CO. AGENT NOTES THE GARDEN

Garden Sprays Before this paper a couple times we have explained how to mix phosphate lime or boron. For the small garden it is quite economical to buy it ready mixed and use it as a 14 pound per gallon in the standard proportion.

Personally the writer doesn't like to have a dense fertilizer spray materials around to poison the plants. Each year, advantage and disadvantage consistently good results by using calcium arsenate in your garden and observing closely in sufficient. With two tablespoons of this material per gallon of water thoroughly mixed with air pressure sprayer.

For all plant life and succulent growth, such as ferns, begonia, etc., which require a high degree of humidity, a spray of calcium arsenate is very beneficial. This is especially true in the case of plants in greenhouses or conservatories.

Every producer realized that the best way to increase production is to reduce the number of insects which are causing the trouble. This is especially true in the case of the tobacco grower, who is constantly being troubled by insects.
