POULTRY POINTERS FOR MARCH

(By J. E. Humphreys)

Are you ready for the chick season? If you haven't done the following things you will better not wait one more day for who hesitates may be lost.

1. Clean the brooder house thoroughly by sweeping down all cobwebs and litter scrapping all litter from the floor and scrubbing it with boiling water to which one ounce of lye has been added to each gallon. Then spray with a 5 per cent solution of any good coal-tar dip or Creosol .1 part to 2 1/2 gallons of water is a 5 per cent solution.!

2. Repair the sun porch or build a new one if the brooder house cannot be moved. Ground is considered clean if no chicks have ranged on it during the last two years.

3. Provide suitable feeders and watering utensils. Each chick should have at least one inch of feeder space during the first four or five weeks and two inches thereafter.

4. Order or make arrangements or chicks. Beware of so-called "Bargain Chicks" as they are usually the most expensive in the end. There are many good hatcheries in Kentucky. Buy from the hatcheryman nearest you who is doing a good job in the production of quality chicks.

5. Purchase or arrange for starting feed. Most poultrymen feed a commercial starter during the first 1 to 6 weeks which is usually the best policy. If you mix your own, be sure to use only foods of good quality to make up chick rations. Have feed in the hoppers in the brooder house ready for the chicks when they are put in the house.

"TASTES IN READING"

(By Dr. R. D. Judd, Morehead State College)

It has been stated by eminent authority that "fewer than two people in a hundred read magazines of the type of Harper's, Scribner's, or the Atlantic Monthly." Once out of school the high school graduate tends to let books alone. If his reading tastes have not been properly developed in the grades, there is a great burden placed upon him when he gets to college. The writer holds no brief against those magazines which do serve a useful purpose in their proper sphere. But he cannot help deploring the fact that so many people in America—Reading today is essentially a matter of entertainment rather than of enlightenment. Words are colorless stuff except when they do real service. The movies are making of our youth an unthinking and expectant people. This is a serious matter for democracy. Democracy must be founded upon intelligence. The reader must deal with abstract symbols on the printed page which is a complex response. To deal with images, concepts, ideas. One can neither live nor read by the literal. One must imagine, feel, smell or see it. So also must he gotten not so much through the sense organs of sound and sight as through one's ability to think on the abstract level. It would seem to the writer that we must add something to our program of the movies by giving a wholesome elevated program of reading which will warrant us in expecting a much improved permanent taste in reading.

Compensation By Fraud Serious Offense

Officials of the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission declared today a stricter attitude toward claimants who receive unemployment benefits by falsification and fraud would be pursued in the future by the Commission in all such cases.

"During the early stages of the unemployment insurance program," Robert B. Jones, acting executive director of the Commission declared, "the Commission withheld punitive action against claimants who erroneously received benefits due to the fact that it did not desire to prosecute anyone who may have received undeserved benefits through administrative work the groundwork for these benefits.

"The benefit program has now been in effect for over two years, and it is the Commission's belief that workers have had sufficient time to become acquainted with the provisions of the law as well as their duties and obligations.

"It is open to doubt as to whether he may be eligible for benefits for any period he may be unable to register at local office officials or to write the Commission," Hendrix explained.

In accordance of decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States and the Kentucky Court of Appeals, the Commission will not withhold benefits in connection with registration or benefit claims.

Mr. Hendrix explained that Mr. Jones was ordered to "keep on keeping on" with the unemployment insurance program and that the Commission will continue to administer the law in accordance with decisions handed down by the courts.

Mr. Hendrix explained that the Commission will not withhold benefits in connection with registration or benefit claims.

Bob White Showing Up In Abundance

The Bob White quail seem to be more abundant this year than in many years, according to reports coming to the office of Game Protector Ben Allen. Reports from all sections of the county indicate that the birds are plentiful and that the hunting season will be a good one.

After cutting all the information together and sifting out the most important from it was learned that more quail were seen after January 1 1941 than had been observed during the entire past hunting season by the hundred.

With this encouraging news and with ideal winter weather for quail the past few days, it should mean that there will be a good deal of hunting the remainder of the season.

VOLUME LXXV. ESTABLISHED 1867 CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KY., THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1941 NUMBER 11

Objective Of CCC Camp Is Conservation

United States Department Of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Works

Although soil conservation is a prominent objective of the Carlisle CCC camp, the activities are expected to play an important part in national defense, according to Mr. D. O. Williams, Superintendent.

The boys are not given military training in the camps, Mr. Williams explained, but they are trained of young men to work and to be more useful citizens. A fundamental part of the Civilian Conservation Corps program.

Training quilly control, erosion, sodding, terrace construction, surveying, terrace and strip crop contour lines, planting trees, and plant life are important, and many other types of conservation work are being done by the boys of the camp. But truck driving, surveying, mapping, truck and tractor repairing, bookkeeping, drafting, and numerous other jobs are also everyday occupations of many enrollees.

Conservation plans for 169 farms composed of more than 35,000 acres have been worked up and put into execution by the camp and cooperating farmers in Nicholas, Bourbon, Bath and Harrison counties. This work, combined with that done by other CCC camps and the Soil Conservation forces, have conditioned greatly to saving Kentucky soil and other resources, Mr. Williams said. The training that has been given the thousands of boys who have passed through these camps, however, probably is the most important accomplishment that the CCC has made to the state.

Teaching the boys to work at useful jobs is the principle upon which the training of CCC enrollees is founded. About 90 per cent of the young men who report for duty to the camps have had little, if any, worth while work experience. Most of them were never able to get a worthwhile job before they came to camp.

When they leave the camp after their six months to two years stay, practically all of them are qualified to hold down a job in some useful industry or occupation.

The camp officers, the medical officer, the educational supervisor, and the project superintendent, and technicians form the Soil Conservation Service all cooperate in training enrollees for some useful occupation. It is a practical school for boys, most of whom never finished their high school education. The CCC camp educational teaches theories that have a specific application to the job at hand. "Learn by doing to do doing" is the motto.

When a group of new enrollees first arrives in camp they are given a few days of intensive training in the camp organization. At the end of this short period they are assigned to a foreman's crew in the field. The labor foreman are responsible for training them in the fundamentals of productive work. First the boys learn to use a pick and shovel, to know what a hard day's work means, and to observe the "Safety First" regulations of the camp. From then on, they are assigned jobs of increasing responsibility, according to their capabilities.

Nearly all of the better jobs in camp have various grades of responsibility. For example: Some ten to fifteen truck drivers are needed in each camp. They are generally classified as five under-study drivers of a swampers, and eight to ten drivers hauling men and materials. Drivers who are promoted to haul men have been highly trained in the truck driving class. A boy who wishes to become a truck driver and who shows ability along this line is started out as an under-study and advances until he reaches the top grade, if he proves himself worthy and capable of such promotion.

TEACHES PRISONERS

Passing As Church Worker Man Passes Worthless Check

Rev. W. T. Mason, pastor of the Calvary Holiness church of Lexington, reported to police last week that a man who posed as a church worker issued a worthless check for $50.

Rev. Mason told police that he was visited by a man who presented himself as Alexander G. Patterson, a representative of the Rockefeller Foundation prison service and was in the city to look over the prisons of the nation.

Later the man returned and asked Rev. Mason to indorse him of a bank. Rev. Mason took him to the Citizens Bonks and Trust Company where the man presented a check for $2,125 drawn on a St. Louis bank. It was not good, but the man asked for $50 in cash. When the bank checked with the St. Louis bank it was informed that the check was worthless.

Was the man teaching the prisoners or vice versa?

50,000 Members Is Goal Of Society's Campaign

Fire Damages Mitchelltree Home

Loss Estimated Between Seven And Eight Hundred Dollars

Fire, of undetermined origin, gutted the kitchen and dining room of the home of E. H. Mitchelltree on North street Saturday night about 8 o'clock. The damage was estimated by Mr. Mitchelltree at being between seven and eight hundred dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchelltree were not at home when the blaze was started and it had made much headway before being discovered by a person passing the house.

Although it was not definitely known how the blaze originated, Mr. Mitchelltree said, he believed it must have been from defective wiring or the kerosene stove in the kitchen.

Furniture of the two rooms was a complete loss Mr. Mitchelltree reported. The damage was covered by insurance.

Young Man Locked In Refrigerator Truck

A harmless joke between two young men in Carlisle came close to tragedy Tuesday.

Powell Neal, who works at his father's grocery on Main street and Glenn Gordon, driver of the Kraft Product truck, were the two young men involved. Gordon climbed into the air tight, refrigerator truck and Neal closed the door.

Unknown to Neal the door had an automatic lock that could not be opened. Gordon took the key to the lock in his pocket.

The truck had to be taken to a local garage and the hinges removed, keys handed out through the small opening, and then unlocked before Gordon was able to escape.

The process of opening the door took one-half of an hour and when Gordon emerged the air in the truck had become almost foul. A few minutes more and the harmless prank might have turned into tragedy.

Signing Of Aid Britian Bill Disturbs Axis

By Dr. Charles M. Knapp, Professor of History, University of Ky.

Perhaps what may turn out to be the most significant event for the outcome of the war in Europe occurred in Paris and in the United States on Saturday. Although the action had been foreshadowed for weeks, still the passage of the Aid to Britain bill, by the Senate, after prolonged debate, is certain to affect materially the future course of the war. It is true that the bill has to be acted upon by the House and the amendments added by the Senate, and that it has to be agreed by President Roosevelt, but both should be accomplished by the end of the week at the latest. Thus it will be largely within the President's discretion, upon advice of the military advisors, to make available to Britain those things which Britain most needs, at any time.

It is an action by the United States which has already drawn the charge in the Italian official press that the United States has now actively entered the war. At the least, the passage of the bill will mean that the United States is backing Britain to win and that the immediate fall of Britain will not lack the materials with which to do the way. How much further the United States will go in the near future months to bring about the defeat of the Axis, as a means of the defense of our way of life, only time will disclose.

In the Balkans the game is being played by the diplomats and the powers are moving about by the hundreds of thousands, as in a game of chess. Much propaganda but little definite information has come from the Balkan capitals this week. Nor has the British government disclosed any movements by the forces of her Middle East command, under General Wavell. There have been reports, but they have lacked confirmation, that British forces have been landed at Salonika for the defense of that port and that Greece. Again it has been rumored that, while it is clear to date that the Greeks are determined to continue to fight, the Greeks are withdrawing the civil population of eastern Thrace as well as their troops. Nor is it any clearer what the Turks intend to do as to aid the Greeks or to defend their own frontier, fronting upon Bulgaria.

In Bulgaria thousands of German troops are reported to have entered and to have moved up to the western and southern frontiers. In apparent reply to such moves it is reported today that the Russians have moved masses of troops to the Rumanian frontier and into the Caucasus, either to threaten the German advance and to aid the Turks or to aid the German advance. In these moves as in all others the moves in Libya has been under pressure. Her ministers have been in Germany for conferences with Hitler and other Nazi leaders this week. It is also reported that Jugo-Slavia will resist. Summed up, these moves suggest that Germany wants to force the Balkan countries to align themselves with the Axis, but at the same time she does not want to embark upon a major military campaign at this moment, to compel their cooperation.

In Africa there has been no sign of further activity in Libya. The British have completed control over all of Italian Somaliland and have cut Eritrea in two. It is now reported that they are closing in from all sides upon the main Italian forces around Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia. In the Red Sea, with the capture of Italian ports all Italian naval vessels there and raiding in the Indian Ocean have been captured. In Albania the Greeks continue to report slow advances along the center and western parts of their line. For the third time a change in the Italian command in Albania has been made. British reports no significant changes in the situation at sea or in the struggle waged in the air across the channel.

Local Unit Of Guard Likes Life In Army

Special To The Mercury From Capt. Caywood At Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., March 10. —Completely busy from week's training, the forty-three members of Headquarters Battery 1ttled C. A. A. (Regt.), Carlisle's National Guard unit, are settling down to the routine of soldiering and today started on a program of fifteen weeks of intensive basic training.

The battery is quartered in most comfortable barracks which are modern and a great improvement over the wooden construction of the World War. Uncle Sam's boys in the World War. The barracks are well heated with modern hot air furnaces and well lighted and ventilated. Showers and shavers are in the same building and there is an abundance of hot water at all times. The mess hall is well equipped with modern utensils and large gas ranges. Chinaware is furnished and food is served on the table rather than in the old cafeteria style. The food is good and wholesome.

The weather has not been as severe as expected. Yesterday was rather balmy with the temperature reaching around 45 degrees. No member of the battery has been in sick call and the new soldiers have been a nuisance. However, high overtime has been issued to every man.
