America Our Home Sweet Home

TO A NATION that can point to approximately 40% of its 130,000,000 people who own their own homes, "Home, Sweet Home" is no mere figure of speech. Here, home has a deeper, richer significance than it has in any other land throughout the world.

Since its glorious founding, America has adopted millions of the hunted, the persecuted and the oppressed. It has taught them the love of tolerance, the love of liberty, and the love of being able to own and to fervently say . . . "Our Home, Sweet Home."

To those few who would lend any moral or physical aid to the forces of dehumanization seeking to violate the sanctity of our home-loving people, a united, aroused, America thunders "Beware."

This reminder of our heritage is presented to you through the co-operation of the following leaders of
