THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

It is not news that home gardeners may successfully save much of their own seed, to cut the first cost of the garden, or better, to use their seed money for fertilizer. The average seed yard plant will fur a person's garden is $6.75, and this will buy 2 sacks of high-grade fertilizer the amount such a garden may need.

The home saving of seed beans is so simple it may be passed over but to insure they be added tomatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, salsify, okra, peas, radishes, lettuce and all the greens. It is not recommended for any of the other vine crops where they are grown close together as in the average garden, for they "mix." There is some truth in the old saying that "a handful of sweet peppers too close to the house."

To save tomato seed, it and the surrounding pulpem should be squeezed into a tumbler as the tomatoes are being sliced at the table, adding a bit of crushed fruit if a few days are to elapse before the seed is saved. The latter two may be left in the garden till the seed is out again whenever spring permits working the soil. Transfered to one's liking may be pursued by the following brief storing conditions, and reset in the early spring.

To save okra seed, all that is needed is to let okra pods ripen on the stalk, gather them one day until they have become dry. Then break the English pea crop or that of "black-eyed peas" may be left until the pods become partly dry to which time the seed has ripened.

Lima beans and all that for all the greens is not difficult to save. Simply let the "seed" of themselves, quite too many to mix the leavings from the previous spring's crop. Bliss Triumph or Irish Cobbler for those potatoes are all have left too much of their vigor because of the use. It is also well not to use "new" seed potatoes.

Tax Collections Up 4 Per Cent Over 1940

State tax collections totalled $2,946,236.19 in August, a 4 per cent gain over August, 1940, according to the monthly report currently issued by the Department of Revenue. The gain continues to reflect the increased property values in business and agriculture.

Collections on alcoholic beverage taxes amounted to $575,240.95, which was an increase of $13,213.13 over August last year and $27,213.13 more than for the previous August, however, this decline is due to earlier payment of certain franchise company taxes. A decline of 9 per cent was registered in road taxes, total collections being $869,618.18. This does not mean an actual decline in gasoline consumption so much as an effect of the change from month to month.

Among other announcements contained in the report, it is noted that the State Local Finance Officer approved a $226,000 refunding bond issue for Calloway county in August. The new bonds are to be exchanged for those in default.

It was further pointed out that for the first time to date a total of 469,356 drivers of motor vehicles had obtained their operators' licenses as against 451,888 for the same period in 1940. Suspensions of 3,000 licenses in August doubled the number for the same month, indicating a stricter enforcement of the law.

Tokyo Hints Truce As U. S. Stands Firm

A Japanese official recently roared an attack on the United States and Great Britain "for their unpardonable crimes" and called on Japanese patriots to fight "if Japan cannot reach a peaceful settlement through diplomatic channels."

The speech was one of the most outspoken attacks upon the United States and Great Britain delivered by an official Japanese personage, but was not taken as a direct close to Japan is really trying to patch up its relations with Washington and the United States, but many believe Japan is too deeply involved in the "new order in East Asia" to yield readily to Washington.

Even if resent negotiations are completed, it will be several months before business relations between the two countries will be anything like normal.
