IT'S AUTUMN NOW

(By Dean Settoon Mernagh)

Remembering that you said you would be back

When autumn came to change the maples' dress

And chuck the shrinking fields' lost loveliness

To saffron shawls---force, you said, could chick

The homeward urge when fall days quicken

Engulfed the trees; you even said you'd trace

With pain fagged feet the interesting space

If other means to come you might then lack---

Remembering this, and seeing that the wood

Has on its dress of gay bravado hue

And red tittered paths where once we trod

To catch a fleeting shadow glimpse of you.

With heart strained to the crimson limit I wait

The touch of phantom lips upon my cheek.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

J. J. Whitehouse, minister.

Christian church revival closed Sunday night with 67 added to the membership of the local church. The meeting attracted large audiences from the first service; the building overflowed several times during the series. The church, and the community, express their appreciation of the services of the evangelist, W. A. Fite, whose sermons were sane and helpful, and of Mr. and Mrs. Owen M. Walker, whose many helpful activities went so far toward making the meeting a success. Their dramas were probably the feature of the series.

The church and minister desire to express their appreciation to the whole community for the splendid co-operation given throughout the meeting, especially to the churches for dismissing as many of their regular services as possible and uniting with us. We feel that the entire community has been helped by this series of meetings. We express appreciation to the Bargain Store for the use of their furniture in the presentation of the dramas, and to all others who helped in so many ways.

There will be an evangelistic service on Wednesday night with the minister, J. J. Whitehouse, here. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at this time.
