CALL TO WORSHIP

(Margaret Estes)

All around me Autumn's alchemy
Is manifest, transmuting tarnished green to brightest gold,
Crimson glory lights each maple tree,
And hillside groves are riotous in flushings manifold.
Sycamores are color symphonies
In brown and green, unrivaled harmonies.
Drawing with deep-lunged delight
God's bracing air,
Of restful air, I yield my soul to mountain ecstasy.
Lord, I see slow triumphant death
Of nature glorified. Heart full, I worship wordlessly
At beauty's voiceless yet perpetual shrine
The living God who makes this splendor mine.
