15 Counties In State Are Dry

A total of 15 of Kentucky's 120 counties are dry today through operation of election units or precincts in scattered counties in addition to Pendleton in that category, where Carrie Nation is reported to have wrecked her first saloon in Kentucky.

Lee and Johnson counties are the two which remained dry in the November 3 election, Lee by a vote of 12 saving which have remained so since 1920, and Johnson by a 275-vote majority over the drys in Johnson county Saturday.

Counties which have voted dry are Magoffin, Taylor, Edmonson, Bracken, Owen, Evans Store, Anderson, Russell, Whitley, Clinton, Martin, Menifee, Lewis, Gallatin and Breckinridge.

Local option elections, made possible by the 1936 Legislature are pending in 17 other counties. Two will vote November 10, Allen and Barren, with vote in December. Pulaski and Wayne in January, Butler, Carroll, Fulton, Carter, Lawrence, Marshall, Metcalf, Ohio, Owen Pike, Robertson, Rowan, Warren and Wayne are tied up in the courts.

Ten of the 15 dry counties were voted in prohibitionist elections last year when the question of repeal of the state's dry law was submitted.

The growing list of dry counties is preventing a decline in the state's treasury as one-third of the state's general fund is derived from taxes from various levies on booze. A retail tax of 41 cents per pints and 27 cents on quarts is imposed in addition to a wholesale and license tax on manufacturers and retail dealers.

Drys explained the anti territory would be extended to include 40 counties by the first of the year.

Fee Collection By Cops Banned

Members of the State Highway Patrol and State Police have been ordered by G. L. McClain, director of the Department of Safety, to discontinue collection of fines while in the performance of their duties as peace officers.

Effective October 15, members of the Highway Patrol and the State Police, are ordered to devote their time in the performance of their duties as peace officers, the commissioner said, the order read. "Checks will be made by the corporals and lieutenants of the different districts and areas, both with the men and the judges and magistrates in order that this order is carried into effect by each member of the force."

Members of the two divisions, McClain said, will be paid on a straight salary basis.

Child Is Victim Of Diphtheria

Health Department Issues Warning As Result Of Death From Disease

The Nicholas county Health Department has issued the following warning:

A seven year old child died from diphtheria in Nicholas county last Saturday. Diphtheria is a contagious, exhibit disease that causes the death of many children. It often comes with only slight symptoms such as a sore throat, chilliness, a little fever or aching pains and may be mistaken for tonsilitis or laryngitis or some other less serious disease. Yet, even when the symptoms are slight, the disease is grave.

Children are most defenseless against this disease, especially those under five. The very young child is not only more likely to take diphtheria but is more apt to die with it.

Diphtheria can be prevented. It can be prevented by a simple, harmless treatment that is quick to give. As soon as a child at six months of age or so should have it unless your family doctor has it in the health department and ask for this treatment. Do not delay. Do not let anyone else delay. Do not let any time during their preschool days. Be sure that any authorized leave has been given outside of entering school here. The enrollees have already begun to get in line for their turn to go home on leave.

Romance In Canoe Ends When Officers Interfere

A story of romance in a canoe while "stirring down" the Ohio river from Cincinnati to Louisville, and to police Monday Court, is told by a couple after their arrest by federal officers.

Alfred Starchich, 18, and Eva Bailey, 16, both of Pittsburgh, said they escaped the trouble of pestering by "hitch-hiking" methods. They said they fed their canoe to the sterns of towboats and made their river craft and voyage the scenery.

Starchich said he and the girl left Pittsburgh August 1 after her father refused her sanction to their romance. The boy spent all of his funds, $36, to buy a canoe and a camping outfit. He said the girl's cottage license or a preacher's fee.

Their idyllic voyage of love, their provisions began to run low, Starchich got a job on a towboat to help pay his way and lodging, still leaving the girl in her craft and enjoying
