The Mercury is quite a means of communication. We are sure it is mailed to every state in our United States. There are folks who want to hear from home, and what is going there. For example, Earl Sebastian in New Jersey, Arthur Ogden in Pittsburg, some folks in Chicago, Indiana, Lee Miller in Dayton, William Dotson in Akron, Ohio, O. T. Bloom in New Mexico, Alexanders in Oklahoma; others in one or scores of others. Some of these folks tell me they look each week for news from Bald Hill and around this community, away from home we can say all is well, the season is fine, the health is remarkable at present, and everything moving along in about the same old way. Thanks to the Mercury for allowing us to send in our items and for printing them sometimes.

We spent a little time reading your items we felt we were writing an editorial. Just say Editor, Warren Fisher. What has become of your county and its possessors? Have they attained and forgotten to appear in the pages of the Mercury?

Spreading out such lovely wings, Especially grown for journeyings, Butterflies drink tea and sup From a fragile, flowered cup.

Butterflies have fairy gowns Made, I think, in elfin towns Where small kings and queens hold sway Every perfect June-time day.

Butterflies wear purple, too, Bobbins with gold on royal blue; Some have yellow scallops on And bronze spots of crimson.

Spreading out such lovely wings, Especially grown for journeyings, Brings a wish, somehow, that I Could be a carefree butterfly!
