Kentucky Legion Posts To Register Veterans

In a move to strengthen the national defense program in Kentucky and to be ready to act in an emergency, the American Legion announced plans for registering all World War veterans and cataloguing their qualifications and availability.

James T. Norris, state commander, in making the announcement Monday, said it was part of the national program of the legion. While the enrollment will start officially February 22, Mr. Norris said the work would be started at once by the various legion posts in the state.

Veterans, whether or not they are members of the legion, will be asked to register their names, addresses and specific qualifications and experiences. In addition to education, military, police and fire department experience, the veterans will be asked to check off their training or experience in one or more of sixty-seven vocations, trades and professions.

The forms are being sent to the various posts by Thomas H. Hayden, Jr., adjutant of the Kentucky department of the Legion.

Home Guard companies are now being organized in all towns where National Guard units were stationed. The Home Guards are being organized to serve the state in the absence of the National Guard, now in Federal service.

MONEY TALKS

By Frederick W. Stamm, Economist and Director of Adult Education University Of Louisville

In talking about the farm problem last week I stated that the economy Bloc in Congress hopes to cut materially Federal aid to farmers. They point out that prices are higher than a year ago for many agricultural products. Thus, they argue, the farmers do not need such large subsidies.

As a result of the loss of foreign markets, however, farmers of the U. S. will derive only about 3 per cent of their gross income from exports. This compares with 15 to 20 per cent during the 50-year period from 1880 to 1930 and with 8 to 10 per cent during the last decade.

All through the South, where cotton and tobacco are grown, the Great Plains, where wheat is the principal crop, and even into the Pacific Coast fruit-growing area, the loss of export markets is keenly felt.

The South is the hardest hit. Ordinarily, out of an annual production of 12,000,000 bales of cotton, 6,000,000 bales have been exported. This year, however, exports are running at the rate of only 1,500,000 bales. Although our domestic consumption is up around 2,000,000 bales, the carryover of American cotton from previous years will be 15,000,000 bales—the greatest in all our history. How can prices go up in the face of this?

Tobacco is in a similar position. Exports have fallen from 450,000,000 pounds to about 180,000,000 pounds ...
