Dear Mother,

Will try to write you again as I know you are worrying about me as all mothers do. I don't know honestly I don't know why.

I am well and fine. Hope this finds you and Mr. Hamilton the same.

I never saw such rainy weather before. Have seen the sun shine only one day.

This is a very beautiful country, and looks a lot like the country around home. Only when I stop and think do I realize I am so far away, but then we hope not to be gone so long.

The people here are very nice to us "Yanks" as they call we Americans.

The place where I am is the finest I have ever been in including the quarters and food.

I am closing now as there isn't much I can write. I am hoping to hear from you soon.

Your loving son,
Craig Barten

Dear Mother and all.

I will try to answer your letter received yesterday. I was glad to hear from all of you. I am well and enjoying myself. This place isn't like Atlantic City but I like it better.

I started to school December 1 and I like it fine. Most of the school is practical work. Thursday we went to the rifle range and I will have 56 days of school before we go to camp. I am hoping I don't complete as one of them out of the 56 days. I have to shoot 140 out of 150 to qualify. I will not know the results for two weeks. I will be glad when the test is over.

Atlantic City . . . .

Well, I'll close for now. Be sure and write often. I have been getting your letters fine. Will be glad to get mail. Would love to have you write.

Love,
Jesse F. Mann

Dear Mom and all:

Received your card a few days ago and was glad I received your letter. Mercury. Sure was glad to hear from you. Will answer it soon.

Love,
William Hawkins

Dear Mother: I didn't want you to worry because I hadn't written. I would have had plenty of time to write last night if I hadn't gone to the picture, but it was a good picture and I hope you'll forgive me for going and not writing. After the movies I had to go on watch until 12 o'clock so that's why I didn't write last night. I was on watch for about 2 hours. There's another good one on tonight. It's named "Syncopation" the name of the movie. It's more about a horse. There's another good one on tomorrow night, the title of the movie.

There is one thing I want to get straight. I'm not brave, and I don't believe that 80 out of every 100 persons that are drafted on these boxes are brave. If the truth were known, we all are conscientious objectors.

We don't object to going over there and fighting, but I object to that unnecessarily as I can.

So you won't have to be both-ered with this department any more. I guess your gain will be Uncle Sam's loss, for my shooting hasn't improved any since the days I hunted squirrels and bunting for anything with a gun.

Crops to Meet at Annual Farm. Home Convention

Farm organizations, livestock producers and other groups interested in special problems will convert the last week and a half of January into a series of meetings in connection with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics January 26 to 30, inclusive, it was announced by Dean Thomas P. Cooper.

Approximately 1,000 men and women will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the dean said.

The Kentucky Purebred Livestock Association, the Kentucky Cattle Clubs and the Kentucky Rural Church Council are among organizations scheduled to meet. Special sessions also will be held for men and women interested in livestock production, dairying, poultry keeping, beekeeping, fruit growing, farm engineering, and weed improvement.

Sergeant Alvin C York, hero of World War I, will speak at the joint session and again at the meeting of rural pastors. Fred Wallis, Paris, will preside at the latter meeting.

Auction marketing will be considered at a meeting where speakers will include Robert Jones of North Middleton, Cecil Ensor of Louisville and Grenet Thornton of Lexington. Other speakers on marketing will include Ben Price, Jr., of the Office of Defense Transportation and Harold Woosley, secretary of the Kentucky Dairy Products Association.

With Mrs. P. W. Adkins, president of the Kentucky Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, women will hear Dr. Raymond Miller, president of Berea College.

Farm owners will be interested in a talk by M. G. Holmes, master of the National Grange, and a report of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard's wartime agricultural policies. Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, will speak at the banquet Thursday night.

Other speakers will include Governor Keen Johnson, Commissioner of Agriculture Ben Adams, Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, and Dr. Thomas Poe Cooper.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

A canvass in Hopkins county showed about 50 per cent increase in acreage to tobacco in 1941. About three-fourths of the increase came from the large number of boys raised. The rest was due to heavier acreage to each boys were sold.

T. N. Williams of Monroe county sold 21,000 pounds of sugar-cane from 22 acres, netting him $667. Mr. Williams says this income was favorable with that of the same acreage of corn, and was less labor.

In Wolfe county, growers of hybrid corn are enthusiastic over its use. S. E. McGuire planted all his corn on good hill land. The hybrid yielded 60 bushels of the acre and stood up well, while his corn next to it yielded only 20 bushels and blew down badly.

Poultry and egg production were increased about 9% per cent in Trigg county in 1942 over the preceding year. Twenty-five hundred pullets and 10 laying hens were built and 12 remodeled, while 140 purebred sires and feeding protein supplements to their laying hens.

In Ohio county, the Buford Homemakers Club in cooperation with a parent-teacher association is sponsoring a lunch room to the neighborhood school. The homemakers contributed large equipment, and in the summer canned fruit and vegetables for the lunch room.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brownfield of Pendleton county are developing a flock of bread-breasted bronze turkeys. Of more than 1,000 produced for market in 1942, 40 per cent were of the bread-breasted variety, for which there is a strong demand.

Soybean marketing has reached an all-time high in Logan county. Approximately 20,000 bushels are already in storage, with about 5,000 more bushels to come in. It is expected that a larger acreage will be planted to this crop in 1943.

About 30,000 cases of tomatoes were canned at plants in Scott county.

Save Tobacco Stalks, Manure

A ton of manure properly used may be worth $10, says the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Tobacco stalks are worth still more. Here are some suggestions offered by the college:

Keep tobacco stalks under cover until spread on growing crops during the winter or early spring, such as small grain, sod or meadow. Even light rains cause rapid leaching.

Spread timely. Stalks as soon as spread fairly are material-ly more valuable as manure as parts of bedding. Bedding absorbs liquid manure, which is high in nitrogen and potash. Straw, chaff weeds, corn stalks and leaves are also good bedding and more manure.

Keep livestock under shelter during wet, cold weather. Less feed is required for them and more manure is collected; and less plant food is lost by leaching.

Haul manure from barn manure directly from the barn and spread on the field.

When necessary to pile manure out, make straight sides, compact with flat tops, or use manure pit.

Spread on growing crop or just before plowing and disking. Wind, rain, freezes, and sunshine hasten the loss of nitrogen from manure when left on the surface.

Use manure on the most valuable crops.

Use of phosphate in connection with manure gives additional results from both manure and phosphate. Superphosphate is needed.

Light applications of manure, spread evenly, future greatest results. Four to 8 tons per acre is a good application.

Don't permit manure to wash in the barnyard. Gather up often and protect until spread.

The value of manure dropped on pastures by animals is greatly increased when broken up and scattered with a harrow or some form of drag.

Dec. 21, 1942

Editor and Friends.

It has been about six weeks since I arrived in the state of Georgia. Fort Benning, the southmost part of the state. I had hard much about the Georgia line and believe me there are nothing but pine forests around although it makes a pretty scenery, the weather has been most pleasant except for some rain and a few frosts.

We started our basic training Dec. 7th just one year after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. We are supposed to have thirteen weeks of this training. I was placed in Medical Corps with the ambulance platoon, but was transferred today to the Headquarters platoon of the Medical Most of the first and second. Lieutenants are doctors. We attend class under them, learning the ways of caring for the sick and wounded in the battle zones. With a few more weeks of training I believe I will be able to tell whether a man is dead or alive. One of the officers in class the other day said the mission of the medical was to see that the wounded don't die and that I believe every man here will try to do if and when it comes.

We have been taught some about chemical warfare, how through the gas chamber with our gas mask on, then on the second go around we removed them. That is when we got that tear gas it was. We suffered no ill effects, but it was most unpleasant at the time. One boy who had received a couple of shots in the arm that morning wrote his girl stating "Hello Dear, was shot twice this morning and gassed once this afternoon, and feeling fine." Some guy I say.

We also have our drills and hikes, four hikes in all, the last one being fifteen miles. The saying of the boys is that we have been all over hell and half of Georgia. I don't believe that man has anything on the boys here when he moved through Georgia.

You see we have quite a bit of work to do but we have time for amusement and there is always something to make a fellow laugh. Just a few you see this week are really humorous to me. I was in camp only a few days when the Sergeant outside of the barracks asked for all those who were alien (foreign born) to add up their hands. Being a way down the line I misunderstood the question. I held up my hand also. The Sergeant who had known me by this time and knew I was from hollowed, "Put Dunn, put down your hand. We know you are an alien for you were born in Kentucky."

Well friends, with that I will close, wishing each and every one Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,
Pvt. J. B. Dunn

Dear Mom,

I received a letter from you today, the first I have gotten since we have been here. They sure have our mail messed up but I haven't received a letter from Margaret for 3 days and I have just gotten a letter from school and this really is some night to be out. There is about two inches of snow on now and still snowing hard, but it isn't cold. I guess Ray will be here any half track. If you don't know what that is you are really missing something
