of life during the closed season.

With the bait almost gone and patience worn to a frazzle the fisherman tried an experiment.

Placing two hooks on his line, baiting them and expectorating on the bait for luck Mr. Baird made his last cast. In a short time he felt a tug on the line and he jerked in the most approved Walloonian style.

And out came the line with two fish, both large ones, hooked securely—one on each hook—a sucker and a catfish—and Mr. Baird contentedly called it a day.
