Hollandaise Sauce: Put two egg yolks and a tablespoon of lemon juice in a pan over hot water. Have handy half a cup of butter and mix it slowly, a little at a time, into the egg and lemon mixture. Stir constantly until the mixture thickens.

Percentages of dressed meat in hogs: 100 to 150 pound hog, 72 to 76 percent; 150 to 250 pound hog, 76 to 77 per cent; 200 to 250 pound hog, 77 to 78; 250 to 300 pound hog, 80 to 82 per cent, and 350 to 400 pound hog, 82 to 84 per cent.

Lung worms are the best price among the burley tobacco grades. However, in recent years there has been little difference in prices of trash, lugs and bright leaf. Flyings usually bring about 80 per cent as much as the best grades, and reds and 60 to 70 per cent.

Salt alone may be used for tooth powder. Salt makes the gums firm. Soda alone may be used. Soda cleans the teeth and sweetens the mouth by neutralizing acids. Equal parts of salt and soda may be used.

A cow in milk requires at least 12 gallons of water daily. It should be fresh, clean water, and if the chill is taken off in winter, hoosy will appreciate it by drinking more, and giving more milk. Water is very important in the care of all livestock.

Pickled pig's feet: Remove toes from well-scraped feet, soak in cold water overnight, and then cook in enough water to cover until soft, which will be about five hours. Add salt to your cooking water. When soft, remove from kettle and split. Pack in crock jar and cover jar with hot vinegar. Spices may be added, if desired.

Torn rubber overshoes can sometimes be mended with adhesive tape.

JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:4-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not; I am the first and the last: and the living one, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore. Revelation 1:17, 18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When John Saw Jesus Again.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jerusalem, the Golden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Listening to the Everlasting One.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Living Christ Among the Churches.

The first chapter of the Revelation, while it is an introduction to the entire book, is worthy of study by itself as a glorious revealing of Jesus Christ, his person and work. Some will wish to use the chapter as a preface to the study of the solemn and instructive messages to the seven churches of Asia which are found in chapters 2 and 3; but for most schools it will be better to concentrate on the messages of the chapter itself.

I. His Person.

While many of the characteristics of the Son of God are here presented, two are particularly emphasized.

1. His eternity (vv. 4, 11, 17).

In a world which understands but little of the meaning of time, that which lives in a bodily befuddled present, and scarcely knows the meaning of the future, it is a source of the deepest satisfaction and power of heart to know one who is the One who "is and was and which is to come, the Almighty." Or as ready "was in the beginning," and is to be through all eternity.

2. His glory (vv. 5, 12-16).

Jesus Christ is presented in verse 5 as "the faithful witness and first begotten of the dead," who is the ruler "over all the kings of the earth." The followers of Christ have a glorious captain and leader. The kingdoms of all the earth are his by right. Some day he will rule in fact and in power.

The most beautiful description of our Lord in verses 12 to 18 is almost beyond imagination. One wish you seen him in his majesty and glory? The one who is "in the Spirit on the Lord's Day" can still see him as in this vision (cf. Hebs. 11:27).

II. His Work.

1. His victory (v. 17).

He died for our sins but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). He was not a dead, but a living Saviour. He has "the keys of death and Hades." The one who follows a human leader puts with him at the grave. But he who follows Christ does not lose him when he passes over into the next world, for he is risen, and he has the keys of all authority, not only in this world but also in that which is to come.

2. His love (v. 5).

How deep and rich was his love toward us. It sent him to the cross.

3. His redemption (v. 5).

He "washed us from our sins in his own blood." We read in Hebrews 9:22 that "without the shedding of blood there is no remission." The cults and all others who deny or ignore the need of cleansing in the blood of Jesus Christ may be religious but they are not Christian.

4. His fellowship (v. 13).

The candlesticks are the churches and the stars are God's messengers. They are not alone in the world; he is "in the midst." Do we recognize his presence?

5. His return (v. 7).

"Behold, he cometh with clouds." How often we read the New Testament and fail to see, and to teach and to preach the Lord's return!

He is coming again. What is our duty in the light of his coming?

a. To live lives of purity and Christian nobility. (Read 1 John 2:3, and compare vv. 1 and 2.)

b. To be diligent in sacrificial service. "Occupy till I come" (Luke 19:13) is the command of the one who "went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return" (Luke 19:11).

Miss Talbert Named Art Survey Chairman

Miss Nancy E. Talbert, Carlisle, has been appointed chairman for Nicholas county for the art survey being conducted under the auspices of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs and the department of Women's Club Service, University of Kentucky department of Extension, for the purpose of publishing a Catalog of Kentucky Art. This catalog, which will be published by the University of Kentucky department of Extension, is being edited by Mrs. W. T. Lafferty, secretary of Woman's Club Service at the University.

The county chairmen selected from all over the state are the leading women of the counties wealth, and they are asking the people of each community who own art treasures, to cooperate with them in order that they may catalog those treasures.

The board of directors of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs decided to open the campaign in November, and since that time they have been busily engaged in an intensive survey, hoping to make a final report at the mid-winter meeting of the board, January 6. This work will be supplemented by information obtained through the schools, thus interesting the school children of the state in Kentucky art.

The art lovers of Kentucky are realizing the wealth of art material in the state, especially in the fields of portraiture and many fine have striven for years to acquire a reliable list of Kentucky art treasures which could be published and made available for general use.

When the publication is completed and printed, copies will be available to clubs, schools and other organizations for use in study groups.

Teeth Reveal The Age Of Sheep

How to determine the age of sheep by examining their teeth is told by Howard C. Miller in Kentucky College of Agriculture extension circular 288. Essex former of Ewes.

A lamb has eight temporary teeth, four in the upper jaw and four in the lower jaw. These are smaller and whiter than the permanent teeth. At about 11 months of age the center pair are replaced by two permanent incisor teeth. Two more temporary teeth one on each side of the center pair are replaced with permanent teeth at about two years of age; a third pair of permanent teeth appear at three years and the fourth and last pair at about four years. The teeth usually begin to show wear at five and begin to break by the time the ewe is seven.

THE FIRST SUDIST

Oliver was careless about his personal appearance. When mother's sow clothing scattered about on the floor and floor. "Who didn't hang up his clothes when he went to bed?"

A muffled voice from under the blankets murmured, "Mum."

1937 Conservation Program Like One Now In Force

J. H. Hutson, assistant administrator of the Agricultural Conservation program, told county agents at their recent meeting at the Experiment Station at Lexington that the 1937 program probably would be similar to the present one.

It now seems likely, he said, that there will be somewhat less crop-basis placed on the diversion of feed and feed crops and somewhat more stress put on soil building and conservation practices. It is probable that the 1937 program will specifically provide for payments for tobacco diversion, as in 1936.

Mr. Hutson expressed satisfaction with the way farmers participated in this year's conservation program, and indicated that he anticipated even greater cooperation next year.

According to records at Washington, farmers of Kentucky participated in this year's program to a larger percentage than did farmers in most of the other states in the general region.

A total of about 125,000 Kentucky farms came under the provisions of the Agricultural Conservation program, with nearly 230,000 producers benefitting. These farms represent more than 85 per cent of the productive capacity of the crop land in the state.

In the case of burley tobacco, considerably more than 90 per cent of the farms participating received payments for diverting tobacco acreage to soil conserving crops.

Kentucky farmers will receive approximately $10,500,000 in benefit payments in this year's program.

Kentucky's Soybean Crop 150,000 Acres

The College of Agriculture at Lexington reports that Kentucky's soybean crop this year at approximately 150,000 acres. Nearly 5,600,000 acres were grown in the United States.

No beans have many things to commend them. An annual legume, they fit well into the crop rotation, make excellent hay, furnish good pasture, have few diseases and pests, are resistant to the chinch bug, and are heavy producers of seed and of value for meal and oil. Of all known vegetables, soybeans rank among the first in protein content.

Nor the least of the soybean's virtues is its ostrich-like conduct when confronted with a drouth. During July and August, when moisture is short the plants may cease to grow apparently waiting for more favorable weather, and following fall rains they shoot up into maturity with an excellent crop of beans.

The crop requires a good seed bed; the ground should be plowed in the early spring, and the soil worked down previous to seeding time in order to kill as many weeds as possible. Planted as an emergency crop, drouth crop in this state, many farmers have found that it makes good silage.

Soybeans leave the ground in such excellent condition for erosion that serious losses from that source are almost sure to occur unless a cover crop is sown immediately following harvesting of the beans. It is largely because of the danger of soil erosion following soybeans that the crop should be considered primarily an emergency crop in Kentucky.

Care Required In Washing Woolens

To care properly for winter clothing requires frequent brushing, occasional sponging, repairing and cleaning. As many wool and silk garments can be washed, the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture makes the following suggestions:

Both dry washing and rinsing should be done in lukewarm water, as hot water injures the fibers. A mild, neutral soap should be made into suds before any garments are added to the water. Squeeze and work the garment in the suds, without rubbing, or keep it in action in the washing machine. Wash quickly through one or two soapy waters and two or three rinsing waters, all of them of the same temperature. The garment should not be twisted or squeezed when wet in the water. Squeeze it out lightly by hand or put it through a loosely set wringer.

Drying is best done at room temperature on a coat hanger or better, roll between two bath towels or heavy cotton cloth. If it is a printed material, a third towel may be placed inside the garment in case the colors should run. Pressing should be done before the garment is thoroughly dry, using cheese cloth over silk garments and a thin muslin over woolens.

If the garment is of knitted material, it is well to take length and width measurements before wetting and after partly drying between towels, to spread on a flat surface and stretch to measurements. It is then possible to smooth with the hands until the original shape is obtained, and the garment may be left to dry without pressing.

An anti-ice solution is in use which guards a plane's propeller.
