BIBLE THOUGHT
THIS WEEK

Behold, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings.
—1 Peter iv. 12, 13

GET A RAILROAD JOB—NOW

The railroads are confronted with a manpower shortage that must be overcome. The crisis is so serious that the Office of Defense Transportation, the War Manpower Commission, and repre-entatives of railroad management and labor have agreed to launch an intensive recruiting drive for 100,000 additional employees. Both men and women are needed. Those without required skills will be trained.

According to the Association of American Railroads, "The manpower problem of the railroads is threefold: First, more workers must be recruited immediately to fill existing vacancies. Second, workers must be recruited to replace those who will be called to the armed forces or who leave for other reasons. Third, labor turnover on the railroads must be lowered down by convincing the men and women who work for the railroads that their jobs are quite as pensible to the war effort."

It is difficult for the public to realize the paralyzing effect on the war effort accruing from a shortage of railroad workers. On the average day in February, 1944, 31 freight trains throughout the country were delayed two hours or more due to shortage of train crews; 65 switch engines could not operate for lack of one or more yardmen. Recently a shortage of only 24 machinists and five boilermakers at Richmond, Virginia, held up repairs to locomotives necessary to move trains in and out of the yards, which caused congestion, backing up freight for hundreds of miles, on at least three major railroads.

Railroading is vital, colorful work in war or in peace. Now is the time to get a job on the railroads—and stick with it.

SMOKING

Judging by the destruction resulting from careless smoking habits, one questions whether the public is interested in the safety of life and property.

Smoking, in those who have the habit, is a process somewhat akin to breathing. Many smokers will strike a match in a powder magazine or an oil refinery. It is an unthinking act, and discarding the match the dottle, or the cigarette Fizt is often done without mental action of any kind. For those habit-formed acts, there is no cure except that which lies within the willpower of the individual.

Conceding that millions of people will smoke, regardless of the time, place or danger involved, the National Board of Fire Underwriters conclude that mere signs of warning are practically useless, and affirmative measures should be adopted to reduce the hazard. For example, signs in stores, factories, forests and other places must not be only eye catching—near each sign should be a place to discard the "weed" in whatever form the person is using it. In homes, ash trays and other receptacles should be placed in every room, hallway, porch and kitchen, even though residents may not smoke.

If it is necessary to prohibit smoking "on the job" due to dangers involved, places should be made available where workers can smoke without doing it secretly. It is probable that the catastrophe of the Triangle Shirtwaist fire, in which 145 girls lost their lives, would not have occurred if provisions had been made for the employees to smoke.

THE WRONG PATTERN HERE

Our armed forces are scattered on every continent and the seven seas for the avowed purpose of perpetuating human freedom, destroying political and military dictatorship, and punishing aggressor nations.

But in the United States, our own government is using the aggression tactics of the dictator to propagandize communities and deprive groups of citizens of their lawfully acquired industries, in violation of the basic principles of endeavor.

Since the inauguration of the Tennessee Valley Power Authority as a government power monopoly, the tactics of an aggressor nation toward a weaker people have been extended in the United States, and private power companies have been put out of business through political action, just as definitely as were the methods that Hitler, as a dictator, absorbed for his own interests in Germany.

The Federal power monopoly has been extended from Tennessee to other states, and now the drive is in full swing to wipe the privately-owned power companies out of the Pacific Northwest area. At the moment, the promoters of state socialism are centering their efforts in the state of Washington.

The administrator of the Federal power plant at Bonneville has been authorized by the Secretary of Interior and 15 staffed Washington PUDs, to offer the largest power company in the state $90,000,000 to get out of business. This boondoggling political scheme would cause the state of Washington to lose one of its best tax-paying industries and load it with tax-eating, tax-wasting political power authorities. Not one new kilowatt of power would be produced by the transaction.

But, over and above that, innocent owners of private power companies, like innocent owners of property in little countries in Europe, would find themselves ruthlessly put out of business by powerful political forces of aggression which smashe on the ideals of freedom instead of protecting personal liberty. Such tactics are the death of our Republic as surely as they destroyed the other nations in Europe, unless the people curb them in time.

KEEP BREAD WAGON ROLLING

Our lestrators can pass laws regulating farm relief, minimum price ceilings, production control, etc., etc., to hold down food costs. They can provide rationing, red, white and blue food stamps, and a black lobster. But what makes them all work? The grocery store.

Only so long as the grocery store can make enough profit to stay in business, will the farmers and the food processors be able to keep their wheels turning smoothly. When some bright boy in the Washington law factory cracks down on the grocer, he cracks down hardest on the producer and the consumer.

Retail distribution has been brought to a high state of perfection under the mass distribution technique of the chain stores, and that technique has been adopted almost bodily by the independents. The result is that before the war the consumer could get virtually anything in the food line in practically every town and village in the United States.

Modern mass retailers of food might well be called the ball bearings in the nation's bread wagon. Regulators can easily ruin the bearings with faulty lubricants rules and regulations, thereby causing a wastage of food on farms and in warehouses, by preventing retail distribution to consumers.

FAMINES FOLLOW WARS

The Department of Agriculture's tabulations on what farmers intend to plant in 1944, indicate that the so-called guaranteed support prices failed to coax them into seeding more oil crops such as soy beans, peanuts, flaxseed or dietary standbys such as peas, beans and potatoes. Flax plantings for linseed oil are down sharply. Apparently increased acreage will go into feed grains because of shortage of livestock feed in the war area.

"Failure of farmers to go along on some of the War Food's programs," says Business Week, "is due to fear that there will be too few hands and new machines. Dairy product needs cannot be met, unless feed supplies are consistently been behind year-ago levels."

Farming has long been the professional "fixer's" plaything. Let us hope that it is not thrown too far off center by the theories of the parlor cowhands.

WILL PRES. ROOSEVELT RUN?

One of President Roosevelt's closest friends recently left the White House after having dined with President Roosevelt, and he expressed doubt as to whether the President would run again. Washington accepted that statement as the fourth term as of major importance.

The belief prevails in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt has an intense desire to see things through from victory in the war to victory in the peace. But, finally, Washington has been disappointed so often from a different angle, and, three seems to be a general agreement that Mr. Roosevelt will not run.

JENKINS SCHOOLS MAKE EXCELLENT SHOWING

According to a report received from Superintendent C. V. Snapp of the Jenkins schools, the Jenkins City Schools contributed $550.- 00 to the Red Cross in the 1943 drive which just closed. This is unusually good when it is compared to the total of $106.00 in the 1943 campaign. No teacher in the school system failed to contribute paid less than $2.00 and several principals and teachers gave as much as $10.00.

The total amount contributed by the school personnel of 50 members is $175.50. The amount contributed by the classrooms is $134.47. The amount contributed by school units is a follows: Jenkins, $155.52. McRoberts $140.08, Burdine $76.00. Dunham $42.25. All Colored Schools $115.87, and Administrative Offices $29.28.

"MAYBE SO"

Secretary Wickard discusses in the belief that "another land boom is in the making." He says the price control measures, with amendments and renovations to the present act. According to his reasoning, a proper price control measure will prevent increases in the cost of living.

"Inflation feeds on itself. Increasing prices cause hoarding and reluctance to sell: that in turn creates still higher prices," says Mr. Wickard — who seems to be more cautious than convincing.

A TIMELY BOOK ON PRAYER

"The Manner of Prayer" by W. D. Chamberlain is reviewed by Rev. Cecil V. Crabb, local Presbyterian minister.

This timely book by a professor at the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary should be of help to preacher and layman alike. The author deals with the vital subject of prayer by discussing the various petitions of the Lord's prayer and also presents a beautiful vivid picture which Jesus gives us on this theme. He makes it plain that prayer is not mere magic, not form or ceremony or posture, but that it is a most vital experience that obeys certain fundamental laws of the spiritual universe. He shows that the vital law of the spiritual universe to which all successful prayer must conform is that of conformity to the will of God both in our own individual lives and that of society. Here is a book for these troubled times which demand a proper attitude toward prayer.

The book contains 163 pages, is published by the Westminister Press. Philadelphia, Pa., and sells for $1.50.

Civilian supplies of butter, shortening, cooking oils, and salad oils will be slightly larger during the April-June quarter than in the first quarter of the year.

The War Food Administration, announcing allocation, said civilian supplies of margarine, on the other hand, will be slightly smaller, while supplies of lard will be the same as originally allocated for the January-March quarter.

SWEDEN SUPPLIES TO GERMANY ORDERED STOPPED

In a note recently delivered to the Swedish Foreign Office, the United States and Great Britain demanded that Sweden halt export to the Axis of ball bearings and raw materials and machines used in making the bearings, Stockholm dispatches report.

U. S. Minister Herschel V. Johnson delivered the note. The diplomatic action was a direct follow-up to Secretary of Stat Hull's recent warning to neutrals to quit trading with Germany and her allies.

Before this formal diplomatic representation was announced, a Swedish Foreign Office spokesman termed Hull's speech "a surprising blast," and said Sweden intended to fulfill her commercial agreement with the Axis.

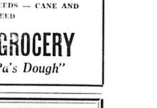
Firing Up the Farm
by BURTON WILLIAMS

Inexpensive Water Trough

IS THERE plenty of water on the place?" That question is usually answered in the affirmative about a farm. Some carelessly-kept spring, well, or lake, but usually is one thing that is absolutely essential.

Next in importance to the quantity of water is its location. Is it convenient? Watering takes a good deal of the farm lot's muck, so stock kept at the order of the boss it can be made convenient to there. One to the feeding chlorate troughs are easily constructed, to construct, most farmers fail to utilize simple, excellent locations on their farms for stock.

If you need an additional trough on your farm, I have an idea that will save you a lot of money, labor and provide a convenient trough which may be moved if necessary. The materials needed to build this trough are an old steel oil drum, 2 bolts and 4 posts.



As illustrated, the drum is cut in half lengthwise; then bolted at the top of each end to a post set so that the drum in about 8 inches off the ground. Two short posts are set between the larger ones to give additional support at the bottom of the drum.

When the trough needs cleaning, all you have to do is loosen the bolts and it can be turned upside down.

ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN—NO INCREASE IN 'B' GAS CARDS

A United Press report from Washington April 15, coming from a "high rationing official" who would not permit his name to be used, was to the effect that plans are progressing for increasing the 'B' gasoline ration provided that various "economies" — including curtailment of black market operations—are effected within the curtailment of gasoline allocations.

He said 'progress is being made' toward raising the "B" driving ceiling in the east and increasing "increase-of-work" driving allowances in all parts of the country. A decision should be reached 'within a week or 10 days' when double-checking of figures showing reduced consumption will have been completed.

On the following April 16, across an Associated Press report stating that hope for an increase in the gasoline ration of 'B' card motorists had faded as a high official of the Office of Price Administration reported that on the basis of a consumption survey just completed there are not enough rationed anywhere in the country.

"As for the West Coast," he added, "an increase is definitely out of the question."

The official stressed that the final decision as to whether there will be any increase in the Office Rationing Chief Colonel Bryan Houghton.

In the meantime, with inventories of new synthetic passenger car tires, most of which will be used for essential civilian driving, virtually non-existent slightly in May, it was learned.

ROYSE CITES FOOD WASTE

Two hour out of every ten worked by American farmers are lost because of the enormous waste in food products, M. D. Royse, Chairman of the Kentucky Council of Agricultural Adjustment Agency, stated today.

"Although Kentucky farmers are being encouraged to produce more food than ever before in 1942 or 1943, both record production years, Royse said, it is also a good time for consumers to stop waste."

"An average family throws away 400 pounds of food annually," he said "much of this come from serving too much on the plate from improper home storage or some other cause."

"The food wasted annually in America is enough to feed the combined populations of Greece, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Norway and Holland, with an unfortunate in time of war and nearly every other country," he said. Mr. civilians to lick the platter clean."

LOVELIEST OF TREES

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough
And stands about the woodland ride
Wearing white for Eastertide.

Now, of my threescore years and ten,
Twenty will not come again.
And take from seventy springs a score,
It only leaves me fifty more.
And since to look at things in bloom
Fifty springs are little room.
About the woodlands I will go,
To see the cherry hung with snow.

YOU can rest assured that your doctor's prescription will have attention it deserves when you bring it to the Rexall Drug store.
