THE GARDEN

COLLARDS

(By John S. Gardiner, Kentucky College of Agriculture.)

Besides broccoli and Brussels sprouts discussed in the past few weeks as vegetables to start now for harvest in the fall, collards might well claim attention as a possibility. Collards are greens, akin to cabbage, and resembling kale in flavor. The resemblance would seem to make them sufficiently to grow, except that collards are more resistant to hot, dry growing conditions than kale, and somewhat less subject to insect damage. In a dry season, a planting of collards might well serve many a Kentucky gardener as an "ace in the hole."

Collards may follow any early vegetable except those of the cabbage family. The soil should be made rich by adding under stable manure, nitrogen being the most important plant-food. Lacking manure, either of the rich brown carriers, nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, should be used as a sidedressing, or, high grade commercial fertilizer may be worked into the soil while it is being prepared. Spading or breaking should be deep, to assure adequate reservoir for moisture, the other requirement for the successful growing of this vegetable.

Collards should be started now, as fast as seed as a light shower generally follows, or moisten the ground, for collards can start with a surprisingly small amount of moisture. In fact, there may be enough an inch or two below the surface of apparently dry soil that has been kept shallowly stirred until planted. In such situation, a furrow should be made to reach the moisture table, the seed dropped, but just covered with a sprinkling of dusty soil. Seed may be sown in a rather open drill, 12 to 15 to a foot, in groups of 3 or 4, with spaces 6 inches, and the seedlings thinned to an average stand of 15 inches.

While the plants are still small, if the cabbage worm needs to be fought, as sometimes the case is in the late summer, it may be done by applying arsenical dust, calcium arsenate preferred. Wait from 6 to 8 leaves have been made, change should be made to dust carrying rotenone which, though deadly to all insects, is non-poisonous to humans.

Another pest may be the plant louse. If rotenone is being used against the cabbage worm, the plant louse situation will largely be found to have corrected itself. If not, the lice that were left with the dust will have been destroyed, for lice are killed through contact, not by inward poisons. Further dusting may be done; or if spray is preferred, rotenone concentrate, prepared of most seedsmen, may be applied after the directions that are printed on the container. If weed tobacco is at hand, "soft" soap from it will be found an effective tool.

Besides the sounding methods against insect pests, it is important to conserve for their benefit all soil moisture possible. Shallow level cultivation is the best means.

Harvesting may begin when, in the opinion of the gardener, the leaves are large enough. Harvest a leaf by leaf, collards become continuous croppers, extending quite far into the winter. Note that variety to use is unimportant the word "collards" will suffice for seedsmen to understand what is wanted.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Book shelves may be built in the living room between windows along walls, in odd spaces, out in the hall. Long low book shelves are decorative and the top surface provides places to set vases of flowers, trays, mirror, candlesticks or small radio.

Outbreaks of food poisoning at church suppers, picnics, fairs and other gatherings are almost always caused by insufficient refrigeration. On a warm day when the temperature is ideal for the growth of harmful bacteria, stacks of sandwiches in a warm place may become a single menace to health.

The Soil Conservation Service advocates strip cropping where practical on sloping land, growing clover crops that will keep the land from being lost during the fall, winter and spring, and plant rows of trees and grass on abused less steep for cultivation.

A varnish published by the College of Agriculture, Lexington, suggests the installation of a water pump at a kitchen sink, where a water pressure system cannot be had. Such a pump, and a drain for disposing of water, usually cost between $15 and $30.

Paralysis of the neck muscles is one of the first symptoms of timber neck in poultry. It is caused by eating decayed fresh or vegetables or poison of any kind. Four or five drops of turpentine given in a tablespoonful of castor oil is used as a remedy.

Complete Provisions Of New State Tax Law

Effective July 1, a State tax of 3c on each 5c, or fractional part thereof, of the retail selling price is imposed on bottled drinks, unbottled drinks not made with fresh paid syrup, candy, chewing gum, and parts of ice, a gallon on plain syrups, 7c a quart on ice cream, and 20 per cent of the advance price plus 20 per cent of the transportation costs on the retail sale of oleomargarine in the State by a Kentucky retailer.

The Department of Revenue has required that all Kentucky wholesalers and manufacturers of bottled drinks, unbottled drinks, ice cream and fountain syrup, post bond to assume the tax imposed thereon.

Bonded wholesalers and manufacturers hold certificates, commonly designated as Revenue Form 601, which will be evidence to retailers that they are bonded to pay the tax on these commodities, and that they are authorized to write on the invoices the amount of the tax due, and to collect the tax for the latter. Retailers purchasing these commodities are required to keep the invoices rendered them for a period of 30 days.

If retailers make or purchase bottled drinks, unbottled drinks, candy, chewing gum, or ice cream other than a bonded dealer, they are required to affix an adhesive stamp to the bottled drinks or to make a monthly report on the gallonage of syrups, ice cream or fountain syrup. The adhesive stamps may be obtained from the Department of Revenue in 2c, 3c, 5c, and 5c denominations. The 2c stamp will be for the first 6 months of July, is due by August 1, and is to be affixed to all bonded wholesalers and manufacturers' invoices in order for them to carry out their stock on hand July 1, and submit the inventory and payment of the tax due to the Department of Revenue.

One and two cent sales of gasoline, cigarettes and cigars are exempt from the tax. The payment of the tax on candy, chewing gum, bottled drinks, unbottled drinks and ice cream will be for the months of July, August and September, and will be due by August 20. Bonded wholesalers and manufacturers are required to file returns throughout the State with the Department of Revenue by the 5c, 3c, 2c, and 20c denominations.

It is believed that many retailers in the State have not yet placed an order for these tax stamps. The Department advises that retailers selling candy, chewing gum, bottled drinks, etc., without affixing the stamps must keep a record of such sales made on and after July 1, and upon receipt of the stamps, to cancel stamps equal in value to the tax due on the sale of these commodities, and report and pay the amount to the Department of Revenue, transmitting therewith the stamps and the cancelled stamps cover any available sales of these commodities.

Three seems to be considerable confusion in the minds of retailers relative to the tax on cosmetics. This tax is imposed on sales of cosmetics, toilet articles and perfumes by manufacturers on and after July 1. Stock on hand before that date is not taxable. Retailers are required to keep invoices of cosmetics for a period of 6 months and to report on same.

Lesson for July 19

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT — Acts 4:32-37; II Corinthians 8:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—He that giveth to the poor shall not lack.—Prov. 28:27.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus' Friends Helped Others.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Christians Are Generous.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christian Sharing With Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Stewardship and Social Service.

Social service in the early Church was a by-product of the gospel and not the gospel itself. Those who are saved by the gospel will show their concern for the welfare of others even as in life are fellow members of the body of Christ.

I. Characteristics of the Primitive Church (Acts 4:32-35).

1. It was a praying church (v. 31). The early Christians let every need and need behind themselves to God in prayer. Their faith caused them to go to the throne of God, believing that their needs would be supplied.

2. It was a united church (v. 32). When they prayed, the place was shaken, whereby they were filled with the Spirit and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit.

3. It was a church which had great success in preaching the Word of God (vs. 33). Because it was a united church it will not offer any apology for the power with which it preached.

4. It was a united church (v. 32). When they prayed, the place was shaken, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit. They had been filled before, but now they were filled anew. This was the secret of their success and did not allow today helps from a conference to be a substitute for it.

5. It was a church whose members were generous toward the needy (vs. 34, 35). Great grace was upon them all.

II. Generous Act of Barnabas (vss. 36, 37).

He sold a piece of land and turned the money over to the church. He was not bound to. It is said that Barnabas' generosity was the result of his act, therefore, extend to any real selfsacrifice. It is not to be made in order for their first place. He was moved in his duties as a deacon, he was a powerful preacher and a wise counselor.

The Board of Directors of Directors (Acts 6:2-4).

A man was a Christian woman. She was full of Christian sympathies which she did not what she refused to do. She was taxable on real loss. If all professing Christian women would use their talents as she did, there would be more real believers in Christ.

OLD TIME REVIVAL

(Clipping from Clay City Times)

Rev. G. C. Gaines has just closed a three weeks revival at Hannah's Creek Methodist Church. Rev. Gaines is a Clay county boy which resulted in 18 who came forward to be saved and prayed through to victory. Several were converted from the altar with shining faces and testified to what great things God had done for them. They numbered from 10 years to 60 years or more. Many others were so touched that the good news has spread throughout Powell and adjoining counties.

The older citizens of the community said it is the most spiritual awakening in this church in 30 years or more.

Rev. Gaines is just a plain, old fashioned Methodist preacher, who loves and carries a burden for lost, and God giver the increase.

LET 'EM EAT

Modern mothers pray, "Lord, make my child fat and me thin," so says Dr. Clifford Sweet, of Oakland, California, authority on care of children. And he adds that most mothers worry unnecessarily over the eating habits of their children. They have been told too much underweight. Dr. Sweet was discussing the bad practice of prescribing diets for healthy children. Much of this, he says, is the result of "fads and fancies" of mothers, not even which in some cases, becomes almost a nervous indulgence.

And he has found this a good rule to deal with these worrying mothers: He advises them to let the child choose its own food for three weeks and to keep an accurate record of what and how he eats. This is supposed to be for the information of the child's physician.

The result usually is that the mother learns that the child is not injuring himself and she tires of the labor of keeping books; so the mother is cured and the child thrives.
