Independence Day

It has been more than one hundred and fifty years since Thomas Jefferson wrote the words which have become the motto of our nation. It is the year that the little people, the John Does, must hold their heads high in every continent on this globe.

"An Editor's Random Thoughts"

Editor: I've read several readers' contributions to the Carlisle Mercury and I am much obliged to you for printing them. It is my hope that you will continue to print them as long as they are of interest to the community. I have been thinking about the time when our country was first settled by the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving. It was a time of hardship and struggle, but it was also a time of faith and hope. Our country has come a long way since then, and I am proud to be a part of it.

Thoughts while journeying. Nothing so mythical as the sunlight of old days in late August. There is a certain magic about this time of year, a sense of history and tradition that is hard to put into words.

CARLISLE MERCURY, CARLISLE, KY., JULY 2, 1942

ber my first visit to a rambling little village, now by the C. & O. or else by mile to it. I remember the weather being unusually cool. There were concrete streets in Morehead and stone paths where the first English settlers came. It was in the path of a soldier that I saw a great Normal School. Time works its wonders even with little villages. In the path of a soldier that I saw a great Normal School. Time works its wonders even with little villages. In the path of a soldier that I saw a great Normal School. Time works its wonders even with little villages.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

Directors of the Low County Fair Association have cancelled the fair for the duration of the war. The association has decided to postpone the fair until after the war is over. This decision was made after a long and difficult discussion. The association members felt that it was not in the best interests of the community to have the fair during these difficult times.

DISPELLING THE FOG

"Local elections will be more important than ever before," we are told. We are told that the people are waking up to the need for change. We are told that the government is failing and that we need to take action. We are told that the future is uncertain and that we need to prepare ourselves. We are told that we need to elect leaders who will stand for the people and who will work to improve our lives.

Revolution. It inspired the peoples of South America to throw off the cruel Spanish yoke. And everywhere comes to hope for a happier world. It is the year that the little people, the John Does, must hold their heads high in every continent on this globe.
