Former Auditor Dies In Lincoln

W. H. Shanks Succumbs At His Home In Stanford After Long Illness

News came from Stanford early Monday of the death there of William H. Shanks, one of Lincoln county's best known citizens and for a number of years prominent in Kentucky officialdom and political circles. For over a year he had been an invalid and for some time it had been felt that the end was only a question of time.

A member of one of the pioneer families of the Bluegrass section of Kentucky,

Born 61 years ago in Stanford, deceased was a son of Samuel H. Shanks, one of Lincoln's most extensive farmers and business men in that day and time. He attend Centre College and was licensed as a lawyer but was best known as an extensive farmer and official.

For three terms he represented Lincoln county in the Kentucky legislature, and in 1919 was nominated as the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor on the ticket headed by former Gov. James D. Black, of Barbourville. The ticket went down to defeat in the Republican landslide after the war, but in 1923 Mr. Shanks was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for state auditor to which he was elected on the ticket headed by Governor Fields. He served four years and afterwards returned to his farm in Lincoln county which he operated until stricken. He had previously served as president of the Lincoln National Bank, and was active and enthusiastic in support of every civic enterprise or avenue for advancement and improvement in his community and its people.

A life-long member of the Disciples church, he served as elder and took deep interest in all its endeavors. A kindly, cheerful personality endeared him to a host of friends who grieved at his passing.

Funeral services were conducted at Stanford Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

939 Applications Made By Farmers

Six Applications Yet To Be Signed By Those Owning Farms In Nicholas

According to a report just released from the county agent's office, the Nicholas agricultural Conservation Committee has transmitted 939 applications for payment under the 1936 Agriculture Conservation Program to Washington. Six applications are yet to be signed by Nicholas County producers, most of whom live out of the county, but can be found here.

County Agent R. J. Matson received word from Washington that all payments made during the past two months represented 50 per cent of the estimated amount farmers will receive under the program, but that all future payments would represent the full grades due each applicant. This means that all checks coming to Nicholas county will represent payments in full. Each applicant will be notified by card when his check arrives at the county agent's office. These cards must be brought to the office when the applicant calls for his check.

Duncan Damage Suit Is Settled

Local Man Said To Have Settled With Telephone Company For $2,000

Settlement of the $7,500 damage suit of Gano Duncan, of Carlisle, against the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company was announced in federal court at Lexington last Thursday after the two litigants conferred and had been completed. Attorneys for the two litigants conferred and the terms were not made public, but it is understood that they received $2000.

The suit was the result of injuries sustained by Mr. Duncan in March, 1935, while he was taking cover in the midst of a driving tornado storm. Mr. Duncan was seriously shocked when lightning struck wires and came in on the telephone. He was rendered unconscious and remained in this condition for several days. He also alleged he suffered impairment to his hearing and injury to his nervous system.

William Conley, Carlisle, was attorney for Mr. Duncan, and I. D. Ross, Carlisle, was one of the attorneys for the telephone company.

The suit for damages was originally filed in the Nicholas circuit court but was transferred to federal court upon motion of the defendant company.
