We Are Fortunate In Having Good Old Wheat for the manufacture of White Rose Flour
and we expect to maintain the quality of White Rose throughout the year. The new wheat is fair to good, but much of it is not up to the standard which we require to make White Rose.
We appreciate the increased demand for White Rose and the many compliments which have been expressed as to its quality, and we desire to maintain the high standard which it has attained.

To The Voters Of The 30th Senatorial District:

On August 3rd, the voters of this District will be called upon to nominate a democratic candidate for State Senator to represent them in the next session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

At the solicitation of friends, I announced for this office. Since that time I have tried to meet as many of you as I could. It was impossible of course, to see each of you personally and I am writing this letter in order that those of you with whom I have not had an opportunity to talk, may know my stand.

If nominated and elected as State Senator from this District, I will do my best to represent the sentiment of the people of my District in the General Assembly.

I shall by my vote in each instance support a program of strict economy in government but do not propose to hamper the progress of schools, road building and general welfare of the State of Kentucky by denying the state sufficient revenue with which to carry on these activities.

I have tried to conduct a clean and honorable campaign and, insofar as I am advised, this has been the exact attitude of my opponents and I bear toward him only the kindest feeling. This has not been a fight between two men but just a race between two friends.

I will appreciate your vote and influence in my behalf and assure you that if elected to this high office, I will endeavor by my acts and conduct to reflect credit on the people of my District.

Respectfully,
JOHN L. CUMMINS.

VICIOUS WHISPERS

"Christian Science Monitor: Humorist wrote Shakespeare 'is a pipe blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures.' So our comedian of American Presidents have found, and that an evil report, however vast and absurd is hard to overtake with fact. A well-organized rumpus or insinuating stories caused from a loose tongue to a malicious mouth, or from mere suspicion to repetition has been a recurrent abuse in political life.

The injustice and tragedy that can be done by such cowardice and malicious smuggling was exemplified poignantly recently when one would think, at its first instances—in the campaign which is generally held in the White House the life of the late Gen Andrew Jackson. But it began even earlier than that. Vicious detraction of atheism to Jefferson and has been current since the days of Van Buren. Garfield, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, each in his day, has crept out in the 'poison pen' books against President Hoover.

Never in the last few days have brought into the open a vaster circulation of rumors purporting to deal with the physical condition and the mental stability of President Roosevelt. These have been largely labeled absurd by Washington correspondents, including those of anti-administration papers, who have opportunity to question and observe the President at least twice a week.

However heartily one may disagree with a man on questions of political judgment, it is certainly a greatness in business to be led by this to impugn his rationality instead of arguing out the issues on their merits. Those who insist upon the grandeur of man and the supremacy of mental powers over evil circumstance should surely disbelieve that eventual disaster must eventually follow an infirmary long since overcome. And those who recognize the mesmeric tendency of reiterated fears, suspicions and dark predictions might certainly to be the last to lend themselves to a mass hysteria that would add to the burdens of theirs' Chief Magistrate.

Rather is it the part of all citizens to seek that divine support and guidance may continually surround all officials in whose hands the common welfare lies.

Vote for Robert E. Beatty. First name on the ballot for State Treasurer. He is an experienced business man and farmer and long time friend of the Burley tobacco grower.
