We Are Always Glad to Help

and we can help, not merely from a sales standpoint, but we know the satisfaction of good, clean, economical heat, produced from good coal, and we feel that we have made friends when we can supply them with a coal which will perform to their entire satisfaction, either in furnace, stoker, grate, heater or range.

Headline news from Europe Sunday night related that Russia had sent a note to Finland charging that thirteen Soviet soldiers had been killed or wounded when Finnish artillery had fired seven shots into a village located on the Karelian Isthmus located between the Gulf of Finland and Lake Ladoga. At that point the Soviet capital of Leningrad is only thirty miles distant. Finland has denied the attack. Observers in Europe report that this incident, plus the demand by Russia that Finland withdraw her troops to a line twelve to sixteen miles back from the border, and the threatening attitude of editorial comment in the official Russian newspapers, indicate the possible intention of Russia to invade Finland as Poland was invaded. For a week Finnish-Russian negotiations have been broken off. Finland is now vulnerable to attack, since, with winter having set in, the lakes have frozen over and now constitute no great hindrance to military movement. If Russia attacks, it tends to force the issues with England and will probably do so soon.

European neutrals this past week have been greatly disturbed by the British-French announcement that they would establish a blockade upon all German exports, even if carried upon neutral ships. Germany has been receiving many items of supply from shipping of Scandinavian countries, and Germany is gaining financial credit with which to purchase supplies from the United States. Germany has been quite materially affected by the blockade through neighboring countries, like Holland, Italy, and the Scandinavian countries, but the effects of the blockade have been rigorous since France, England and Germany have been at war. However, Britain and France have been able to maintain a blockade of Germany's coast line to a degree sufficient to prevent many items of supply from reaching Germany. Germany has been able to secure many items of supply from Russia, and from the United States by way of Italy. THIS YEAR—THANKSGIVING

(Anna Blake Menquida)

Thanksgiving Day he said, with happy chaffing:
"The neighbors know I'm home, by me hearing
Because they hear you laughing."

He was so joyous young himself, so gay—
How strange that he could slip so quiet away!
I'd never laugh again, it seemed, nor smile;
And so the days slowed on, eternities, awhile;
And now November came, and shocking went;

My lips were wordless, with rebellions spent,
For how could I give thanks for
To that far God who had not understood?

This year has taught me, oh, so many things!
My self-bound thoughts have gathered to their wings
Among the crowd I reach out and touch hand
Because I know, I feel, I understand
I see so much I never saw before.
The many worlds beyond my little door.
I can lift up my smile to God and
"You did not send me barren of my way."
I thank you Lord, for riches more than gold:
That sadness you gave to have and hold—
Not for a year, not for a fleeting
But mine to keep and love and share for aye!"

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Blake are in all at their home on High street.

Rev. E. G. Schmidt, Mrs. Alfred Wells, is with her, and they expect to be home soon.
