Why Not A Ceiling For Labor?

It is the opinion of many to stop the war inflation which accompanied the last war... and which would mean a real wage of labor below pre-war levels...

Everybody talks about March coming in and going out like the lion and the lamb... but who ever saw a lion and a lamb together?

You might figure that it is a matter of opinion... but the fact is that it is a matter of fact...

Consider just a minute. Congress voted recently to extend the national debt ceiling to $120,000,000,000... that means when the $12 billion dollars...

And the laborer who makes it... will have to be paid... and the laborer who makes it...

It wasn't a pretty picture which was drawn when this country was getting its first war... the inflation of the war...

As far as a dollar picture, his estimate of pre-war... seems to us to be the most far-sighted...

From which side should a cow be milked?... the question is not a simple one...

What is a Dutch collar?... it is a collar that is made of a different material...

The President asked that industry... should be made to pay for the cost of the war...

Regulation, yes. We don't want things going skyward as they did in the last war... but regulate labor, too.

Congressman Chapman And The Merry-Go-Round

There has been much said in past days about the Sixth Congressional District and defense work. Not being a business man, we never heard of such a little matter as not being in business...

Congressman Chapman is a few days later, solemnly dissenting, but he had said anything that he never had believed that he had made any such statement...

All this seems a whole lot like a temper tantrum in a report to the nation's importers in the light of the defense program which confront us...
