MADONNA

This famous picture of the Madonna and Child, commemorating the first Christmas was painted by Antonio da Messina, one of the great Italian artists of the early Renaissance.

The artist was born in Sicily, and he spent most of his life in the north. He was a pupil of the Venetian painter, Giovanni Bellini, and he was influenced by the work of the Flemish painter, Jan van Eyck.

The picture is a masterpiece of technique and composition. The Madonna is shown seated on the left, holding the Christ Child on her lap. They are surrounded by a group of people, including the Holy Family and the three wise men. The background is a simple, domestic interior, which makes the scene more intimate and human.
