It is early morning and as we write and listen to the birds in male cardinal falls dismally on our ears. And we too, are grieved for often we watched the mother bird sitting on the nest, alert and on guard he was seldom seen yet always near when danger threatened. Then he would fill the air with his song. He has been quietly fastened among the vines and shrubbery, but now he is no more, dart like a scarlet flame to the nest in the mid air that was his light as the disturbing cause we sat in the porch to view it from had come by a prowling cat. The was not intact but the mother bird was still there inside we closed the door and presently all was well.

Now the nest is empty filled with dozens of trips to the tiny nest among the waving cornfields leaves.

And now tragedy. Yesterday the mother bird was seen hopping to and fro in the fields. The nest was torn loose, hanging empty—the mate plainly lost.

Grimly we turn to our tasks while the mother bird in search of a broken hearted mother bird comes and goes through the thick gray dawn.

GIFTS

(Mary Edgar Comstock)

Dear God, I stand with empty hands
To have them filled.
The other gifts Thou gavest me
I long have spilled
And some I broke upon these stones
And some are bled
Until they died, because my
Heart was dead
To strangeness wed.

Dear God, I would have other gifts
Within my hands.
Seal them upon me in Thy wrath
With potent bands
That I may never lose again
The hot, but free
My heart in deepening loneliness,
In ecstasy.

CAMPBELL-LESLIE

Miss Jean Miller Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Campbell, and Mr. Wallace Leslie Griffin, Ga., were united in marriage at the First Presbyterian church in Birmingham, Ala., on Thursday, June 9th, at 4:30 P. M., officiating Rev. Samuel B. Hay.

Pink pedestals and ferns formed the altar background for a center basket of Easter lilies and white larkspur, gladioli and snapdragons. Floor standards of the same white flowers were interspersed with candelabra holding cathedral tapers.

The wedding music was furnished by Mrs. Edward Bowdoin, aunt of the bride, of Carlisle, Ky., organist, and Mrs. E. L. Louis, of Louisville, and Miss Janie Strickland, vocalist.

Ivory satin fashioned the dress worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. Styled on princess lines the gown had a fitted bodice with long pointed sleeves, which formed a glove effect over the hands. The veil of illusion, fastened to the coiffure with orange blossoms, covered the train, which was in three yards wide, a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley completed with a white orchid.

Miss Martha Keith, maid of honor, wore a costume of aqua point d'esprit, the round neckline trimmed with ruffles outlined with matching grosgrain ribbon, and carried an arm bouquet of brilliant roses. Their dresses being designed on identical lines as the honor attendant's, the bridesmaids carried garden baskets of arm bouquets. Miss Martha Leslie, sister of the bridegroom, of Monticello, Ky., served as flower girl, wearing pink tulle over pink taffeta, and carried a basket of pink roses.

Clinton W. Hightower, of Mc-Donnough, Ga. served as Dr. Leslie's best man, and the ushers were George Gammill, Dr. Jack M. Wright, of Stillwater, Okla., Leslie Kelley, of Monticello, Ga., and Paul Akins.
