FROM OVER THE LINE

(J. W. Rogers)

If all the people all over the land would lend each other a helping hand, wouldn't it be grand?

A prison center called a county jail, a post office failing for U. S. mail, and a farm or building without both, in Carlisle. Think of that.

Hay fever patients coming home, their ships will lie in rock, when frost gets on the pumpkin vine and fodder in the shock.

The death of Mr. Fielding Wills affects us sadly. He was a close personal friend. We were boys together more than three score years ago. Prayed after friend departs. What has not but a friend?

We know that the joys of life seem married, when we follow our friends we were wont to regard—to the cemetery.

SOCIAL and SOCIETY

OCTOBER

(James Courtney Challis)

October, with a lavish hand, now spills
Her wine of flame and gold upon the hills;
It splashes on the slopes and blends into
Rich colorings of almost every hue.
Deep red and russet, orange, yellow, jade,
Grape-blue and green and every shade.
And in the valley hang, like filmy mist,
The results of opal, blue, and amethyst.
Rose-gray and violet, until it seems
All earth is drowsy with the wine of dreams.
I think that somewhere up around the Throne
God's cup of glory must have overflown.
