Destroy Dog Ticks
And Help Control Spotted Fever

WASHINGTON—Methods for fighting dog ticks, feared as carriers of deadly Rocky Mountain spotted fever in the eastern and central portions of the United States, have just been published by the United States Department of Agriculture here. The tick control measures are based on studies by C. B. Rogers and Carrol N. Smith of the department's bureau of entomology and plant quarantine.

In regions where both spotted fever and tick infestation are common, it is suggested that the following control measures should be adopted: (1) Dogs should be kept on a regular basis of spraying with a 5 per cent solution of DDT. (2) Dogs should be kept in a clean, dry, well-ventilated place. (3) Dogs should be kept away from brush and other places where ticks are likely to be found. (4) Dogs should be kept away from places where they are likely to be bitten by ticks. (5) Dogs should be kept away from places where they are likely to be bitten by ticks.
