Roosevelt-Churchill Outline War Aims

On the eastern front in Russia the armies have been engaged in a terrific new struggle this week. In the north the Russian armies defending Leningrad and Moscow seem to have definitely rebound against German attacks. On the southern part of the defense line, south of Kiev, the German armies appear to have driven their wedge between the Russian armies and to be reaching the Black Sea at the port city of Nikolayev, east of Odessa. That city seems to have been cut off. The German forces seem to be to drive the Russians out of the territory between the Dniester River and the Dnieper River. This concentrates the western part of the Ukraine. The Russians report that they have successfully fought a delaying action along the Dnieper River where they say they have strong defense positions. They also claim that they have destroyed hundreds of thousands of Russian soldiers in this area. If this is true, they have done what they say they have done and have not lost too much equipment they should now be occupying their strong defensive positions. Their line would then run practically in a straight line from Leningrad south from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

Navy Seeks Men For Technical Training

"Never in the history of the United States have there been greater opportunity for local young Americans to serve their country and build their futures than right now," said Recruiter Knox.

In outlining the many advantages offered by enlistment in the United States Navy, Power, Navy Recruiting Officer at Knox, said, "It is possible for a bright young man to earn his pay plus seven times during his first enlistment and he can earn as much as $126 a month. This monthly figure is actually worth much more when it is remembered that the man has free indoor canteen and is provided with the finest of medical and dental care.

"You have all your food and clothing and also your original outfit of clothing provided by Uncle Sam free." Mr. Power continued. General Information

Carlisle, the county seat of Nicholas County, with a population of 1,700 is located in the northeast section of the Bluegrass Region of Kentucky, about 34 miles from Lexington, Kentucky. The chief occupation of the people is tobacco and truck farming. Its transportation facilities are as follows: L. & N. Railroad (branch line Lexington to Maysville), U. S. Highway Nos. 68, Kentucky Highway No. 13, No. 32 and No. 36.

In checking the records in this Bureau, I find that the conditions complained of have been brought to the attention of the City Officials several times during the last 10 years. Mr. H. G. McAndrews, Assistant Sanitary Engineer, made a report on these conditions in 1933, and recommended that the City Officials attempt to obtain Federal aid for the purpose of financing a sewage disposal system. The files also reveal that you made a talk to some of the clubs in Carlisle in regard to these conditions in 1937. The gist of it was stated that the sanitary conditions of Carlisle are objectionable. I might state at this point, to again explain the conditions which exist within the city limits.

Water Supply

Carlisle has a municipally owned water plant which was originally started in 1913. At that time a dam was constructed across Licking River, and water was taken by pounding reservoir. This reservoir has been used as a source of supply continuously since that time, but the water did not receive proper treatment until 1928. In 1928 a modern water treatment plant was constructed and this plant is in excellent condition at the present time. In 1937 and 1938 a dam was constructed at the head of the old reservoir and a new and much second impounding reservoir. The finished water is pumped to Ingrad and Moscow seem to have definitely rebound against German attacks. On the southern part of the defense line, south of Kiev, the German armies appear to have driven their wedge between the Russian armies and to be reaching the Black Sea at the port city of Nikolayev, east of Odessa. That city seems to have been cut off. The German forces seem to be to drive the Russians out of the territory between the Dniester River and the Dnieper River. Continuous Activity

THE majority of mankind have been accustomed to considering employment as a material service in which they engage for the purpose of "making a living." When this activity is taken away from them for any reason, and the income which they have been receiving and which is considered necessary for maintaining a comfortable house, ceases, then doubt and fear enter in, together with the suggestion that they must be permanently cut off from any active employment in order to live. This condition of thought is the result of building the center of man as material, finite, and limited in activity.

In the first chapter of Genesis it is clearly stated that man was made in the image and likeness of God. Christ Jesus said, "God is a Spirit" (John 4:24); and in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 256), Mary Baker Eddy has given Spirit as one of the synonyms for God. As a result, man, His image and likeness, or reflection, must be spiritual. . . . Spiritual man is the only man continuously expressing the unintermpted activity of Life, God, Soul, and constantly manifesting intelligence, wisdom, Love, and a clear realization of man's relationship to God when he is at One (p. 3.17). "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

"Well," one may say, "granted that there is spiritual activity, what bearing has that on the problem? I need some concrete material employment that will result in the income necessary to meet my needs." Let me say that I do, but this can be demonstrated and made manifest in our experience only as we are willing to stop thinking about God and man's relation to God, in order to work for, seeking "first the kingdom of God, and then all these things shall be added" (Matthew 6:33), which Jesus said would be followed by the admonition of "all these things" that are needful.

Thomas Edison says, "Genius is 2070 Mrs. Edds says, "God gives us the work, and then gives us the nature, then we give you duffs supplies." It is our receptivity to these ideas which causes them to come to fruitful activity. If we go forth in the spirit of the Master, knowing that we possess those spiritual faculties which he has so generously revealed in the business world today, and holding ourselves in our practice to God, in order to work as we have richer than the wish to be rich, and giving a specific direct us to those who are in need of help, we shall find our business problem Hebrew 6:33b, "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaking together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom."

Sometimes we may be asked to perform services while we have no previously thought were beneath us, but if we give them to our present tasks humbly, gratefully, and efficiently, we shall soon find suitable and congenial occupation. . . . We can all be more active in our expression of the Science of Being in logic by being more watchful and alert for opportunities to help others, by doing some little act of kindness, and giving a word of encouragement to some one struggling under a heavier load than we are bearing.

The thought that inactivity is a result of advancing years is one which has no place in Mental Science. Mind may argue that we are feeble and the body is worn out, we are in business, or, at best, that our opportunities to engage in business activities are very limited by our years, but Truth declares that we are not limited by years, and that we are not limited by years, and that we are not limited by years, and
