THE SIN OF COVETOUSNESS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:15; Romans 7:7; Ephesians 5:5; Colossians 3:5; I Timothy 6:10; Hebrews 13:5. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not covet.—Exodus 20:17.

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

"The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12). These are the words that came to the writer's mind as he read the Scripture portions assigned for this lesson. He would fain have set aside his own comments and used this column to print the words from the Bible. If any reader of these lines purposes to read just these efforts to expound the truth, and not to read the Bible itself, let me plead with you to stop here and turn to God's Word. Let its powerful truth grip your soul and change your life.

It seems peculiarly appropriate that this lesson on covetousness should come right in the midst of our preparations for Christmas, for it directs our attention away from things to God, from outward preparation to the preparation of the heart, from greedy desire to the liberality of heart. Christmas may be literally "made over" for all of us if we receive its truth.

I. A Command (Exod. 20:17).

"Thou shalt not covet."

This last commandment carries us "beyond the domain of civil magistracy into that intellectual realm of motive, desire, and thought, where God alone is Lord and Judge" (Dyker). It deals with the heart, out of which are all the issues of life. It reaches to the root of as much that is wicked and destructive in the world—the covetousness of man. The love of money makes men lie, steal, kill, cheat. In fact, "the whole realm of human interrelations is disorganized and broken up by the dishonoring of the tenth commandment" (Morgan).

II. A Warning (Luke 12:13-21).

"Beware of covetousness."

The teaching of this passage is so directly opposite to all ideas regarding such matters accepted by the world at large, that it may be a total surprise to some readers and attendants at Bible school.

The parable of success in the world—for an individual, and organization, or a nation; yes, even for many a church—is the piling up of wealth, or property, or other "things." Write it then in large letters on the hearts and minds of our boys and girls. "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15).

The one who was known to his friends (and to himself) as "a rich man" (v. 16), but whom God knew as a "fool" (v. 20), had more than he could use for himself. He had to build new and bigger barns, and could not see the "harvest" that were already prepared, for, as Ambrose says, "Thou hast hoarded the bounties of the needy, the houses of widows, the mouths of orphans and infants." He was a fool who loved money for himself. One wonders what he had to say for himself when that very night he was called into the presence of God to give an account of his stewardship of life. Are you are similarly situated and have the same attitude, what will you say in that day?

An important point which we must note is that Jesus expressly repudiated the connecting of His name with the so-called "social gospel." His reply (v. 14) to the question of the covetous fellow who regarded his inheritance as of more importance than brotherly love. Those who are ignoring the gospel of redemption and claiming Jesus as a social reformer or the "Judge and divider" of some new economic solution for the world's ills, need to read and ponder this verse. Every Christian is interested deeply in social problems, but knows that the first concern of Christ and His followers is the souls of men.

III. A Way of Victory (I Tim. 6:6-10).

"Godliness with contentment."

As a minister of the gospel the writer would first remind himself that this was written by Paul to the preacher Timothy. Brethren in the ministry, let us not fall into the temptation and snare that comes with the love of money.

In this dizzy age when many are so intent on making money that they have no time for home and children, church and fellowship; when many neglect their responsibilities and duties as citizens to get gain; when any dirty business is all right if it produces a profit; when "for gold men betray their country, their friends, their God, their immortal souls" (Farrar)—yes, in this day let us remind men that "we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can carry nothing out." Let us teach and exemplify in our lives the fact that the only real and worth while gain in life is "godliness with contentment."

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By Dovie M. Porter)

Charles D. Arnett, Secretary of State, was the first candidate to publicly announce for the coming race's race. We had previously announced that Attorney General Lawrence Hogar, of Owensboro, District Governor of Rotary International, has been traveling over the state making speeches for the various clubs and quietly "feeling the political pulse." He may be a candidate.

Governor A. B. Chandler last week was asked by labor organizations to issue a proclamation forbidding Gordon goods and services, in protest against German persecution of Jews and other minorities. The Governor stated he had shown his opposition in his official Thanksgiving proclamation but felt official stand on foreign policies should be left to the President of the United States and therefore could take no action.

The entire state debt may be refunded because of the recent increase in liquor production and a general upswing in business. Such a refunding would save the state a record-breaking sum from present rate of interest. The Governor stated he had shown his opposition in his official Thanksgiving proclamation but felt official stand on foreign policies should be left to the President of the United States and therefore could take no action.

Farmers Are Advised To Take Inventory

Toward the end of the year every well-run business takes inventory of stock on hand and arrives at an estimate of net worth. The farm business is like any other in its need for such definite information. In taking its inventory, the farm home must, of course be counted, since the family assets include the house, its furnishings, equipment, the cash on hand, and personal possessions.

In addition to the value of the farm home inventory is an item of net worth. Miss Ida Hagman, home-management specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture, suggests a number of other items for it. The total value of furnishings serves as a basis on which to insure household goods and also on which to make adjustments if there should be a loss from fire or flood. It also shows what future needs may arise as things wear out and what amounts should be set aside to replace them. It shows, too, whether there has been family progress. If the family possessions have been increased during the year, for instance, by a piece of new kitchen equipment, new chairs or other furnishings, their present value becomes a part of the net worth.

The inventory, miss Hagman says, should include not only permanent furnishings and equipment but accessories in each room, silver, clothing and personal articles, household linens, china and small equipment.

Possession Limit Set On Number Of Rabbits

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, following a conference with the Attorney General's Department today announced the following regulations will apply on the purchase, sale and transportation of rabbits:

1. No person shall take more than eight rabbits a day, or have in his possession more than sixteen rabbits at any time, except it is lawful for a merchant or dealer to purchase from an individual and to exceed sixteen rabbits at any one time. It is lawful for a merchant or dealer to purchase, sell or have in his possession as many rabbits as he may legally acquire.

2. It is unlawful for any common carrier, contract carrier, agent, employe or any other person to transport rabbits, except when accompanied by such transportation must be done personally by the merchant or dealer.
