To The Mercury,

Probably you have already seen this before and maybe not. If not, I am sure it will be of interest to Nicholas County and if you had seen it, you might not have paid any attention to it.

Originally I was a soldier in Hdq. Battery, later transferred to Battery "C" which "Steve" Meckle commanded, also I knew One Skunk and Spotted Horse, Sioux Indians, transferred to us from Fort Snelling, Minn. Also I knew Robert Haines. I also knew Chief Fernandez for I made a bet with Jim Butler that his hair would be black. I lost, it was dark brown. Chico was a selectee from New York. Undoubtedly, this Indiana, transport in the fray were the 163rd Coast Art., known here as Graham's Crackers, but lost their identification when they embarked from here. Taylor Snoding can identify Bear and me except the Indians. They came to us after he left—also Stanley Storey.

Rangers Have Written Proud Pages in History

The Rangers who are writing a new page in American history today as the first of the AEF to invade Hitler's Europe take with them from an intrepid band which helped lay this country's groundwork in 1600.

They were Rogers' Rangers, an 18th century version of the modern commando unit, a colonial outfit raised by an American frontier soldier, Robert Rogers.

Under Rogers' daring leadership in the campaigns around the Lakes George in upper New York state, those early-day rangers became known for their prowess and endurance—the traits for which their namesakes now are chosen.

Rogers and his men in the Montreal campaign of 1759.

Later, Rogers and his men took part in seven of the north's western posts, including what is now Detroit, and were present at the battle of Bloody Ridge.

Rice Valmer, first American newspaperman to visit a ramp of the U. S. Rangers—A1Yo—is an ex-Associated Press and a non-sportsman since 1921. He went to northern Ireland on correspondent with the American expeditionary force in January, 1942, and was on the first encampment with the United States Army, consisting of Texas and Oklahoma in Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, and the Carolinas.

Rice joined Associated Press in Harrisburg in July, after working on the old Telegraph and Patriot and the Harrisburg Times, the Pittsburgh Press and the Pittsburgh Gazette.

Just to show them what a trained ranger is reported to do, their British instructors walked a deer in the forest and the rangers were surrounded but let Scot leaped upon him and killed him with a knife.

Land mines and grenades scattered on with mud and water. Rifle target practice with bullets ringed by so close that one gun barrel burned a hem slung from a Ranger's belt. Another nicked the guard of a bayonet atop one soldier's pack.

Earlier in their training, a hand grenade had landed, fuse smoking, in one Ranger boat. Private Clayton Schooley, 22, of Munsing, Mich., picked up the sizzling bomb and with a shout of "overboard!" flung it into the water.

Armory Notes

The local Militia unit has received 11 overcoats in short order. The company's insignia is on the sleeve of the coat. These coats are of the mackinaw type and are strictly army style. Men of Company G are expecting the rest of their uniforms real soon.

Several different classes have been started in the last few weeks. A regular training program has been received from Frankfort and classes which will be conducted on this program were started on Monday night, August 31. Study of the shotgun and sub-machine gun with instructions on care and use of these guns included most of the ninth session. One-half hour of drilling took place.

Some of the men from Company C are attending the classes now in session on Civilian Defense.

Attendance of the men has held up fine with more than 30 men present at each drill. All the men are taking great interest in the company and are doing their best to be prepared in case of any emergency.

The WAAM's went to Paris on Wednesday, Sept. 2 and attended the Kentucky Centennial parade there. All members of Company B are now in uniform and are taking great interest in their work."

Pvt. Betty Dollins was elected Company Clerk of Church Worthick as Company Cashier.

The WAAM's have been doing their part in selling war bonds this war. They took part in selling over $700 of War Bonds and Stamps at the ball theatre last week.

Regular meetings of the Company will be resumed and has been postponed until after the Civilian Defense classes have been completed. All men who are enrolled in these classes.

If the people of Carlisle will back the WAAM's as they have in the local Militia Company B, the Civilian Defense Unit will be a success in no time. Any way with everyone carrying out their share of protective work."

Right Motives and Aims

HUMAN thought and endeavor are constantly tending toward a goal. No sooner is an objective attained than another is pursued. In the struggle for attainment, moral necessity is tested, and it rises or falls according to the purpose and motive of the individual. Strife which has as its goal personal power, personal advantage, personal success, is engendered in the frigid zone of selfishness and swells the moral mercury downward, whereas strife for the betterment of humanity in which one's own good is allied with that of every other individual, is begotten of a heart that glows with the sunshine of unselfish love, where the moral mercury tends ever upward.

Human experience is beset with temptation, and each one must decide for himself whether he will serve God or mammon. "No man can serve two masters," declared Christ Jesus. "For either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other" (Matthew 6:24). When Moses undertook to lead the children of Israel out of Egyptian bondage, he found it necessary in the perilous journey through the wilderness to establish a strict moral code as a standard for thought and action, and he received from God the divinely inspired Decalogue, or the Ten Commandments. These admit of no divided allegiance. It calls for unqualified love for God and man. "Hallowed," said the poet, "will not hide the loving." So Israel's purpose is to conform his life to the Sinaitic pattern will emerge from every contest of error stronger and better equipped for the service of God and humanity, whereas selfishness weakens moral stamina, undermines the capacity for true service, blinds, fear, pride, and hatred become the fruits of the soil of selfish ambition, while selfless service yields its rich reward in happiness and the fruits of righteousness—confidence, courage, peace, joy, love, and allied virtues, which reflect divine light.

Selfish pursuits have only human will for their arising and support. Therefore their limited achievements fall of permanent good. True progress in the moral and spiritual betterment of mankind, has divine authority for God is Love. God's purpose and plan for His children are always good. His blessings are universal and bountiful. Being love, He cannot be the fountain of evil. He is the source of the greatest good to the greatest number in accordance with divine Love and supported by complete love. It is the cure and goal of fruition. When one's effort is aligned with God's purpose, true success is sure.

In proportion to the selflessness of motive and purpose are the fruits of labor enriched and the opportunities for service increased. Christ Jesus' teaching of love and freedom to sweep and assist, when Mary Baker Eddy in the first Church of Christ Scientist textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," wrote: "Love is the divine principle of all true Godly and humble deeds. Patience and humility will attain the highest good and should animate mankind for the mission. Likewise one whose motive is love for God never lacks opportunity for service. True service includes the expression, whether it takes the form of a single word or the feeding of a hungry human. The spiritual ideal of love for God and humanity stands before an open door which neither age nor circumstances can shut behind with the love which reflects divine love can never be turned from responsibility, and, supported by the power of God's understanding of the omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence of God, divine Mind, he is not weakened by fear, hindered by pride, or handicapped by prejudice. Confidence and courage are his to overcome strife and enmity; his hand for the performance of works that are acceptable to God, acknowledges no handicap, accepts no limitations. Bible Studies and trials only sharpen the edge of endeavor, and from ideal he learns the way to make the service more error thereby gaining a higher understanding of God, divine Principle. . . .

Human history shows that those who have accomplished most of lasting good are those who have loved God and reflected Him in their thinking and living. And as it is written, For Love is God.
