Dispelling The Fog

By Charles Michelson, Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

Because of some criticism of Senator Vandenberg in this column, for his position that international affairs are subordinate to domestic politics in importance, we are gravely assailed by the Republican outfits of bringing politics into the neutrality controversy, by advocating the repeal of the arms embargo.

Naturally, I have attempted to avoid letting our mutual Canadian degenerate into a duel of press agents, but, after all, the author of the indicated accusation is the putative mouthpiece of the Republican National Committee, notwithstanding the wraps under which he is running. The advocacy of the repeal of the embargo is the policy declared by the President in his message to Congress, and also constitutes the opinion of the Democratic majority in Congress. They believe that the cash-and-carry substitute for the embargo, with its corollary of keeping American ships away from localities their presence in which might provoke dangerous "incidents," should be helpful in keeping us out of war.

I have yet to learn whether officially the Republican National Committee is for or against the embargo revision. Naturally, the inclination would be to oppose it because the President is for it, and the first tenet of the anti-administrations' creed is that anything the President wants or does must be wrong. On the other hand, many of the high-ranking Republicans—Nicholas Murray Butler, and former Secretary of State Stimson for example—agree with the President as to neutrality, and I suspect, though I do not accuse Republican Chairman John Hamilton being of the same mind, not of thought. All of which indicates that neutrality shouldn't have any domestic gorilla mixed up with it.

But, according to the output of any Republican contemporary, the New Dealers wickedly are planning an intensive movement. I thought I was a New Dealer until the G.O.P. numbskulls started a similar informed me to the contrary. Now the same authority announces that the President's supporters have established a publicity department in opposition to the one from which this letter emanates, which is spot news to me and, I believe, to the New Deal. However, that's not important. I am emphasizing the confusion that exists in the G.O.P., which neither knows what variety of candidate it wants for the 1940 election or what sort of program the candidate ultimately chosen should run on.

Another funny sample of campaign literature received, inquiry was the call of Editor Frank Gannett to Congress and requests for grants of power that might be used by the Executive to get the nation into war.

We have been told by Editor Gannett, and others of the self-appointed guardians of our liberties, that Mr. Roosevelt is going to be a dictator. Now what kind of a dictator is he, anyway, considering that for seven years the President has been in full possession of the various powers that Gannett lists and hasn't used any of them except the one in which he declared a "limited emergency," when as Mr. Gannett sets forth, "any emergency proclaimed by the President is legally a complete emergency."

Solemnly we are warned that now the President can take over the entire broadcasting system of the nation "He can suppress public discussion by radio of views contrary to his own. He can seize any or all broadcasting stations and turn them over to any department of government." etc. The Radio Act became law in 1934. Any time during the past five years just by saying "emergency" the President could have embargoed the air against all criticism of the administration. I doubt if our whole history shows an example of such scandalous neglect of opportunity. In that time the anti-administration orators have kicked the New Deal all over the lot, and charged the President with every crime from treason down—they have berated the Social Security Act, the Supreme Court measure, the wages and hours law, the agriculture bill, appointments to Government posts—neutrality—in fact, pretty nearly everything he has proposed. Never ever he was for, the air rang with denunciations against, whatever he was against the atmosphere was shattered with arguments for.

And all the time he sat in the White House attending to his regular business as Presidents. Now he thought the occasion required, he made his fireside talks, or some of those whose views accorded with his own told the country the why of what he was trying to do, in consonance with the principle that everybody and every political party had an equal right and privilege to broadcast.

Some of the laws, the repeal of which is advocated by such people as man who has taken over the Liberty Leaguize things for the purpose of gaining things the G.O.P. regular organization for one reason or another did not choose to father, have been on the statute books for twenty years. They were placed there because it seemed wise to Congress to clothe the Executive with powers that might be required in times of crisis. Since their enactment, we have had twelve years of Republican administration and seven of Democratic—and nobody worried lest a Presi-

VISIT TO BLUE LICKS

(Falmouth Outlook)

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Shonert enjoyed a delightful motor trip to the State Park at Blue Licks Sunday, which is one of the most interesting places in this section of Kentucky. It includes the site of the last battle of the Revolution and the famous old Blue Lick Springs which was the first summer resort west of the Allegheny Mountains.

The park contains 37 acres of land and is covered with a thick growth of timber and is located on the banks of the Licking River. It is situated in Robertson county at the mouth. The State has improved this park by building several beautiful buildings out of native stone.

Hon. W. J. Curtis, a native of Robertson county, is the father of this park and has worked diligently for almost 40 years for its development. When the Commonwealth of Kentucky established this park it was one of the happiest moments of his life. He was appointed curator of the wonderful museum, and through his untiring efforts he has one of the finest collections of the prehistoric races that inhabited that section of the state, and also relics of ante-bellum days in the South in fact, his collection of mastodon, prehistoric bones, Indian relics and implements of the Indians is the largest in the world. The museum is visited by some of the most prominent men of the nation who are interested in this work. During the visit we viewed a display of implements and prepared specimens that date back to the Stone Age and it is a mecca for visitors who are interested in anything out of the ordinary.

Mr. Curtis has a record in the history of the various collections housed in the museum and the State of Kentucky should be proud of having such a man in charge of these valuable historical collections.

In perusing the register of Oct. 7 several visitors registered from many States in the Union and from the State of Kentucky.

Shoes Should Be Bought With Care

A "hobby" walk, a painted exercise bicycle, a new pair of sports shoes, are some of the outward evidences of the desire for healthy living shoes. Here are suggestions for the Shoe Information Service, department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Shoes, since women tend to forget that their feet are as big as they are. A woman who requires, for instance, may ask for a 1-2A.

Be sure the shoes are heavy enough to give adequate support to the feet. Examine them for defects, and proper workmanship.

Use good sense in making a selection, and remember the wise salesman in an effort to get the proper shoes, since you are to buy them. If the shoes are not just what you want, you don't have to buy them.

Once shoes are bought and in use, don't neglect them. Look after them weekly, at least. Do not put them away with dust or dirt on them. On the contrary, do not polish them just before storing them for the winter or summer, as the drying polish may damage the leather.

The one thing to keep in mind when buying shoes, however, is of course it is possible to buy them too big, but the mistake is usually the other side, these extra sizes.

Walters Most Valuable Player In National

Bucky Walters, who took up pitching after he was a comparative failure as an outfielder at Syracuse, Tuesday acquired the coveted distinction of being the National League's most valuable player.

Walters, a refugee from the baseball morgue, was voted the No. 1 player in his league by a committee of 23 baseball writers of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He received 291 points to the tall Cincinnati right-hander's 276. Philadelphia polled 303 of a possible total of 330 points. Walters received 18 first places, five second places and one fifth place.

Teaming up with Paul Derringer, Walters formed a two-man pitching staff which virtually pitched the Reds to their first pennant in 20 years. Walters won 27 games —more than any other major leaguer has—and lost 11. He also led his league in innings pitched, with 319, and in complete games, with 31. He struck out 137 batters and walked 103.

The science of chemistry has given you fertilizers to grow your crops and sprays to protect them from diseases. Now it gives you a method of weed control in tobacco plant beds which is much better and cheaper than the old methods.

Granular 'Aero' Cyanamid, applied to tobacco plant beds in the fall, kills the weed seeds in the soil. Within 60 to 90 days following application, it loses its killing properties so' does not injure tobacco seeded after that waiting period.

New Allotment Is Approved By REA

A telegram received at Cynthiana last Wednesday advised that the REA in Washington had formally approved application for Harrison County Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation for $1,500,000, which will involve $103,500. This will allow the building of 110 additional miles of electric lines, serving 1,500 more farms in Bourbon, Scott, Nicholas, Robertson, Bracken and Pendleton counties.

The Cynthiana co-operative, including the county committee, and all three projects has received a total of $488,000 with which to construct 509 miles of lines to serve approximately 1,500 members. This was the first life sentence ever given a white man by a jury in the Harrison circuit court.

Demonstration In Poultry Culling November 2

Arrangements have been made with the County Agent to hold a poultry culling demonstration at the farm of E. B. Booth near Miranda on Thursday, November 2 at 9 a. m. It is the custom of the County Agent to hold demonstrations to show neighbors of a community how to distinguish between hens which have been or probably will be laying in the near future and to distinguish hens which are non-producers.

The County Agent urges poultry raisers who are interested and not too far distant to attend his demonstration; likewise, he is willing to give a limited number of similar demonstrations in other communities over the county where requests for this service is made, and assurance given that neighbors will attend.

MORE DRILLS FOR GUARD

Two Drills Per Week To Be Held For Next Three Months

Captain G. G. Caywood, commanding officer of Troop A 122nd Q. M. Squadron, 22nd Cavalry Division, local national guard unit, Tuesday received notice that the War Department has ordered two drills per week for national guard for the period beginning November 1 and ending October 31.

Members of the unit will be paid for each drill they attend. The rate of pay ranges from $1 per drill for Privates to $2.50 per drill for first sergeants. Officers will also receive pay for the extra drills.

In addition to the two days' armory training each week, seven days of field training must be completed between November 1 and January 31, regardless of weather conditions.

The War Department was not specific in the conditions of national guardsmen who participated in the two weeks' maneuvers at Plattburg last summer but indications are that drills will increase efficiency of National Guard units.

Senate Vote On Neutrality Bill Probable Today

Senate Speeds Up Action On Measure And Approves Some Amendments

AMERICAN BOAT TAKEN

After three weeks of oratory, the Senate Tuesday put on a burst of speed toward the final vote on the neutrality revision bill and Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley said that a vote on the bill would probably be taken in the Senate today.

The Senate Tuesday disposed of a long list of amendments. It approved changes which would permit American ships to go almost anywhere except to the active zones of the North Atlantic, provided the ships were manned by a cash and carry measure, and permit ordinary trade with Canada across the border or through shelter water and seaways.

With equal speed it turned down an amendment forbidding American ships to go within 300 miles of the European continent or the British Isles, and rejected a proposal that no military aircraft should be sold to belligerents until American national defense needs had been satisfied.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday reported Germany and Russia to surrender the ship and the crew.

Senate Vote On Neutrality Bill Probable Today

Senate Speeds Up Action On Measure And Approves Some Amendments

AMERICAN BOAT TAKEN

After three weeks of oratory, the Senate Tuesday put on a burst of speed toward the final vote on the neutrality revision bill and Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley said that a vote on the bill would probably be taken in the Senate today.

The Senate Tuesday disposed of a long list of amendments. It approved changes which would permit American ships to go almost anywhere except to the active zones of the North Atlantic, provided the ships were manned by a cash and carry measure, and permit ordinary trade with Canada across the border or through shelter water and seaways.

With equal speed it turned down an amendment forbidding American ships to go within 300 miles of the European continent or the British Isles, and rejected a proposal that no military aircraft should be sold to belligerents until American national defense needs had been satisfied.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday reported favorably the nominations of Joseph E. Davies to be ambassador to Russia and Claude G. Bowers to be ambassador to Chile.

4-H Achievement Day To Be Held November 4

The County Agent states that he has reports from the state office indicating that in 1939 over 40,000 club members were carrying projects over the state of Kentucky. It is customary for the state office to set a standard by which for 4-H members serves as a graduation time. At this time record books are handed in for which 1939 year's work is complete are awarded and in many counties a county wide achievement day is held. Since no such county wide achievement day was held last year in Bourbon County the County Agent has been in the county for such a short time that he has considered it best to follow the practice of last year of asking that each club hold community achievement day under the supervision of their leaders. In most cases these leaders will call the club to a point where a ratio is established and thus be in position to receive the best national standards of the achievement program, which will be heard from WHAS from 12:00 to 12:30 on Saturday November 4th.

The Mercury has obtained a new series of these advertisements, to be run monthly, if sufficient interest is shown.
