OLD GLORY, pride of our Nation

OLD GLORY, pride of our Nation
 Today there are many in the world that would darken your light of truth, but they cannot, they will not drag down the last remaining symbol of culture and education and freedom.

OLD GLORY, pride of our Nation, you have flown over this our land, the home of the free and the brave, for one hundred and sixty-four years. Today, surrounded by a world of war and hate, you represent everything that can be beautiful for mankind. From the first thread that Betsey Ross put into you to the last star added years afterwards, you stand for freedom and the dignity of man.

Today there are many in the world that would darken your light of truth, but they cannot, they will not drag down the last remaining symbol of culture and education and freedom.

OLD GLORY, here is to your success, to your 164th birthday, June 14, 1941
