Plague Follows War.

An epidemic of typhoid fever and dysentery is reported to be sweeping the prison camps of the occupied area of France, with the number of victims estimated at 100,000. The disease in the occupied area have been called upon to take an epidemic of typhoid fever and dysentery to the land with a view to meeting the shortage of such supplies in those sections where Hitler's forces have been victorious.

This is one of the first intimations that the alarming forecasts of the above place where water are about to be fulfilled. The German advance through Holland, Belgium, and Northern France led to death and ruin. Stocks of food were carried to Germany and the native population was left on starvation rations.

This is an ominous word for those who have not heard that the typhoid fever, dysentery, and other forms of pestilence sweep over Europe and the world. The disease is not only a pestilence, but it is also a scourge. In some sections practically the entire population was wiped out. The plague kills in a matter of days, and it would have been the same in the case of the typhoid fever.

The story of this outbreak comes from White on the Pacific continent. It may be true, it may be false, but it is a warning. The disease is not only a pestilence, but it is also a scourge. In some sections practically the entire population was wiped out.

Even in the past few days have there been more convulsions than ever that the German government is absolutely under the domination of Hitler. The dictatorship is established in a matter of days and more toward the east and a "free France" is being organized.
