BIBLE THOUGHT THIS WEEK

Now therefore keep thy sorrow to thyself, and bear with a good courage that which hath befallen thee.

ENDS VOLUME LXXVIII

With this issue volume 78 of The Mercury is completed. Next issue will be No.1, Volume LXXIX.

With the completion of another year of Mercury service to its constituency, credit for any worthwhile accomplishments are due largely to the loyal readers and other patrons of this newspaper.

In the completion of seventy-eight years of continuous publication of The Mercury much history has been recorded in its 78 volumes and many changes have been made in management. School, if ever, does one editor and owner remain at the head of any institution for that long period of time.

We will enter the new volume next issue with an outlook of continued service for The Mercury in Carlisle and Nicholas county, as with many the regular visits of this newspaper are as vital as any part of many homes in this section.

ENTER 1945

The salutation, Happy New Year, is repeated over and over each year as the years come and go. This year it is particularly significant to wish one, and each other, a Happy New Year. In that, wish is embodied the hope that supreme Providence will come to many ere the close of 1945 when our young men and young women return to normal life and start all over again to build and rebuild the America we love.

Many in positions to be well informed, had predicted that the war, especially in Europe, would have been finished before the dawn of 1945, and some had ventured so far as to set a tentative date of victory over the Nazi. To the contrary it is evident that the enemy of mankind has spurred himself to new energy and the celebration of victory has been postponed, it seems at present, indefinately.

Let each of us enter the New Year with a hopeful prayer that before 1945 is very old victory over our enemies will be ours, and let us, also, pledge ourselves to give to the full extent of our mental, physical, religious, moral, and financial ability to help our boys finish the job as soon as possible.

SO THAT YOU MAY HAVE BETTER SERVICE

HEAR THIS PROGRAM!
"The Electric Hour" starring NELSON EDDY, every Sunday afternoons 3:30 to 4 o'clock, over Station WHAS and Columbia Broadcasting System.

YES, that's Paul, Russell and Joe on the pole (above) "working" a 33,000-volt electric line with the current on, so that you housewives, business men, farmers and war workers can have uninterrupted service.

When the storms are at their worst—rain, sleet and freezing cold—or in dark, windy, summer nights—the linemen are out at the first report of trouble to keep service going. The power plant operators control complicated switch boards in lightning storms . . . . or keep careful watch on powerful turbines . . . . or crawl into hot boilers to make repairs.

These linemen, power plant operators, engineers, service men and load dispatchers know what to do because they've been doing it a long time. The men and women of our company have grown up in the business.

The value of their experience . . . . of good engineering and of sound business management . . . . has proved its worth repeatedly during this war. Every war industry, every business, every home, and every farm has had an ample supply of electricity. There has been no shortage or rationing of electricity in the territory served by our company.

And best of all, the price has gone down even in wartime!

The men and women of our organization are proud of this record . . . . proud that in the future, as in the past, they can continue giving you better service at lower and lower cost.

DEATHS

DIV. OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE INVESTIGATES INDUCTEES

The Division of Public Assistance of the State Department of Welfare has entered upon a new role of assisting with the war effort by making medical and social investigations of draftees being inducted into the United States Army. The work is a cooperative one between the Division of Public Assistance and the States Selective Service Headquarters with the latter organization acting in an instructive and liason capacity between the welfare agency and the Induction Center at Fort Knox. Major W. B. Atkinson, formerly of Campbellsville, Kentucky, is representing the State Selective Service Headquarters in the work. Miss Helen C. Beauchamp, Director of Public Assistance, is directing the welfare work with Mr. Frank K. Burgess coordinating the statistics involved. It is the purpose of the report to provide the psychiatrists of the army Induction Center with personnal information which will be of assistance in adjusting the draftee to army life, with the hope that the period of adjustment to the new life can be shortened and a basis of understanding and mutual respect created.

Initiative in the investigation process is taken by the local draft boards of each county delivering forms for the requested investigations to the local representatives of the Division of Public Assistance, together with an envelope in which the investigation report is sealed and returned to the board. not to be opened until it is delivered to the officer in charge of the Induction Center. This procedure is observed to guarantee the confidential nature of the information supplied by local informants, whose cooperation is being sought by both the welfare agency and the army. The investigation includes an inquiry into such matters as the school record of the inductee, his health, his work record, his personal characteristics, and family disruptions. The army finds the individual who went through school fighting with his playground associates, the individual who could never hold a position, the steady worker, the individual married with worries and a broken home, the jolly youth leader, the dependable student, the trusted employee ,etc., all adjust differently to army life. Then there are others who do not adjust at all ,such as the epileptic, the mental incompetent, etc. Many thousands of dollars can be saved by determining these persons and taking appropriate action in their regard as proven by the experience of the late Simon Bolivar Buckner in World War, an average of $12,000.00 could be paid out on each mental case.

As the assessment of the information sought by the welfare worker will effect a great saving in time and money, the State Selective Service Headquarters aims with the Division of Public Assistance in asking the public of the State to cooperate in making meaningful information available to the Field Workers. The assistance of the industrial family, and his acquaintances, needed particularly sought, however, is the cooperation of the physicians and school authorities of the State. Without the understanding and painstaking assistance of these groups the reports will be meaningless and of no avail.

The undertaking upon the part of the Division of Public Assistance is enormous, amounting to 2,500 reports a month. The agency already overburdened with its five welfare programs, Old Age Assistance, Aid to the Needy Blind, Aid to Dependent Children, Civilian War Assistance, and Aid to Enemy Aliens, will have to rearrange its schedule to give the investigations four days service. it will mean some delay in the usual service of the agency as the new program will take one-sixth of the time of the present staff of the Division of Public Assistance now about fifty workers. Some have asked if the Division of Public Assistance can afford to do the work. We can only reply, "How can we afford not to do it? We are the only State Agency trained and equipped to do the work and the Army Headquarters in Washington has requested it, saying it will shorten the war."

It is estimated that 85 percent of the sheep raisers in Graves county have followed the phosphiazine program.
