

Tests Show Value Of Soil Treatment

Results obtained on the test plots in the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, near Lexington, Ky., show that the value of soil treatment is not only in the increased yield of crops, but also in the increased fertility of the soil. The results of the tests show that the value of soil treatment is not only in the increased yield of crops, but also in the increased fertility of the soil.

The theme of the Junior Week theme was "Appreciation of Farm Life." The theme was chosen to help the young people understand the value of the farm and the life of the farmer.

THE GARDEN

THE "SECOND" GARDEN

By John B. Griffin, Kentucky College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky.

There is no sharp division between the early garden and the late garden. The early garden is the garden that is planted in the spring and the late garden is the garden that is planted in the fall.
