FROM OVER THE LINE

(By J. W. Rogers)

"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the most of men," on a second thought, it's just as true, that it's relished by most women, too.

"Man wants but little here below, He's not so hard to please," But woman (bless her little hide) Wants everything she sees."

We believe in fun more than in physics. We are still living, happy and contented, "over the line," '39.

Laughs and smiles are "funny" things.

Wonderful what they can do;

If you laugh and smile with others

They'll laugh and smile with you.

Oh, wouldn't I love to catch him Wherever he might be

Wouldn't I give him particular fits.

That fellow that looks like me.

We still entertain good feelings for the Myers school vicinity and any good reports from there. It was our happy privilege to teach school there a few years ago. Congratulations to Miss Kathleen Wrench, a school girl there, who won the recent spelling bee championship. May she win on and on.

Miss Clarine Perrin, "over the line" in Cynthiana, informs us she is a close reader of The Mercury. She says it is educational, too, and enjoys it very much. She was born in Nicholas county.

Lots of people complain about WPA men workers sitting on their shovels and counting ties, but none complains of WPA sewing women sitting on their needles — that's funny.

BEYOND THE STARS

(Charles Hanford Towne)

I heard them whisper in the quiet room;
I longed to open then my sealed eyes
And tell them of the glory that was mine.
I was the rain, I was the dawn, I was the purple east,
I was the moonlight on enchanted nights.
Yet time was lost to me.) I was a flower
For one to pluck who loved me,
I was bird
And rapture, splendid moments of delight.
And I was prayer and solitude and hope.
And always, always I was love.
I tore asunder flimsy doors of time
And through the windows of my soul I flew
Beyond the illimitable bounds of space
I learned what music meant; I read the years
I found where rainbows hide, where tears begin.
I saw the precincts of things yet unborn.

Yes, while I found all wisdom I gave it away.
They grieved for me. I should have grieved for them.
