Letters from Our boys In Service

Camp Livingston, La.
January 30, 1943

Dearest Mother and Daddy,

I just finished reading your swell letter. It was terribly sweet. I do so much love to get them. I wrote you during my last days in Carrabelle, Fla. Did you get it? Today also I received your swell box. Gosh it was wonderful, really. Everything was in perfect shape. The boys in my tent went crazy over the cake and everything else as far as that is concerned. One fellow said he would marry the girl who baked the cake. I said I would be very happy to marry one like her myself. I think an awful lot of my mother and dad, of course my brothers and two sisters also. You know all been swell to me. I hard enough forget as not all of you.

The weather here is fine today, nice and warm. We don't have a fire and the windows are open. You folk in Kentucky sure have had an old-fashioned winter. I bet you had lots of Cycle fun and hurt. Tell him what he needs is a ball of twine.

I want to write Anna, Essie and Billy. I will leave you and daddy to tell them I have been you soon. God bless you.

Your boy,
Sammie Dennis

North Africa, Dec. 12, '42

Dear Aunt Florence:

I received your card and letter and sure was glad to hear from you. I know how busy you are but I don't have time to write much and there isn't much I can write about it, write Mother, Irene and Sallie but I never received an answer. I guess I have forgotten about me. This country is beautiful but I don't understand anything they talk about.

Your Christmas card is the only one I have gotten so far. I think they have all forgotten how to write since I went. Mother is going to write to Sallie or any of them and they answer my letter.

Well guess I had better close. Hope to hear from you soon.

Your nephew,
Cpl. Henry Vaughn

Mrs. Albert Dale and Bruce Bing are on the sick list.

Mrs. Jeremy Brinegar has returned from Maysville where he has been visiting.

Carlisle Boy To Get Special Trainina

Bill Crouch, a junior at Berea College, has been selected by the War Department to be one of 1000 highly trained men to take the Army Air Corps Meteorology training which has been authorized by the government because of an acute shortage of trained meteorologists in the Army Air Corps.

Crouch will be assigned to one of the following universities: University of California at Los Angeles, Institute of Technology, University of Chicago or Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

February 21, 1943

Dearest Mother, Dad and Brother,

I will answer your good letter I received yesterday. Boy am I glad to hear from you all back home. Tell everyone hello for me. I sure would be glad to be back home. . . .

I'm going on 8 miles now. We just got in from a 25 mile hike yesterday and boy, was I tired? We traveled in mountains all night. The first part there were lots of rocks and we had our packs on our backs and our rifles in front. Maybe you have seen pictures of it. The rifle is heavy as the dickens and I'm not used to it. I'm getting used to a now. A few days ago, on a hike, I killed 12 rattlesnakes.

I go to church every Sunday. There were 250 soldiers at church Sunday. I have missed only one Sunday since I have been in Texas and that was when I was in the hospital having my teeth pulled. I was in the hospital three weeks but I am glad my teeth are out. Guess I'll get my ears real soon.

I talk over the radio every Sunday at 11:30 or 8:30 Austin, Texas. If you would tune in on your radio there you might hear me.

I am learning the army rifle fast. I received a gold button for being such a good shot on the rifle and my rifle and I made a record in a short while if I kept on. . . .

I have been over 15 months now. I have about one more to go. Then I'll be home. Don't worry about me. I'll be O. K. Tell Dr. Hardesty hello for me. I'll write to him soon. Tell everyone hello for me and I will be writing soon.

Your loving son,

Remember when Johnny was just a little boy?

IT SEEMS only yesterday that Johnny was romping through his childhood. Remember? As if you ever could forget! Even in those days, he had his troubles, and they seemed great and unbearable until he brought them to you. After all, Mom or Dad could make the world right again with a word or a kiss.

Now your Johnny is somewhere on many of the war-distorted fields where countless thousands of Johnnies are fighting—fighting for Mom and Dad and The Girl—against the forces of evil. He may be pouring out his lifeblood. And you—Mom and Dad—can't be there to take his hand and make everything all right again.

But the American Red Cross, "The Greatest Mother," is there and will continue to be there if we—all the Moms and Dads and Girls—give a little of our plenty to pay the cost.

If Johnny was among the wounded today, a blood transfusion may be required to save his life—blood contributed to the American Red Cross by Americans back home. Contributed? Yes, but it costs money to store and transport the precious plasma which may save Johnny's life. Back at the Army hospital, Johnny's wounds will be dressed by Army nurses, recruited by the Red Cross. Sympathetic Red Cross workers will advise you of his progress, and, as he gets better, other Red Cross workers will be with him to speed his recovery by furnishing him cheerful company and the other little comforts a convalescent requires.

Maybe Johnny hasn't been wounded. But the chances are he's lonely and heartsick for home. He can't come home, but he can go to the American Red Cross Club. True, that isn't as good as home, but he will find a warm welcome, a good meal and amusements.

Perhaps Johnny is in an enemy prison camp. The Red Cross will help him there, too—help him to get mail from home and some of the comforts which will help to keep his morale up. Or suppose you are in trouble at home, and Johnny can't come back to help straighten things out. . . . There are thousands of Red Cross workers throughout the country, and millions of volunteers, ready to do it for him.

The American Red Cross needs $125,000,000 to carry its many tasks in 1943. It must depend upon your contributions to continue its great work. Don't fail "The Greatest Mother!"

George Glenn Hatcher Candidate For Governor

Declares People Crying Out For Change Frankfort

To Announce Full Platform Later And Make Stand Known

George Glenn Hatcher in announcing his candidacy last week for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky said: "The people are crying out for a change at Frankfort," and added he would announce his full platform later and would make his stand known on campaign issues from time to time between now and the Democratic primary, Aug. 7. But he declared he was willing to lead a movement to give the government "back to the people where it rightfully belongs."

Prior to election as secretary of state in 1939, Hatcher, now 43 years old, served as der ck clerk of the state Court of Appeals, and before that was ty clerk of Ashland, his home.

"I am announcing my intention of becoming a candidate for governor of the commonwealth of Kentucky on the Democratic ticket at the primary to be held in August.

"Our state government belongs to every Kentuckian. Thousands of our native sons and daughters are fighting and dying, and giving their all to help win this awful 'global' war. We who are to keep the home fires burning owe it to them and to ourselves to preserve what they are fighting for and to put our government in the hands of men who will not obey any of the rights of democracy now or when they come home

"I am in favor of giving back to the people where it rightfully belongs

Like many others of the Hatcher family that has been identified with Eastern Kentucky since birth, he took a lively interest in politics and aided his father, George Hatcher, who was tax commissioner of Floyd county in many campaigns in the old Tenth congressional district and in the successful race of his cousin, the late James Hatcher, for railroad commissioner in 1931.

Hospitalization For War Veterans

World War II veterans are a separate class from World War I veterans and have not the same rights to hospitalization. Unless a veteran of this war has a service connected disability he is not entitled to hospitalization in the Veterans Administration hospital.

The armed forces require proof of dependency when allotment papers are made out. Because of the delay in obtaining this proof there is frequently some suffering in the family left behind with a consequent lowering of morale.

The American Legion can be of great assistance by letting a man and his family know that he should have ready and, if possible, take along with him when he leaves for service the following:

1. If married, a certified copy of the marriage certificate.

2. If there are children, certified copies of their birth certificates.

3. If dependent mother, father, brother or sister, a certified copy of service man's birth certificate and two letters from persons who are not relatives showing dependency of these relatives thereby making them eligible for a Class "B" dependency allowance. These letters should be notarized.

Four Decorations For Lieut. Hopkins

Four decorations for Lieut Allen Hopkins. Four decorations: Many will to the soldier who will not rest even over decoration.

That Lieut Hopkins, the son of Mr. and Mrs Allen Hopkins of Carlisle, was deserving of those four decorations, goes without saying. He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for the exceptional flying he has performed duty, according to word received here from his wife, Mrs. Louise Harding Hopkins.

The award was made Feb. 15 the message stated. Besides the Distinguished Flying Cross, Lieutenant Hopkins has received the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Airman's Medal awards.

Old Things Of Interest Coming In Splendidly

Confederate Button With Picture Of Gen. Lee On It

Among the most interesting things coming to The Mercury office this week is a button received by Mr. Robert Mann. The button has a likeness of General Lee and is made with a blue background. It is solid, top, sides and bottom and has the name of Mr. Mann's father, Lucien Mann, in plain letters on it. Also are the letters, CSA. On the rim is also found "J. Jones," and in another place is Lee. Ky. Also on the button is Confederate Veteran Association.

Mr. Mann is the proud possessor of a Half Dollar coin dated 1838 which was the date of his father's birth. Bob also has a number of other very old coins.

Cut 'Em Goin and Comin

Mrs. Elizabeth Rankin Fitch is the proud possessor of two reap hooks, which are used to cut the sickles or scythes. One is used with the left hand and the other used with the right hand—righthanded and lefthanded—and they are the teeth in them. The hooks are curved to a considerable extent and the blade is very narrow. The hooks are reputed to be 150 years old and they look it. They belonged to the grandfather, Mr. John Rankin. Thanks to Mrs. Fitch for bringing the hooks into The Mercury office for this writeup.

SPECIAL NOTICE: It has been the desire of the writer of this column to place many of the old Things Of Interest which have come to The Mercury office, in the form of the valuable old Kentucky Drug Store, and plans had been made to that effect. However, it has been found impossible to place the display in the window and those who have so kindly brought in "Old Things" have asked to come in or send in to The Mercury office for those things they want returned to them. This is regretted more than words can express and The Mercury hopes that all will understand—because the time cannot be found in which to place the things in the window. The Mercury thanks all who have these "Old Things" here at the office. Again it is "Thank You."

A barn belonging to Mrs. Ed Myers of near Miranda, on the Moorefield road, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

One ton of hay, farm implements and tobacco sticks were burned.

ANNOUNCEMENT REGRETTED

The Junior Red Cross regrets to announce that there will be no collection of magazines until someone has given a place to keep them.

Burns Says Keep Constructively Critical

Economic Director James F. Byrnes, recently called on the press to keep up the pace of battle on the home front by fighting black markets, exposing rationing violations and editorially combating all those who tell us that we can win the war in 1944 as well as 1943.

He said that the job of keeping the American people constructively critical, but not factitely angry, toward their wartime government, was the proper thing.

Don't worry about the past or the future. It's all a person can do to keep up with the present!

If love wasn't blind, some men could never feel a woman into taking the marriage vows.

PROMOTED

Word was received here last week that P. F. C. Gaylord Barton, son of Mr and Mrs. L. B. Barton has received a promotion and is now a Corporal. Cpl Barton is stationed in Washington.

Carlisle Boy Member Of Lamp and Cross

James Patrick Conley, junior in the College of Commerce at the University of Kentucky, was recently selected for membership into Lamp and Cross, honorary organization for senior men.

Young Conley is active in many campus organizations being a member of Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity of which he is president; Pershing Rifles, military honorary fraternity; council; Student Government Associations, of which he is social chairman.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Conley, Carlisle.

Movement Of Our Soldiers And Other Happenings

Each Week As The Reports Come To The Mercury Office

Movements of our soldiers and other happenings each week as the reports come to the Mercury office, is a bit of news is given our readers as it is a fact that all of them are, in a very great measure, interested beyond any doubt. As movements happen, the Director of Public Relations at Ft. Thomas, Kentucky, make reports to this paper.

The first to come in this week is that of Silas W. Campbell of Carlisle, Infantry RTC, from Ft. Thomas to Ft. McClellan, Ala.

The second to come in was that of James E. Bowles, of Carlisle, to Army Air Force, RTC, from Ft. Thomas to St. Petersburg, Fla.

Two Carlisle boys, Charles K. Hamilton and Roscoe P. Hutchinson of the 97th Infantry Division, have been sent to Camp Swift, Texas from Ft. Thomas.

It Is Not Too Late.

Why does it take the powers that be so long to realize that a serious food shortage will solve the war the wrong way in a hurry?

It is stupid and stubborn to fail to realize that fact, and those who have farmed successfully know that just anyone available cannot do satisfactory farm work.

Farming is learned over a period of years, and one man who knows how is worth a dozen green hands.

Two years ago we had a very clear view of what was necessary to win the war. We were to feed the world and furnish enormous supplies of munitions, guns, airplanes and whatever else our allies needed, including warm clothes. That in itself was a large order, but one that our nation was especially capable of doing. We had no manpower shortage then, and Mr. Churchill on his first visit to America stressed the fact that if we would furnish the materials of war, they would furnish the men. Dorothy Thompson at that time urged that we have a definite understanding with our allies as to our part in the peace conference.

It is not too late to return in part to our original commonsense program. When all the world is so disorganized it seems important to us that at least one great nation should remain normal as far as possible. That alone inspires confidence in a leader. Various high pressure groups have confused the issue and we are attempting too many half way measures. If we carry out our original pledge and our allies carry out their pledge there will be no question of a food shortage.

M. P. Nichols Resigns As County Agriculture Agent

William T. Straw Of Warsaw, Ky., To Succeed Mr. Nichols

Resigning his position as agricultural agent of Nicholas county Mr. M. P. Nichols, who has held that position for almost four years, announced that Mr. William T. Straw, of Warsaw, Kentucky, would be his successor in charge of the office here on April 1st.

In an interview by a Mercury reporter, Mr. Nichols said he had not as yet decided his future association. He said that he would remain in Carlisle for some time, where he owns his home.

Mr. Nichols has two degrees from Ohio State College of Agriculture at Columbus, Ohio. B. S. and M. S. He came here on July 1st, 1939.

It is generally understood, says a report, that Mr. Nichols will go with the Soil Conservation Service with a ranch in Texas. It is said that Mr. Nichols will leave the work in this county in the best of shape. The Nicholas Fiscal Court expressed regret at the resignation of his post here in Nicholas county.

Mr. Nichols, his wife and three sons will remain in Carlisle for some time.

Mr. Straw who has been agricultural agent for the past eight years at Warsaw, is said to be one of the best and most active in Carlisle in the near future.

SPECIAL REGISTRATION DAY

Special registration day will be held on Saturday, March 13th, at the Court House for those who have not received Ration Book Four. Those receiving Ration Book No 2 known as consumers Ration Book. The Board urges all who have not received these books to register Saturday next, March 13th.

Carlisle Merchant Failed To Keep Proper Records

Says Federal Government In Slaughtering Controlled Meat

Carlisle merchant failed to keep proper records says Federal Government.

The man in question here in Carlisle is Mr. Verna Stone, a grocery merchant. In an interview with Mr. Stone he admitted that he knew very little about the large number of records which the Federal Government is asking merchants to keep. In the opinion, of the editor of this paper Mr. Stone had not at intent when he failed to make proper records as is said by the Federal Government in his case.

Following is a letter from the Federal Government office in Louisville.

March 6, 1943.

"Mr. Verna Stone,
"Carlisle, Kentucky.
"Dear Sir:

"On February 5, 1943 the Office of Price Administration instituted an action against you for the violation of Restriction Order No. 1, in that you failed to keep proper records and slaughtered controlled meat in excess of your quota. Prior to the hearing on our motion for preliminary injunction on the 15th day of March, we shall be glad to discuss the matter with you.

"Yours truly,
"Saymond C. Stephenson
"State Attorney
"Fred J. Karem
"Enforcement Attorney

Several papers over the state are printing articles on this subject. The editor of this paper feels that these mistakes by most of the accused—perhaps not all—is akin to any ordinary mistake, and when interviewing Mr. Stone here in Carlisle last Monday morning, the writer was convinced that the mistake of Mr. Stone was not intentional.

What' Coming Next? Who Knows What--When?

April 1st is set for rationing of meats, cheese, butter, cooking fats, oils; and, who knows what else or when?

It would have been a splendid idea if our Government could have worked out some kind of a plan, prior to rationing, to have had only one kind or denomination of stamps to go along with "Our Money" in buying everything obtainable and desired. Then in order to make matters less complicated, set the number of stamps to be given along with various articles. In other words, "So Many Stamps" for shoes so many for meats, so many for clothing, and so on.

Rationing, some newspapers have said, of meat, butter, cheese and fats may not come until April 15th, however, it will be a splendid idea for all of us to be on the lookout for any and all dates to come on rationing and be prepared accordingly.

It is the intention of The Carlisle Mercury to keep its many readers informed on all topics of every description whatsoever in all the future; and, in any event where such has not been done, it will be a case of where the facts in "The Case" cannot be obtained. It is far better to leave out any article where the facts cannot be obtained than to print "Guess Work" or to print anything the paper does not know to be facts.

So when a "Quotation" is given, it is not certain with us that all the facts are in.

A factor in the size of the meat ration will be the success of the campaign to stamp out black markets. Price Administrator Prentiss Brown is counting strongly on new, uniform, community-wide prices on beef and pork, together with a licensing system for slaughterers, to cut off the illegal operators.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announces a rigid licensing system to control the buying, selling and slaughtering of livestock in a nationwide radio talk in which he urged consumers to refrain from patronizing black markets.

Every dealer and slaughterer of meat for sale will be required to obtain a license and permits from the Agriculture Department. Included will be farmers who slaughter livestock for sale, but not those who kill stock for home use and consumption.

All slaughterers, dealers and processors will be required to keep complete records of purchases and sales of meat and livestock for government review.

All meats processed by licensed operators will bear a stamp number identifying the slaughterer. Thus the government will be able to trace all meats to their origin. The licensing program is expected to be inaugurated before meat rationing starts.

Former Carlisle Girl On New York Radio

Former Carlisle girl on radio, in case, while residing in Carlisle was one of our most prominent young ladies, Miss Ollie Robertson. She is now Mrs. E. P. Allen, of New York City, who is on the daily program every W. H. A. S., the title of the program being "Dad and Mother," which is heard at 4:15 P. M. daily.

Mrs. Allen's New York address is 145 West 55th Street, New York City, N. Y. She takes the role of "Polly" and was called by that name when she resided here in Carlisle. Her program features music and is well worth anybody's time to listen in.

To Mrs. Allen—"Polly"—goes the very best wishes of her legion of friends, not only here in Carlisle, but in Kentucky.

Let's listen to "Polly."

Two Ky. Officers Cited For Heroism

Two central Kentucky men, both graduates of the University of Kentucky, recently were awarded Silver Stars and citations for courage and heroism in action on the Tunisian front, according to a delayed Associated Press dispatch.

The men are Lieut. Col. Ben G. Crosby, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Crosby, Spring Station, and Second Lieut. Jack Reeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reeder, 520 Boonesboro avenue, Lexington.

Colonel Crosby, who was serving with an armored tank division, was given the award for having direceed and led a successful counter-attack against the enemy with complete disregard for his own welfare. He was a cadet colonel at the University, and until his entry into the Army, operated "Canewood" farm in Woodford county, where his wife, Myra Smith Crosby, and their two children now reside.

Lieutenant Reeder, a former Sears, Roebuck employee, was awarded the Silver Star in connection with landings at Oran, when he and his men were in a cutter which was sunk by fire from a cruiser and shore guns. He stayed with his men until all of them were off the cutter and in the water. Word previously was received by his family that he had been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in this action, and that he had been sent to a hospital in England.

Lieut. Reeder is a son of Mrs. Ida Martin Reeder who is related to Mrs. Richard Hamm of Carlisle.

EQUIPMENT SENT HEADQUARTERS

Nicholas County Junior Red Cross has sent the following articles to the Junior Red Cross. It has sent the following articles to the Junior Red Cross Headquarters at Jacksonville, Virginia:

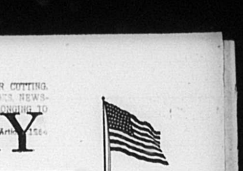
Ben Kilgore Announces Candidacy For Gorernor



Retiring Executive Secretary Farm Bureau Of State

Asserts That The Income Tax Cannot Be Repealed Now

Ben Kilgore announces candidacy for Governor, and, in the retiring Executive Secretary of the Farm Bureau of Kentucky.

He declared "the biggest single issue in this campaign is to restore Kentucky government to the people," and to this end he said he favored election of public officials "without the domination of the state administration."

Repeal of the state income tax at this time was described by him as being "financially impossible," but he said he favored removal of the five-cent state tax on real estate, refund of the state tax on gasoline used on farms and reduction of other taxes to the lowest amount consistent with efficient and economical governament.

He asserted that the income tax could not be repealed if the state increased the salaries of underpaid teachers and undertook a new welfare program to aid the needy blind and dependent children, but he declared that sobe adjustments should be made in the state income tax law to lighten the load, especially among the average income group.

The candidate urged a streamlined state government which would eliminate extravagance and waste and abolish unnecessary offices and officeholders. He condemned the policy of stripping elected officials of their powers and turning their duties over to controlled boards, commissions and individuals.

Investment of the state surplus in war bonds to be earmarked for modernization of charitable institutions, he proposed by Kilgore. He also asserted, if elected, he would extend state assistance to the aged, the needy blind and dependent children in as large a measure as the state can afford, without increasing taxes.

The candidate asserted the state equalization fund should be raised to the full authorized 10 per cent so that counties could receive more money to increase teachers' salaries.

He proposed a revolving fund to make educational loans to deserving boys and girls, through government commissions to ascertain the need, and to relieve county debt problems and a Kentucky advisory committee, representing labor, business and agricultute to promote harmony among the three groups and to advise the governor and his cabinet on controversial plans to develop Kentucky.

Going Up, Up, Up. Everything Up. Advertising Too

Would Any Reader Of The Mercury Want It To Suspend

Going Up, Up, Up. Everything Going Up. Would Any Reader of The Mercury Want It To Suspend Business? Mercury advertising has also gone up. The rate now is five cents more than it has been for some time with. "Want Ads" and "For Sale Ads" going for ten cents a word, the minimum charge now being thirty cents.

To raise the price of anything isn't pleasant, however, it is that prices have had to be raised and Mercury advertising and it is hoped that no one will feel that The Mercury has done wrong in so doing, but that which was right and just.

In our last issue of The Mercury in a front page editorial a full an explanation as was possible to make was made concerning our prices going up or the possibility of The Mercury having to suspend business. That, as was considered by The Mercury, was sufficient.

The Mercury had a representative go to many of the advertisers in person just why the prices had been raised. Not one complaint was made, therefore The Mercury feels that this notice now is quite sufficient in giving notice that Mercury advertising has gone up as above.

OILING HELPS

If you have an open type of mechanism in your electric refrigerator, it will need periodic oiling and adjusting. Have a reliable serviceman do this, and have him tell you how often this service should be repeated.

TESTING AIR PILOTS

A new instrument for testing the fitness of prospective air pilots, described by British scientists, is an electrical multiple-exposure tachistoscope, which measures the speed of adjustment of the eyes for change of distance, speed of accommodation and adaptation, and which also tests ocular and general fatigue.

DEFROST WEEKLY

Defrost your electric refrigerator at least once a week, according to the manufacturer's instructions. This is impobtant, because when too much frost collects, your motor must work harder to keep the temperature safe. Empty drip water as soon as defrosting is complete. Wash inside of refrigerator with baking soda and water each time it is defrosted. Don't forget to clean the freezer—that's where food odors collect.

Special care for your electric dishwasher solution is required, for the dishwasher cleanses itself. However, if some sediment remains, due to water conditions, operate dishwasher without dishes. Fill with water to required level. Pour two cups of vinegar through the filler opening and let machine run for five minutes. Use two one-minute hot-water rinses.

ELECTRICITY "FATS" METAL

Use of electric currents to protect submerged metal pipes from corrosion has been perfected by N. A. Miller, of Universal Oil Products, Inc. Mr. Miller says that corrosion of metal in contact with water or moist earth is caused by electrolytic action. The metal pipe or other structure forms one pole of a "battery." The other pole may be formed by another metal, or spots of impurity or mill scale on the first. Current from the anode to the cathode, and the anode, or pipe, gradually is consumed. To counteract this process, Mr. Miller causes the current to flow the other way, and the foreign element was consumed, leaving the pipe intact.

Radio waves travel with "practically the velocity of light," researchers at the West Virginia University have discovered in experiments in the American Physical Society. The speed is about 188,000 miles per second.
