think this court is properly constituted and we are taking no part in the matter."

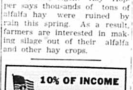
Judge Burnam then asked Mitchell if he wanted an attorney and get no response from him.

The defense offered no plea since no witnesses were present which the Commonwealth had in this courtroom and the prosecution rested its case. Judge Burnam then asked Mitchell if he wanted to make any statement and he answered "No." Mitchell was taken to jail immediately after the trial to start serving his life sentence. Mitchell filed of the payment of the fine the title of the north African battle zone. Several days after the British Expeditionary Force had been driven from the continent of Europe and in Finland on the north and central fronts. They had been driven back deep in to the Donets Basin from the Crimean in the south. They had lost the Kerch peninsula and Sevastopol, the great naval base on the eastern end of the Crimean peninsula, had been under siege for nearly nine months. But Russian resistance was still strong there. The defending factor in all this desert war was the problem of supply. While there is a threat from Japan to Egypt and the Suez Canal and the middle east in view of the German drive in the Crimea, the situation is really not a lot more critical than it was five years ago when the Italians had advanced well inside the Egyptian frontiers.

The United States and the War. In the United States at the moment are King Peter of Jugoslavia, King George of Greece, and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, as well as Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain. Only a few days ago the Russian foreign minister, Molotov, left Washington. That plans of great significance have been under discussion is obvious. In the Australian Islands the Japs now hold two islands, Kiska and Attu, though they can be of value only as outposts to scout against our bombers in the north Pacific. The most unfortunate phase of the war for the U. S. now is the continued sinkings of merchant shipping off the Atlantic coast. In one year, yesterday, on June 21, 1941, the armies of Adolf Hitler attacked Russia in the belief that the Soviet Union would be forced to capitulate before winter, with its intense cold, should come on. That date the Russian armies were still fighting, and reverses which had been driven back from their advanced positions on the Russian front and in the Crimea.

THIS WEEK IN THE WAR

Also Clancet of Warren county put seven acres of baltio rye and vetch in a silo, adding two bushels of corn meal to the ton of hay. Will Stout filled a silo with alfalfa, using 70 pounds of blackstrap molasses to the ton. County Agent Ray Hopper says thousands of tons of alfalfa hay were ruined by rain this spring. As a result, farmers are interested in making silage out of their alfalfa and other hay crops.



Two Thousand Lambs Sell High on Local Mart

Biggest Sale of Year at Farmers Yard—Prices Good as Packers Vie

With more than two thousand lambs on the sale and with representatives of every leading packing company on hand to compete in the bidding, the Farmers Stock Yards Tuesday had its largest sale of the year and from a standpoint of prices, one of the best sales since the yard was founded.

There were exactly 2,116 lambs on the sale and the top price of $15.60 was enough to please the farmers who brought their offerings, and the demand from the selling interest broke of lambs were strong from the opening gong to the close, on $14.60 to $15.25.

And although lambs made the big gains, the sheep market was steady to strong.

Veal calves were a trifle weak, selling 50 cents lower for the week with the top offerings bringing $14.50. Bulls sold to $14.65. Shoats reached $15.40 in the hog division and packers were at $14.65. But a little market was about steady with a week ago.

Receipts and quotations follow:

Cattle Receipts, 197 steers, $13.50 to $15.65; heifers, $12.50 to $14.50; cows, $10.50 to $12.50; bulls, $12.50 to $14.65; calves, $8.50 to $14.50.

Feeding to Heavier Weights Profitable

Due to the favorable corn and hog ratio, farmers are being urged to buy more feeder hogs and feed them to heavier weights before marketing. In other words, instead of marketing 200 pound hogs, as has been the tendency recently, farmers are urged to feed their hogs to heavier weights, around 250 pounds.

Fats are needed now, and farmers can help the situation, as well as from a money making standpoint, if hogs should be made to weigh heavier before marketing. Lard is in great demand for making Lend Lease, and producing a greater per cent of this product than the lighter weights.

These heavy weights should not be too long in the "making" by limited feeding. Full feed during a balanced ration on pasture is good practice. It requires little more feed for each pound of gain, and by pushing the hogs there will be less risk from death. There will be a quicker turnover of your investment of money. The hogs will be out of the way so more attention can be given to other farm operations. E. L. Wilhoit, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Returns from One Ewe Total $40.61

There's money in sheep, says County Agent Ralph D. Wilchester of Russell county. Here's why: Chester Gosser of Russell county received $40.61 for lambs and wool produced by a three-year-old ewe. She had triplets. She cost $9.75 when Gosser took her out of a band of northwestern ewes two years ago.

Mrs. Clyde Stewart this week had a letter from her brother, Ben W. Murray, in Australia. He is an aviation chief machinist mate. It was the first word in five months.

Tenant Income Increase Noted

FSA Borrowers Gain in Food Production, Money Made, O'Neal Asserts

A 60 per cent increase in net income and nearly 50 per cent increase in home food production have been chalked up for FSA borrowers in Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia who have taken advantage of all or part of the rehabilitation loans and advice on farming furnished by the U. S. Department of Agriculture Farm Security Administration.

John B. O'Neal, County FSA Supervisor gave out figures Tuesday that FSA borrowers in the state region have increased their net incomes from $506 to $1,000 in two years. Their food production is 862 in 1941 as compared with 100 in 1939. These figures are taken from the annual nationwide survey of farm families. Other interesting facts from which have been compiled

The former farmers increased their milk production for home use from one to 600 gallons per family or 58 per cent. Fruits and vegetables canned for home use increased from 296 quarts to 500 quarts, or 65 per cent; and meat and poultry rose from 200 pounds to 367 pounds, an increase of 61 per cent.

Last year the average farm family of former FSA borrowers produced and used 132 dozen eggs.
