Food Program Makes History Evans Says

ing "if you give us plenty of meat from agriculture, we will industrial production from 15 to 20 per cent in 30 days."

"Farmers are rallying this call to the all-out defense program," Mr. Evans said. "This gigantic production plan for 1942 is the farmers' answer to the call for the greatest production in history. It is carrying forward the policy that I have always has been a fundamental part of AAA action since 1933—the policy of balanced abundance.

"Today balanced abundance is taking on an even greater meaning. More than ever before in history national needs of our people are being considered in the production plans of farmers the country over. Today as Americans are able to buy more food, the farmer is acting to stay ahead of increased buying power. At the same time the program is providing us with a foundation for the post-war era if we have the foresight to use it. I am confident we can match agriculture's supply capacity with increased consumption of food to raise the nutritional standards of our people.

"Consumers in this country today need have no fears of food shortage." Mr. Evans stated. Farm prices are better today after a long period of low prices, but they are not unreasonably high. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average factory worker in the first ten departments—or perhaps from some that do not appear in the Federal directories. It is even possible that he knew in advance of the Nazi-inspired revolutions that blew up prematurely in one after another of the South American states. There is nothing new in the German technique of prebellicity strategy. It will be remembered that among the episodes that precipitated our entrance into the first World War was the Zimmerman note—which turned up on President Woodrow Wilson's desk. That was the note in which the Fatherland strily urged Mexico to make South Mexico would join her war on the United States.

Doubtless, der Fuehrer intended his absurd picture of Frank D. Roosevelt forging maps and plans to establish Nazi plots for consumption.

As to the destruction of his ships, that is on the side of the world has any faith in anything that international double-crosser emits. It may be different over there where they had to believe that the Royal Air Force's attacks on peaceful, crumbling Berlin was the "original" for the bombing of "military objectives" in Germany. He did not mention Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's Cathedral in which no military target had been shattered.

So, in Germany, you have to believe Hitler and Mussolini and Rochum, Denmark and Norway and Finland assailed Germany. But in a country where every radio received is operated with a government warning that listening to a foreign broadcast is punishable by imprisonment or death, you had better accept it—and everything Hitler puts forth—or else!

Germany's newspapers carry a cabled story passed by the censor in Berlin, of a restaurant owner being sentenced to two and a half years in the penitentiary for listening to the radio, which was telling of German victories in Africa.

Some comment has been made on the fact that Hitler has not and if German submarines are destroying there would be no announcement of the events.

There have been reports originating from letters to their home folks from men of the pa-tzi force that they had caught Nazis. One referred to two subs destroyed by the subs. The question is asked, should not the American people be told of the sinking of ships that have not been on our side?

Then, the American people have the information on how the Nazi-inspired revolutions in South America have been put down. Even a few days or a week is of value in this connection.

And the psychological effect of suspense and doubt on the German people before that of nerves—explains the riddle.

Dispelling The Fog

By Charles Michelson Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

There is a quaintness and innocuousness about Reich's spokesman's announcement that America began hostilities. Either Herr Hitler must believe that there are no intelligent people left in Germany, or that what he says must be accepted as truth, regardless of either probability or the actual facts.

He tells of our destroyer, the Greer, chasing the submarine for hours. That was the Greer's business. In all probability our warship had opportunities to let go at the Nazi pirate during the time she was keeping cases on it. This was before the "shoot first" order was given, when America's patrol was instructed to watch for and report the presence of raiders in waters of our defense zone. The Greer had been notified that a German U-boat was in her vicinity.

That a British bomber or either British craft had tried to get a submarine lying in ambush to destroy a convoy, had not to do with the case, so far as we were concerned. He remembered that at that time our Navy's functions were, by public announcement, limited to warning and reporting. It was not until three torpedos had been shot at the Greer that she turned and let loose her depth bombs.

Then, of course, after it had developed that the Reich had decided that American waters were fair game whenever and wherever they could get a fair shot at one of them, it was up to our men to get in the first shot if they could.

Coupled with the story of Hitlerbund's romance that the Nazi movement had invented the plot for the division of South and Latin America into Nazi protectorates, and had forced the maps that illustrated for our neighbors to the South were to be distributed—another gem of the tidings furnished the German people.

I have no definite information as to the source from which these documents were drafted, but we all know that when our F. B. I. was running that Nazi spy ring there was its secret radio station. Edgar is certain despite the broad disclosures that were made at the spy trials in which so many defendants pleaded guilty—that one such station was not turned up was revealed.

I daresay that our President has plenty more of this sort of information in front of him still, secured by various intelligence services.

Months of this year could buy 2 per cent more food for his dinner than by could in 1939. Furthermore, it must be remembered that farm prices are still low. Even a few days or a week is of value in this connection.

And the psychological effect of suspense and doubt on the German people before that of nerves—explains the riddle.

FDR To Celebrate Diamond Jubilee

President Roosevelt's coming birthday on January 30th, 1942, on which day the President will be sixty years of age, has been declared his Diamond Jubilee Birthday Celebration.

The President, in a letter to Keith Morgan, National Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis again gave the use of his birthday for the consecutive year to raise funds for the nation-wide fight against Infantile Paralysis.

Mr. Morgan announced that in preparation for the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, a meeting of all of the State Chairmen will be held in Washington on Tuesday, December 2. President Roosevelt will receive the Chairmen at the White House on that day.

Mr. Morgan, in releasing the appointment of the coming celebration of the President's birthday anniversary, said that he believed that all Americans, regardless of age, race, creed, life, and in every hamlet of the country, would be interested to know that in the last three years have been the three worst years in the history of infantile Paralysis in the United States.

He pointed out that the epidemic of the last three years have produced over 25,000 new cases. Analysis of the average cost of treatment for the first year after the onslaught of this disease show that it costs over $1,000 for just one year's treatment per case.

Great Britain is figuring desperately for her life, to which nation and people are intimately and vitally bound—Southeastern (Methodist) Advocate.
