FINAL OFFICIAL COUNT IS MADE

The more than 100 University of Kentucky students who were called to active military service last week, have returned to the University campus for advanced training. In addition to training for the regular course, these students are also receiving instruction in military subjects. The Army Specialized Training Program of the United States Army is a special type of training for college students. It is designed to provide them with advanced training in their own fields of study, while at the same time, they are receiving instruction in military subjects. The program is administered by the War Relocation Authority. The students who are called to active military service are selected from the University's regular course. They are given advanced training in their own fields of study, while at the same time, they are receiving instruction in military subjects. 1943 BURLEY CROP HAS GAIN OVER '42

This year's Burley in Kentucky is estimated to yield 500,000 pounds, according to a report by the United States Department of Agriculture. This is a gain over the 450,000 pounds produced in 1942. The increase is due to a combination of factors, including a longer growing season and improved cultivation techniques. The Burley crop is a major source of income for many farmers in the region. It is used primarily for the production of cigars and cigarettes. The increase in production is a welcome sign for the industry.

RESTRICTIONS ON COAL DELIVERIES

The United States Department of the Interior, Washington, has announced that it will restrict the delivery of coal to certain areas. This is due to the fact that the coal supply in these areas is limited. The restrictions will apply to the delivery of coal to certain areas of the country. This is a necessary measure to ensure that the coal supply is distributed equitably. The restrictions will be in effect until further notice.
