A. F. Of L. Endorses Candidacy Of Johnson

Keen Johnson, Richmond editor and candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor Sunday was given the unqualified endorsement of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor, Kentucky branch of the American Federation of Labor.

Edward H. Weyler, secretary of the state federation, made the announcement of the action of the federation at the conclusion of a lengthy meeting of the executive board.

Decision of the Kentucky federation to back Johnson came after the support of the most outstanding labor leaders in the state.

The state organization of the American Federation of Labor represents 50,000 members in 300 local unions and has a membership in every county in the state. The federation membership for the most part is organized in the coal fields.

Endorsement of Johnson had the support of Harry Lee Waterfield, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Joseph D. Keenan, secretary-treasurer of the international brotherhood of electrical workers and also secretary-treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

Waterfield declared that Johnson is a friend of labor and that his wife were arrested in Canada by Royal Canadian mounted police for assisting Louisville strikers. Johnson was charged with embezzlement of funds of the University of Louisville of which he was president.

Survey Indicates Large Majority For Johnson

A survey conducted by the Ohio Valley News Service into Kentucky political sentiment has been completed and a total of 10,000 to 10,000 Democratic voters of the state, the results of the survey announced were received from every county in the state.

On the basis of a summary made at noon Wednesday June 28, a total of 10,000 votes had been registered in the inquiry are as follows:

Arnett	3,250
Broun	2,500
Johnson	4,250
Undecided	1,000

The returns indicate that Johnson will carry the first, second, fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth districts. Broun is reported shown to have an edge in the 3rd district, the survey indicates.

On a basis of approximately 500,000 votes cast in the last gubernatorial election, the survey indicates that Johnson will carry the state by more than 20,000 votes.

The names of those solicited were carefully selected without regard to political affiliation or factional affiliation, and every effort has been made to obtain a cross section of opinion of sentiment over the entire state before the survey was announced.

Trends noted since the last report of the Ohio Valley News Service have been decidedly toward the Johnson column. The above forecast represents the final conclusions to be formed by this service with reference to the approaching Kentucky election.

THE CARLISLE MERCURY

VOLUME LXXIII. ESTABLISHED 1867 CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KY., THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1939 NUMBER 28

Death Toll May Exceed 100 In Stricken Areas

Breathitt And Rowan Counties Recover Bodies After Waters Recede

OVER 1,000 HOMELESS

The toll of deaths in Rowan and Breathitt counties from the flash flood of early last Wednesday morning is estimated at more than 100 with the greatest number in Breathitt county. It is estimated that seventy-four persons lost their lives in Breathitt county when a twenty-foot wall of water poured down Frozen Creek valley, taking houses, outbuildings, fences and everything in its path. Many bodies in Breathitt county were washed into the Kentucky river. Many bodies have been recovered at Beattyville, thirty miles from Jackson, and by Chief of Police Virgil Smith, of Beattyville, and a number of bodies were seen floating by but were not recovered.

Twenty bodies were recovered and identified in Breathitt county and authorities expect the number of thirty-eight more believed to have stemmed but not recovered.

Willie Riley, Breathitt county storekeeper at Vain Cleve, on Van Lear creek, 10 miles north of Jackson, told of watching the 20 foot wall of water sweep down the valley and sweep away his store, his garage and an automobile. His house was caught and went along with the store. He was left on a tree and the house-top upon which his family had taken refuge with him. The house broke up when it struck an obstruction and the baby was washed down the stream. The mother was left on the top.

The little village of Keck a few miles north of Jackson was washed almost completely away, only three houses being left in the village.

Rev. Leola McConnell, woman head of the Mountain Bible Institute in Breathitt county, related that the water carried away most of the college buildings, including a dormitory housing twenty-five boys and girls. Miss McConnell said nine students are missing. Three hundred of the institute clung to a building in which they had been sheltered for a distance of four miles. They were carried out of the mouth of Frozen creek down the Kentucky river before they were rescued.

Wilhurst, another village along Frozen creek, was entirely wiped out.

The death toll in Rowan county was estimated at 50. Approximately 200 homes in the county were destroyed and hundreds of others were damaged. The damage in Rowan county is estimated at $1,000,000.

Red Cross officials estimated 1,000 families in the flooded counties are homeless or need assistance. Carlisle has received agents listed 500 families in Rowan, 300 in Breathitt, 100 in Lewis and the remainder in various other counties. Only one dead body was found in Rowan county, that of Lewis Cooper.

The second flood within 24 hours struck Mt. Sterling Thursday as Hinkston creek fed by a torrential rain, washed out part of C. & O. railroad tracks, flooded the waiting room at the depot and destroyed several homes and negroes in the east end of the city. Two oil tanks were washed away. Several bridges were washed out and yards of two lumber yards. Hinkston creek rose four feet. panies were badly damaged. higher the river has been.

Although no loss of life was reported, an Elliott county flood with the Little Sandy river caused property damage estimated at $50,000, near Sandy Hook. Livestock drowned and a number of houses and stores were washed away.

Damage in Clark county to farmers and other property interests was estimated at $75,000 to $100,000. The flood was the heaviest in Winchester since 1910.

Scores of homes were damaged as creeks raged at record highs. One family fled to safety as its home was dashed in half. Others saw their houses flooded and crops ruined.

In Lawrence county, an 88-foot bridge, completed by the WPA three weeks ago, was washed away with its concrete spans. Also destroyed were two other bridges, a home and a store.

Statement To Farmers Made By County Agent

Nicholas Urges Farmers To Visit Office Early To Sign Farm Program

As your new county agent I wish to greet you and compliment you upon the splendid cooperation you men have been giving the A. C. S. Program and other Extension projects. As an older county agent with much farm experience and two college degrees I shall naturally strive to carry out the splendid program which has been laid out for the county this year and where possible go further.

I am anxious to rapidly get acquainted and visit as many farms as possible but you know this will take much time, and patience on your part. I trust at our first round of meeting that we may have a large attendance. Only by such group action can I reach a large number of our rural folks and be worth more to you.

Two important matters in the A. C. S. Program should be noted. First, the date for signing the farms 315 or farm sheet has been extended to the fifteenth of July. This will enable a number of men who earlier for one reason or another thought that they could not participate to now get in on the good advantage to do so. This provision will probably bring in a good number of farmers. We urge men who have not signed for this year to come to the office at once if not at that time to have your practice, plone us and either one of your committeemen or myself we may reach you. However as far as possible we hope to avoid this additional expense for you.

Also there is the matter of government triple superphosphate which a large number of you men have ordered. There is some still some available and if you have been delayed for any reason still plan to use it, it is advisable to place your order immediately as the state office informs us that the supply will probably soon be exhausted and we are hopeful all our farmers will be disappointed.
