DOLLS OLD AND NEW

Nothing has changed more in our lifetime than dolls. The rag doll, still found, does not have the importance it formerly had. It used to be the badge of the very small child, boy or girl. Frequently it was nearly as large as the little toddler who dragged it around all day and took it to bed with him at night. From rather rough treatment it soon became a sorry-looking spectacle, with grease and dirt all over it. One little girl that I knew fed her doll a sausage, leaving ever afterward a round, greasy smear the shape of the sausage. Then the bare-headed dolls we used to play with were made by people who apparently knew nothing about anatomy, for they were exceedingly slender and shapeless. I strongly suspect the same people as the authors of the slatty figures in most fashion plates. The ladies of these dolls were stuffed with sawdust; hence the modern expression about having a pain in one's sawdust after a heavy Christmas dinner. Too rough treatment often destroyed the shapeliness, such as it was, of these dolls, for the sawdust would away and could never be replaced very skillfully. We dressed our dolls as children still do, with plenty of interest but with very little skill. I once owned a doll that I dressed as a boy, though it had the same name expressive of sexlessness that other dolls had, a blank stare that may have betokened more sense than that of the human beings that devised it. Sometimes there were dolls that were slightly different and much more expensive, dolls that older sisters or mothers had dressed up in clothes of another day and generation. These were lovingly kept hidden in a trunk or a chest of drawers, sacred relics of other days. Queer old buttons, odd styles of dresses and coats, even queerer shoes—all these made the old-fashioned doll a source of wonder to younger brothers and sisters who could not recall the days when these same things were the latest style for Big Sister or Mother.

Changes have come rapidly in the styles of dolls and other toys, I suspect that the teddy bear has done more than any other toy to bring about this change. A great toy manufacturer told me that his company would make only a few of any type of toy at first and then try them out on children. If a majority of the little fellows took them to bed at night, similar toys would be run off by the millions. This same man said that his company had made several millions of the monkey that climbs a string, the most consistently popular single toy ever made.

I suppose that my old likes and dislikes are unredeemable, but many of the modern toys seem hideously ugly and unnecessarily so. Some of the toys are beautiful and artistic, but why should there be also these ugly nightmares, such as the 3 are sold to meet in the dark woods at twilight? I see no reason why children should be forced to live among ugly things when beauty is everywhere about us and as you would expect me as a Scotchman to say, equally cheap. The most exquisite trains and cars and dolls are exhibited on the same counter with other things that look like the dreams of a victim of delirium tremens. Baby dolls, pretty as pictures, are often side by side with others that look like patients that had escaped from the psychopathic ward. Our old generation, "those were lovingly toys were not so pretty and may have been dumb-looking, but at least they were not deliberately made hideous.

Beuten insensible, robbed and left for dead, two sisters, both trained nurses, were found on the outskirts of Montgomery, Ala., early Sunday.

Dr. Hyman Bear of Richmond, Va., has a collection of 225 model bears, ranging in size from a tiny animal-cracker bear to a life-sized one of paper-mache.

30 MILLION TONS of COAL

That's how much coal the L & N hauled in 1937 . . . over 600,000 carloads.

Think of the far-reaching importance of coal in our daily living . . . in producing power . . . in generating light . . . in heating our homes . . . in giving employment to thousands of people.

Indeed, carrying coal . . . or any other commodity . . . helps to develop the community where it is produced and adds to the comfort and welfare of the section where it is consumed. That's why the L & N for over 87 years has played such an integral part in the development and growth of the Central South. That's why we like to consider ourselves your neighbor, for the progress of the communities we serve promotes the well-being of all.

What is the transportation job you want done, neighbor? Big or little, the Railroad of Friendly Service is at your service.

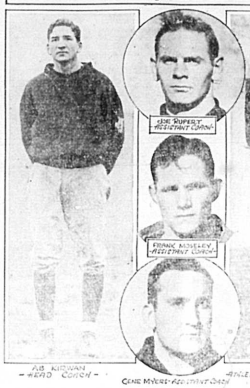
New Football Coaching Staff at University of Kentucky



Three former Wildcat football stars—native Kentuckians—headed the new gridiron coaching staff at the University of Kentucky. They are Al Kirwan, head coach; Boyd Brown, Harlan, and Joe Rupert, Catlettsburg, assistants. The new athletic director, Bernie Shively, an All-America guard from Hiltons, is a former Wildcat, too—coach, and Eugene Myers, Alabama star quarterback, is the other assistant. They have been conducting spring practice since February 21.

Buying Experience Good For Children

Parents often question whether children should be taught early to buy their own clothes, and as to whether they should be paid for small jobs done around the house or farm. Miss Mary Mumford, who has charge of the nursery school at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, makes the following suggestions:

A little bit of experience at a time, starting with buying hankerchiefs and ties, may pay later. By the time children are through high school, they will be able to select their clothes—getting good clothes for the lowest possible costs. Without experience, they might easily spend double the amount of money, with poorer results. Following are suggestions which should help in first learning through misadventure may be less costly than later mistakes when the child is first learning through child care expert advises.

Many parents have children because needs a week in advance. This way they learn to think ahead and they have time to consider purchases from all angles. Unexpected expenses can be taken care of by regular savings, even though the income may be small.

By no means should children be paid for jobs that are really their responsibility anyway. Miss Mumford believes, but if they do work that would normally require outside help, then payment may be desirable. Children need to learn to assume responsibility and share in the work of the home.

MASTERS' NEW IMPROVED 1938 PLANT SETTER

There is excellent reason for Masters' leadership in the plant setter industry, for it was Masters who built the first practical automatic plant setter over forty years ago. Since then it has been continually improved. Our 1938 model is the last word—it has no competitors. Others have tried to imitate, but never have been able to equal Masters' efficiency and durability. It is so simple and easy to use a Masters'. A Masters' Plant Setter is assurance of maximum stand and profitable yield.

Tobacco buyers say they can tell when a crop has been planted with a Masters' by its uniform high quality. They gladly pay highest prices for this finer yield. One man can set 8,000 to 10,000 plants per hour and do it without even a crick in his back. Others can use the Master Planter. Every user be satisfied with any other method of plant setting. Masters' Improved Plant Setters is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every way.

Plants, Covers and Waters With One Operation

Tobacco, Tomatoes, Cabbage, Sweet Potatoes and other plants

Nearly all first-class Hardware and Implement dealers handle, recommend and sell Masters' Improved Plant Setters. Ask your local merchant to show you this newest and best device of its kind. Examine it—see the fine workmanship, the smoothness and ease of operation. If your dealer doesn't have it in stock, write for full information direct. Don't accept substitutes. *Don't be sold on what you may be disappointed. THE ONLY SETTER THAT PAYS FOR SELF IN A DAY

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for April 10

FINDING OURSELVES IN SERVICE

LESSON TOPIC—Mark 8:22-38.
GOLDEN TEXT—What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?—Mark 8:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Peter Found Out.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Life Count Through Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding Ourselves in Life Through Service.

"Finding ourselves" seems like a singular, almost self-contradictory, expression. Itself refers to a sound principle reinforced by psychologists as well as spiritual leaders. As a matter of fact, modern psychology has begun to recognize and use emotional laws and principles which alone bring about human happiness and efficiency.

A word of warning—let no one who studies the lesson get into the serious error of thinking that some formal religious service will bring redemption and peace with God. We are saved by grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—"not of works, lest any man should boast." It is fatal to the new birth that we are "crucified in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:8-10).

It is the Christian who needs to "find himself" in service. Only as he thus yields to Christ does he really find the life worth living. The words of Jesus in this lesson are strong and gloriously true.

I. Clear Confession (vv. 27-30).

Even those who deny to our Christ the recognition of His deity, and the devotion of life which is His just due, must, if they are at all intelligent, admit that no man ever lived who has made such an impact on human history. Even in the days of his life on earth those who did not accept Him as Messiah regarded Him as the resurrected form of one of the nation's greatest leaders. Now the believing men speak of Him as the great Founder of Christianity, a prophet, a wonderful example, or an unequaled teacher.

It is not enough that we stand with the mass of humanity who may think highly of Jesus. We must confess Him as Saviour and Lord. The question comes to us as it did to the disciples. "Whom say ye that I am?" Then as the Christ—and the same suffices as the foundation for Christian theology and conduct—He says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it. For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Luke 9:23-25).

Note the divine "must." While it is true that wicked men showed their hostility toward our God and His Christ by hanging Him on Calvary's cross, yet it was to die for our sins that He came into the world. The cross has rightly come to represent God's love to the world rather than man's hostility to God.

Error now assails itself, and strangely enough it is the very one who had the clearest grasp of the truth in earlier days. Messiahship of Christ and boldly expressed it who now shrinks from the confession of the coming death and resurrection of Christ, and lends his voice to help take the Master for speaking of it.

Satan hates the cross and the open grave. Jesus won the victory over him there. He did not want to hear of it before it took place and used impulsive Peter for a mouthpiece to object. He doesn't want to hear about it now and uses many a skillful and gifted preacher to speak against it. "The offense of the cross" (Gal. 5:11) has never ceased.

II. Consecrated Life and Service (vv. 34-38).

"Let him deny himself" (v. 34). That command we have construed to mean that we should perform the acts of self-denial, foregoing some comfort or pleasure, possibly for a few weeks. It does not mean that at all—but does mean the renouncing of self and self-will, and a complete yielding to God's will. Likewise, to take up one's cross does not mean to bear some of life's little disagreeable experiences, by means again to die to self and to live for Christ.

Careful attention should be given to the solemn questions asked and statements made in verses 35-37. These are not the reasonings of a man—they fall from the lips of the Son of God. What, He asks, will you give in exchange for your soul?

THE GARDEN

"LUXURIES"—II—

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Last week, a list of "luxury" vegetables that are not truly so was given and several of these discussed. Now, the rest will be covered.

Eggplants were then named, and, purchased in midwinter, they belong truly among the garden luxuries, but inasmuch as they can be produced quite as easily as peppers, and during the same season all Kentucky gardeners may enjoy them. And, they are enjoyable. Their flavor is unlike that of anything that grows in the garden, and they lend themselves to a wide range of preparation. If seed is sown in the same hotbed with, and at the same time as early tomatoes, fruiting should begin in July and continue until frost. Eggplants present hazards from the flea-beetle and the disease Blight, but these are easily handled through the use of Bordeaux mixture. Black Beauty and New York Improved are the varieties.

Speaking of early tomatoes, these are "luxuries" in too many gardens, but they need not be for any gardener who will start a few more hotbed in March and sow early sorts such as Earliana or Bonny Best, or Break O'Day or Pritchard, if the garden soil is afflicted with tomato wilt. If the seedlings are once transplanted so they will not become "leggy," they will arrive at blooming stage May 15 when they are set in the garden, and produce fruit by July or late in June, instead of in August when so many tomatoes now "come in."

Chinese cabbage and Brussels sprouts, the two remaining "luxury" vegetables named last week, are fall crops in Kentucky.

Brussels sprouts seed should be started at the same time and in the same manner as late cabbage, and procedure should be the same throughout, except that more fertility should be given than is customary for late cabbage, for it is essential to grow a large plant quickly. If the cabbage worm comes, as it likely will, poisonous dusts may be used, but only until the "sprouts" begin forming in the axils of each leaf. Then, only rotenone, harmless insecticide, should be applied. If the cabbage lice become bothersome, and they may become so, the customary control for these insects, tobacco extract, should be used, but not the flavor of tobacco may linger, using rotenone is to be preferred, as Chinese cabbage, unlike other cabbage, need not be started in a special seedbed, but is sown in the row where it is to mature. The time is August 1. The seeds lines are thinned to a stand of about 10 inches. Heavy feeding with nitrogen is essential to lush luxuriant growth, and the "sprouts" begin forming in the form of themselves. The flavor of Chinese cabbage is that of tender spring cabbage. Excellent slaw may be made of it or it may be used as a salad, or cooked in the various ways to which ordinary cabbage lends itself.

Chinese cabbage is beset by the same insects to which all cabbage is subject, but extreme exercement them all. This harmless insecticide is recommended for use in greenhouse, because the whole of the Chinese cabbage plant is food. To sum up, all these "luxuries" discussed are in reality not luxuries at all, but delicacies; no more difficult to raise than the staple vegetables that appear in all gardens now. Including them presents no unsurpable problem to any gardener who wishes to fare a little better from his garden, and who wishes strongly enough to do something toward it.

Advises Pruning And Cultivating Shrubs

Shrubs need pruning and cultivating. Like any other plant, they respond to good treatment, says Prof. N. H. Elliott, landscape expert at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Grass and weeds or sod should be removed from about shrubs, as they take up food and moisture needed by the plant. Loosen the soil two or three inches deep and keep it in good condition throughout the season.

Pruning should be done for two reasons, says Prof. Elliott: it encourages new wood growth and better foliage, flowers and fruit; and it improves the appearance of the shrubs. The ideal time to prune is for the most part just after blooming is finished. Usually all plants cannot be pruned at one time, but by pruning as each finishes blooming it may be done easily and adequately, with good results.

Old shrubs that have not been pruned for years need rejuvenation by removing old canes or stems, cutting them back to the ground. Spirea, for instance, with 10 or 12 old canes should have four or five removed this spring, and the rest next spring. This tends to rejuvenate the plant, decreases the size and improves the shape, without the loss of a season's bloom. Some persons are disposed to discard old plants that might be rejuvenated in this way if made into satisfactory shrubs.

CONSTANT STRUGGLE

A coffee salesman was traveling through the South, and as he waited for a train in a little southern town he chatted with a lazy looking colored man idling on a bench at the station.

"Ever drink coffee?" he inquired, with an eye to stirring up interest in his line.

The colored man allowed as how he did. He drank a lot of coffee. Fifty cups a day, he answered.

"Fifty cups a day! Doesn't it keep you awake?" inquired the astonished coffee salesman.

"Well, it helps," answered the colored man.
