Farm War Workers Placed In Nicholas

Three Menifee county farm workers were employed on Nicholas county farms on July 9, according to Clay Bieley, Farm Labor Assistant, at the County Agent's Office. Those placed were Ralph, 19 years old, was employed by Harold Mitchell of Moorefield, Clotis Shrout and Rushel Likens, Marsha, Ky., ages 15 and 16, were employed by Gilbert Collins, Lisville. These workers were employed on a full time basis and will work throughout the harvest season.

A delegation of farmers from Nicholas county went to Menifee county on July 9, to investigate the possibility of securing full - time war workers, to be used on a monthly basis, and the workers, to secure board and room on the farm. The group who went to Menifee county are Russell Barnes, C. E. Sexton, Gilbert Sellers, Harold Mitchell, Catlett Everett, Clay Bieley and W. T. Straw.

Several prospective workers will be available from Menifee county to work on Nicholas county farms. A plan is being followed whereby the farmer needing help will fill out an application, listing the work that needs to be done, the length of time the worker will be needed and a statement of the working conditions. A copy of this application will be secured from recruited farm workers, stating their skills and approximate conditions of employment. Copies of the worker's application will be available at the County Agent's office at Carlisle for farmers to investigate.

The actual agreement between the farmer and worker is made by these two parties. Therefore, it will be necessary to definite interview to be made by the farmer and the farm worker. Farmers should make application in advance of definite need for workers, because several days may be required to complete arrangements, and actually hire workers. In all cases it will be necessary for the farmer to go to Menifee county and interview prospective laborers.

There are several day hands available in Nicholas county to work on farms. These are available on a day-to-day basis. Applications for these workers should be made a day or two in advance of the need.

EVERY HOUSE TO BE CANVASSED

Legion's "More Records For Fighting Men" Campaign Underway

It is the intention of Nicholas Post No. 17 of the American Legion to be canvassed by its members and by the canvassers of the members of the American Legion Auxiliary for old, unused, cracked and broken phonograph records during the "More Records for More of our Fighting Men" campaign which began July 3, according to Ben F. Osborne, commander of the Post. The canvass that will be made will be duplicated nationally on July 10, when 11,897 posts of the Legion and 9,007 units of the Auxiliary in every town and city. The campaign runs through July 31.

The wives, mothers, fathers and children of the men who are now in the armed forces of the United States are volunteering their services for the campaign and those services have been accepted. It is felt that no one can know the need of the men in the services better than the loved ones at home.

This is the second campaign to be undertaken by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. A similar campaign in 1942 resulted in collecting enough old records to pay for more than 57,000 new disc, which have been distributed to American fighters, stationed all over the world.

Old phonograph records are practically useless to most people and are "dead" assets to the owners—they contain the material from which new records are made, and this is the only source now for this material.

The American Legion realizes that our fighting men need entertainment and we want them to have the kind they most desire. In these phonograph records are the only way our boys can find relaxation and recreation at all.

The essential soundness of collecting old records and turning them into cash with which to buy new discs was recognized by the Legion last year and it has proven its sound economy.

It is not difficult to help out in this campaign. All anyone has to do is search his house for old records and ask your neighbor to search his house. Get the records together, then call the American Legion at Telephone No. 13 and someone will call and collect the records. That is all there is to it, but the Legion will look after the shipment of old records and the purchase and distribution of the new ones. And there's many a boy on the fighting front, on the far off island or in the mountains of Africa or Italian and he will be mighty happy because of your letter. Let's draft every old record we can find and send it to war.

Dark nights are dark cat nights. No lights, no radio, no reading. Just sit and think.

Old cold sweat runs from every pore.

Down your nose and from your chin.

"Onward, Christian Soldiers" is all I recall.

Oh, for a record that would play it.

Our old unwanted records will send it to him.

Let's send them thru the American Legion.

Before Records for More of Our Fighting Men."

NEED STORAGE FOR VITAL FOODS

Overseas and Home Demand Must Be Offset By Vast Salvage Program

Tons of vitally needed food will be lost to waste in the United States unless the salvage and distribution of waste containers is stepped up appreciably to offset the current shortage, a spokesman for the nation's leading buyer of fresh fruits and vegetables said.

From the south as well as other sections of the country come reports of production losses suffered when wooden crates were not available at the time crops were ready to be harvested.

The shortage is due largely to the diversion of millions of containers to overseas shipment of army food and equipment. The boxes and crates sent to war never come back, and are almost impossible to replace on account of lack of wood and wood pulp and a shortage of labor.

The emergency which threatens essential wartime food can be relieved by cooperation of growers, distributors and retailers in reclaiming used containers. Many distributors are already cooperating by salvaging large quantities of containers from stores and returning them to producers for re-use.

In connection with the lumber shortage phase of the problem, many types of wood, such as cypress, ash, pine and others formerly used by box manufacturers, are now going into the production of smokeless powder, rayon for powder sacks and parachutes, containers for shipping ammunition, and planning papers and many other wartime essentials. There has also been a shift of labor from box-making to war plants.

Nicholas Man Is Prisoner Of War

A R Shrout, of the Mt. Carmel road, has received a letter from the International Red Cross stating that his son, Sanford Ray Shrout, 25, who was reported missing in April, 1942, is a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippines. The letter was addressed to Sanford Shrout's wife, Mrs. Alla P. Shrout, and sent to his father's address in an attempt to locate her.

Young Shrout, who enlisted in the Navy in 1937, was married to Rosalin Jill and she and their husband-to-be were last heard from in China. Mr. Shrout has not heard directly from his son since August, 1941, and had no news of him since he was informed by the War Department that he was missing after the battle of Manilla Bay in April, 1942.

DRAFT OF FATHERS AND 38 - 45 MEN MAY BE DROPPED

Plans To Reduce Inductions In The Armed Forces Studied By Military Officials

CHINA—RUSSIA CHIEF POOLS

United Press dispatch by Lyle Wilson, dated Washington, July 13 states that fathers of children conceived prior to Pearl Harbor and registered men in the 38-to-45 years bracket would not be inducted for military service until tentative plans now being considered by the administration.

Selective Service authorities, however, would retain authority to induct any man who balked at transferring from non-essential to essential employment.

It was understood here that a number of factors contributed to consideration of a program which would materially reduce the monthly induction schedule. A major factor was the role the United States must play as an "arsenal of democracy," not only in supplying Russia and China with munitions and other goods but in making certain supplies available to those in occupied countries as the areas are liberated.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.) recently revealed that the Army had decided to cut the July induction quota almost in half. From other sources here it was suggested that inductions might be reduced to about 100,000 a month. No decision, however, has been made.

The chief United Nations manpower pools are China and the Soviet Union. The United States originally undertook to raise an armed force of approximately 11,000,000 men. At present the figure now is in process of re-examination, primarily because of the necessity of maintaining production But it also appeared the potential French Africa did not figure in original calculations.

Members of the House Military Affairs Committee went home for the congressional recess convinced that the need for drafting fathers would not arise before their return Sept. 14, if at all.

Chairman Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) hopes that his committee will have specific information on the question of drafting huge fathers by mid - September. He tried before the recess to get an official indication of the prospective date when the Army expects to begin drafting fathers. But Bratery, written to Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commission chairman, produced little definite information.

"But I understand," May said, "that the Army has established a time before which it does not intend to call bona fide fathers."

There has been much confusion about manpower and the induction rate, some of which was attributed to the fact that changing conditions presented changing problems. In mid-April McNutt explained new regulations which seemed to mean that all registrants between 18 and 38, except 3,200,000 deferred occupational deferments, would be inducted by Jan. 1, 1944.

To Study Erosion Problems To-Night

A group of neighbors of John G. Allison is invited to Allison's home at 8 o'clock to-night, July 15, to study soil erosion and water control problems. One purpose of the meeting will be to learn what services Di Soil Conservation Service can render.

Work Unit Leader, M. P. Nichols will be present to explain these services and what may be expected of the New Nicholas County Soil Conservation District. Mr. Nichols explained that under the District arrangement it was necessary to make a very complete and effective individual plan on each farm worked on, nevertheless, he hoped in each instance to do much of the preliminary work with groups. This would make more efficient use of his time and also enable many more farms to be benefitted by the service.
