FEELING BIG

Children of today probably feel as big when they are allowed to do things slightly above the level of their ages as we used to feel when we were allowed the great privilege of acting as waiter boys. Only the man who carried the corner in the barn-raising for cut the bindings in wheat-threshing felt bigger than the water boy. Elsewhere I have suggested that a monument of considerable magnitude should be erected to the memory of the water boy of all times from the building of the Pyramids down. When Father said the meal after supper was hog-killing days, the small boy was allowed to carry the lantern and hand salt from the barrel. Then when we went across the fields to sit till bedtime, again the boy was given this enviable task of carrying the lantern. The drum major of a college may step higher than he did, but he feels his importance no more. We felt large when we were allowed to collect the eggs, especially if Mother promised us some candy when the hens trailed in at the country store. Every boy liked to make up new and girls were even more skilful than boys in this time-honored way of selling people something they did not especially want. Father usually had to finish out the order by purchasing the packages that we could not sell. But we got the reward in the shape of a ring that left a green band around our fingers or a jew's harp, doll or some other contraption that worried the family until it got to use de stroyed the much-sought-after prize.

Work on the farm sometimes brought us our first chance to earn something. I made my first fifteen cents by dropping tobacco plants and felt rich and important. After I got a little larger and dropped plants as a matter of course, without any prospect of immediate reward, somehow the poetry of the task faded. A similar experience came when I took the down row in gathering corn. I have always wondered whether my older brothers really could not hit the wagon with their corn or deliberately threw the ears so I would have to pick them up. Before long the down row became horizontal and even beyond, and came to be the symbol of a small boy. A friend of mine once said that an acquaintance o, ours should not have gone to college but should have been kept on the down row at corn-gathering. Since he gathered at only one corn season, I suppose that the same young man could drop behind plants in spring, build smudge fires in summer to keep the grass off the cows and calves at milking time, and pick up chips for the winter kindling. Distasteful as all these tasks ultimately became, they were very alluring when we first did them.

The element of daring this sometimes entered into feeling big. Not always a scar, for the small boy is not always able to carry off his plan. Climbing trees against a strong wind was a fine and daring sport so long as one got back down without any disaster. When a torn shirt or pants or skinned knees revealed the offender, sometimes the big feeling got rather small. Similarly, chewing one's first quid gave a large feeling that shrank pretty fast after the novelty had its effect. Maybe life among grown-ups is a sort of daring to do what has never been done the same way before, a grown-up version of feeling big.

A Kansas statute forbids hotels from providing bonuses to use any bed or mattress made of "moss, sea grass, or excelsior."

Tells How To Control Lambing Time Troubles

The care, feeding, management and housing of ewes and lambs at lambing time should be planned with the idea of controlling udder trouble in the ewes and navel infections, scours and pneumonia in the lambs, points out a statement from the animal pathology department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Ewes that have been fed well since they were bred should have a full milk supply in quantity and made more laxative by the addition of bran for a week before lambing. If the ewes are in poor condition and are not receiving much feed it may not be advisable to reduce the quantity.

The sheep barn should be cleaned out once each week and bedded with plenty of straw or other bedding material. The individual lambing pens should be cleaned and freshly bedded for each ewe. The use of lime in the pens frequently results in burns on the ewes udder or on the lambs knees that may cause a sore. Lambs in a short time should have the wool clipped from around the udder and tail. The udder should be washed with soap and water and thoroughly dried before the ewe is placed in the clean lambing pen. Ewes and lambs in the lambing pens should receive feed, water and salt and the remainder of the flock should not be neglected in this respect.

The barn should be kept clean, well ventilated, but free from drafts. Tobacco burns are often used for sheep. The burn that is to be used should be started and plenty of time. Tobacco burns are usually drafty. This can be remedied by placing bunches of corn stover around the outside of the barn or by placing screens with the along the side of the barn and putting between the studding of the wire and the barn.

Tincture of iodine is frequently applied to the navel of the lamb soon after birth. It is better to have the navel cord cut a inch in length and use no iodine than to have them in a dirty pen and use iodine.

Circular Discusses Cost Of Electricity

The circular, Nn 303, written by Prof. James B. Kelley and Earl G. Welch of the agricultural engineering section, may be had from county and home agents or by writing to the college.

"Apple Strudel" Is Delicious Dessert

Recipe for Apple Strudel, approved by the Kentucky College of Home Economics:

3 cups flour
1 tablespoon shortening
2 pounds apples
1 cup raisins
1 cup granulated sweet butter
1½ cups bread crumbs
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup warm water

Mix flour, shortening and one teaspoon of salt and add warm water. Work thoroughly for about 10 minutes. Cover and let stand for about an hour in a cool place for one hour. Roll out on floured cloth very thinness. Pull it with the fingers, if necessary, to make it very thin. Spread over it the bread crumbs, which have been browned in one tablespoon of butter, and the apples, pared, cored and thinly sliced. Sprinkle the apples over bed with butter and sprinkle very generously with sugar and cinnamon. Add the raisins on top of the apples, and sprinkle the sugar over it. Roll into a roll from the end of the cloth together. Pour over it the rest of the butter and bake in an oven preheated to 400 degrees. Reduce the temperature of the heat to 300 and bake 45 minutes. Before serving, dust with powdered sugar. Serve with whipped cream.

Apple Sauce Best When Cooked Slow

Suggestions as to the cooking of apple sauce are given by home economics department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The secret of fine-flavored apple sauce is slow cooking to a point beyond the first indication of tenderness. For most apples a half hour is not too much if the heat is kept low. It is well to vary the kind of apple sauce served by adding lemon juice or spices such as cinnamon or cloves. Nutmeg should be added to apple sauce only if it is to be served with meat. It is likely to give a bitter flavor on standing. The texture may also be varied by serving (1) apples that have been cored, quartered and cooked with skins on and then put through a colander; (2) apples pared, cored, cut into thick slices and cooked without stirring until transparent in a covered pan in water that covers them three-fourths of the way; (3) apples that have been pured, cored, quartered, cooked in a small amount of water until tender and then mashed with a fork or spoon.

Lesson for January 30

MINISTERING TO SPIRITUAL NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Son, thy sins are forgiven—Mark 2:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When the House Was Crowded.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Who Can Forgive Sin?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ministering to the Spiritually Needy.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity's Concern for Spiritual Health.

Man is so constantly concerned with his physical nature, the needs and interests of his body, that he is prone to forget that there is within him a spiritual nature which is in fact his real self. The body which is the temporary dwelling place of the soul is most important—but relatively it is of but slight significance when considered alongside of the spiritual life of man.

Our lesson presents the Lord Jesus as being rightly concerned with the needs of the palsied man's body, but his act of healing was directed to the infinitely more important act of forgiving his sins. Consider him, for his was indeed

I. A Hopeless Case (v. 3).

Incurably afflicted and helpless physically, but far more deeply affected spiritually was this poor man, for he was still in his sins. No man was able to heal his body, much less could heal his soul. He was indeed hopeless and helpless. But He knows no hopeless case. With God all things are possible, and Jesus Christ is God.

We are told as was this man, for without God we too are without hope (Eph. 2:12). Let us face the facts and admit that unless we are saved through Christ we are eternally and utterly lost.

II. Impossible Conditions (vv. 1, 4).

We say that the circumstances were impossible. No man were such as to make it impossible for him to reach the Lord, for so fixy would have been apart from the spirit of divine urgency which impelled his helpers to climb upon the house and break open the roof. Where there is a will there's a way." Had these men been content to simply accept the fact that they could never have put their friend at the feet of Jesus, they would have failed in taking up the roof they tried the impossible and so made the effort entry, but it was blocked. It often seems impossible to overcome obstacles by religious ceremony, often by vain philosophy.

III. Immediate Conversion (v. 5).

At once Jesus sees their faith and the faith of the man has in Jesus. He always welcomes and honors faith. Here was a faith that could look beyond the roof they tried the power of God to forgive sins—immediately. The circular Nn 303, written by Prof. James B. Kelley and Earl G. Welch of the agricultural engineering section, may be had from county and home agents or by writing to the college.

THE FARM AND HOME

To fertilize the garden, plow under a covering of manure and then disk and broadcast 20 per cent superphosphate at the rate of about 100 pounds for a space of 100 feet square. Soil so treated should grow good tomatoes, peas, beans, squash and sweet corn.

Plant the lawn once or twice each spring helps smooth the surface. This can be done as soon as it is possible to walk on the lawn without sinking in over the shoe soles. An ordinary farm roller will be satisfactory for use on the lawn.

A leg of lamb weighing 5 pounds probably will require from two to two and a half hours to roast, including searing, and a 7-pound leg from three to three and a half hours, to cook to the well-done stage in a moderate oven.

January is the month to build or repair brooder houses. See a county agent for plans. It also is the month in which to place orders for baby chicks from a hatchery or breeder who tests all his breeding stock and culls closely.

The first requirement for "the production of a good bed of tobacco plants is a rich, well-drained piece of land well supplied with organic matter. Old fence rows, and pasture lands that have been in grass for several years, are very desirable.

Because he tried to get out of jail Sherman, Tex., Jodie Lloyd lost one of his legs. The leg an infected one was taken from him as punishment.

This fellow has to be plenty good

—just to keep alive!

Throw a man into a ring with one arm strapped to his side and set of bubbles on his feet. Then give Joseph Hall a dozen bunkies to do their worst with him. If he survives at all, he's got to be PLENTY good alive! And if he comes out ON TOP, it's a miracle!

That miracle has been happening for the last two decades with this railroad, and with a lot of others over the country. Despite strictive laws and regulations, rising wages and mounting taxes, subsidized competitive forms of transport, descending rate scales —all these and more have been met in the course of business combat—but withal the railroads have made their service more dependable, more efficient, faster, safer, and more friendly.

Those of America's railroads still operating out of receivership have had to be PLENTY GOOD to survive. They have given a service so essential that nothing else could replace them. That many of them have not only survived but also have made notable progress, can be credited to that indefinable something which falls on the face of almost overwhelming odds.

America today enjoys the BEST railroad service in all the world . . . at the world's LOWEST railroad rates. You can ride safely, swiftly and luxuriously for two to three cents per mile. Your freight—send to all—moves at an average rate per ton per mile of less than a penny—much of it from door to door.

There is comfort in the hope that railroads may yet be treated according to their accomplishments and contribution to national progress, rather than be bedeviled by political and economic handicaps which no business ought to be called upon to face.

This railroad would prefer to spend its energies in helpful, constructive service to communities and thus deserve their good will and patronage.

Poultry And Egg Prices May Be Higher Soon

Many poultrymen are pleased with their prospects for the next few months. They get high egg-per prices for eggs than they did in the first half of this year, and it may take only about two-thirds as many eggs to pay for the feed.

Because they have already thinned their flocks considerably more than usual, most poultrymen will not have many culling hens to sell during the next six months. But those poultrymen who did keep them healthy will get higher prices than were paid during the last half of last year.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics tells what has happened to improve the outlook for poultrymen. The most important developments are: (1) Stores and most of shell eggs out of storage during December.

On August 1, there were more shell eggs and frozen eggs in storage than at any other time on record, with one exception. Up to December 1, there was a decrease of the eggs out of cold storage theexistence of any such record. But in December, shell eggs moved out of cold storage rapidly. No poultryman now have a chance of getting better egg prices this winter and spring.

The way poultry has been going into storage also improves the outlook for poultry prices during the next six months. Deficiencies and the cold-storage holdings of poultry reach their peak for the year by the time January 1 rolls around. The fact that laying flocks on farms are smaller will also help to keep the prices of chickens above prices paid during the first half of last year. On December 1, laying flocks on the average were the smallest on record for that date.

CIGARETTE FACTORIES

Louisville cigarette factories produced in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, about 140,000,000 more cigarettes than in the preceding year, but other types of tobacco manufactures, including chewing and smoking tobacco, chewing and snuff, showed a slight drop in the value of output, on the basis of reports of internal revenue taxes paid to the Federal Government.

The same trends were shown in other tobacco manufacturing states, cigarette production increasing, manufactured tobacco showing a slight drop.

It is estimated that Louisville factories produced during the fiscal year 11,742,614,000 cigarettes, giving Louisville third rank among the states in cigarette production. Louisville is the only Kentucky city in which cigarettes are produced. Its output was 7.4 per cent of the national production.

Use 800,000 Tons Of Lime Materials

Eight hundred thousand tons of lime materials were used on farms in Kentucky last year, according to a summary which the College of Agriculture at Lexington received of reports of county farm agents. The total included 714,000 tons of agricultural limestone, 76,000 tons of marl and 9,000 tons of burned lime.

By counties, Hardin led the list, with 24,675 farmers using 42,000 tons of limestone, marl and burned lime. Thirty-seven thousand tons were used in Christian county, and 25,000 tons in Logan county, and 25,000 tons in Clinton county. A large number of counties used 10,000 tons.

In Lincoln county farmers used 8,000 tons of marl. Henderson county farmers applied 10,000 tons of marl and Montgomery county used 6,000 tons.

This was the second consecutive year that Kentucky used 800,000 tons of lime materials in preparing their land for the seeding of hay and the growing of hay and pasture crops.

TIMELY TOPICS

It is suggested by a noted educator that inasmuch as it is impossible to legislate by statute, and about everything, we should apply the Golden Rule in all matters concerning which we are willing to remain in ignorance. For most of us, we should make a lengthy list.

Arrested for a traffic violation, a Nebraska driver laughed at the policeman and later insulted the judge, who gave him 90 days. Then the culprit laughed some more and said, "I'm driving for the warden of the penitentiary and I'm in for life."

Tom Pillon of Chicago attended a sad movie, but thought nobody while others wept, until he was ejected from the theater. He sued the management and was awarded $300 by a judge who upheld her right to laugh, regardless of the nature of the show.

In Brooklyn, a woman pleaded guilty to running down a pedestrian, pleaded in extenuation that his vision had been obscured by a large "safety first" sticker which had been placed on his windshield.

During a storm off the English coast, a ship's wireless operator, Jim Costa, a sailor, overboard, and shortly afterward another swept him back on deck. Aside from a silvere fright and the loss of his false teeth he was unharmed by his experience.

Thomas Gore, musician of Fort Wayne, Ind., has started a baby nursery as a means of earning additional money. He feeds and "changes" the babies, and plays the saxophone to quiet them.

Our Country

THE constructive citizen has a vital interest in his country. Animated by patriotism and loyalty, he desires to be of service to his country at all times. Recognizing honest purposes and straightforward practices as paramount, he endeavors to push beyond merely sentimental and superficial issues, and to adopt sound views and sound actions. He has efforts are invaluable. Through systematic right thinking, he aids in accomplishing right results, Said Emerson, "That country is the fairest, which is inhabited by the noblest minds."

The concept of one's country involves not only boundary lines, inhabitants, and countryside, but also a controlling power or government. Consequently, an aggregation of inhabitants and their government is definitely regarded as a country. But, in order to have a good, responsible government—a country which is noble and fair—there must first be a correct estimate of the duties which are fundamentally necessary to build up and sustain such a country. In other words, there must be a right position and understanding of what is visible, underlying spiritual forces and intelligence which determines and directs all worthy achievement—that is, a country which provides wisdom and strength both for those who represent the government of the country and for those who are governed. "The kingdom is the Lord's; and he is the governor among the nations," declares our highest authority—the Bible. This profound statement is the key to the entire situation. In answer to the perplexities confronting the countries of the world now and always. This supreme fact regarding government demands careful, understanding attention on the part of true, progressive thinkers. We appreciatively applaud the work wonders for peoples and governments everywhere.

It goes almost without saying that the progress, harmony, and the contentment of any country are directly proportionate to the brilliance and collective welfare of its inhabitants. But here is the weakness of all men: it needs to be emphatically stressed. Indeed is primarily responsible. It is the product of Mind, not of matter. It is the result of what is in man. Therefore, the root and branch of real welfare are primarily in divinity.

The greatest demonstrator of this mighty truth was Jesus Christ. His works, correctly apprehended, were designed to show everything that is the most perfect peace and concord not only to individuals but also to nations; and this sense of peace and brotherhood was to be carried out even to the evils of strife and hatred. Here is the real basis for the greatness of the American people, there are violent discussions of war, aggressive signestions of war, and general preparation for it. Can we possibly think of war that calls forth more promotes genuine welfare for one's country? Can it be considered a blessing to inflict upon a nation the tragedy of civil war? Can a nation be happy and prosperous when it is divided? Can the prosperity and success it has attained be maintained by attacking peace in its own ranks, and then relations? Is war capable, in any degree whatever, of establishing and building up one's country? The Master gave the following answer (Matt. 12:25), "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword."

No better method exists for establishing and maintaining well-being than to adopt and to practice the art of self-government. Why? Because unadulterated democracy has for its chief principle the Golden Rule, which is the best precept ever given. It is the basis of success. A leading American educator and unquestionably prominent authority on the future of this nation (United States), is the future of the world, has come up with the hope of a true democracy that includes the entire world.

"True democracy"—That is an amazing thought built on liberty. In such a democracy promises real freedom, that is, success, peace, prosperity, security, protection, for peoples and governments. It includes safety, satisfaction, and serenity for all the world.

Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, declares that "Love is the universal wealth with Key to the Scriptures". This has existed since the beginning of all rights, among which are self-government, freedom, and independence. Man is properly self-governed only when he is governed by the law governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love.
