BIBLE THOUGHT THIS WEEK

Strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power, unto all patience and long-suffering with joyfulness.—Col. 1:11.

"God doth not need
Either man's works or His own gifts, who best
Bear His mild yoke, they serve His best; His state
Is kingly; thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o'er land and ocean without rest;
They also serve who only stand and wait."

—John Milton

HOW TO GET WHAT YOU WANT WHEN YOU WANT IT

Nobody can bake a cake like our Aunt Sally. We don't care if Mrs. Jones does use the same ingredients, in the same proportions, bakes it at the same temperature. It still isn't as good as Aunt Sally's. When we have a party at our house we want a cake Aunt Sally baked because we know exactly how good it will be. She never fails.

What is this mysterious ingredient that makes us like one cake or soup, or automobile better than another—regardless of the fact that according to the label, competing articles are made of the same things? One manufacturer advertises: "The priceless ingredient of any product is the honor and integrity of its maker." That seems to be the right answer.

That is why the movement that's afoot to eliminate trade marks leaves us cold. Suppose, by some new government-supervised method of specifications would guarantee us better value for our money. We don't believe it. We think that manufacturers who did not have to identify their products with their trade marks could easily slip one over on us, because with no trade mark to tell us, we wouldn't know whom to blame.

Contrariwise, we know that when we ask for an article by brand name or trade mark, we are going to get that "priceless ingredient" that satisfies us. We wouldn't know how to describe the taste we like about Campbell's tomato soup—we just know we like that particular taste and the simple way to be sure of getting it is to ask for Campbell's tomato soup.

You won't catch us buying any "Grade A Sedan, specifications 16F9" when the war's over. We want a Ford. Furthermore, we'd like to see the Ford trade mark stamped on our car in a conspicuous place. We've got faith in Henry.

WAR CASUALTIES NEVER LIGHT

It seems to us to be inappropriate for a radio news commentator or anyone else to refer to American or Allied losses at a stated time to be "light." This to us, is not the proper terminology, but a more fitting term would be "our losses were few compared with enemy losses."

We are made to wonder some lost a son in a certain engagement with the enemy, would we report the losses "light." To the home where the sad messages have come of killed, missing or wounded no matter how small the engagement, or how few the casualties, that one boy, in some cases the only son of that particular home, lost, is the heaviest casualty of the whole war to that particular family. Such casualties are "light" in this war no matter when or where the casualty occurs, the loss is heavy and never light.

Some of the bravest and most fearless men of the war are lost in small skirmishes and patrol duty and are referred to many times as minor patrols, by commentators.

It is no "light" casualty for an American boy to give his life for his country and we take issue with any commentator who refers to our casualties at any time as being "light."

"IN KENTUCKY"

The Winter issue of "In Kentucky" the official publication of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, is off the press and contains a number of interesting features and attractive illustrations. Included in the issue of the magazine is a story citing steps taken toward acquisition of land needed for Cumberland Gap National Park, dedication ceremonies with a historical background of the park, written by Robert L. Kincaid. Subjects of other articles and the writers are: "Cane Ridge, Birthplace of the Christian Church" by J. Winston Coleman, Jr.; "Aaron Burr Visited Lexington" by Lucille Bowman; "Laugh with Laughter" by Mildred Portner; "The Turtmen's Tribute to Kentucky" by Mary Kay Duff; R. Underwood; "Archaeological Research in Kentucky" by Dr. W. D. Funkhouser.

One story reveals some of the improvements planned for Mammoth Cave after the war. Another deals with the old Mulkey Meeting House in Monroe County. Scenes, in color, and a brief sketch of the inauguration of Governor Simeon Willis of Kentucky are also presented.

ORGANIZATION SET UP FOR WAR FUND

Community Supervisors have been requested to arrange meetings of their workers at the earliest possible date to secure a list of workers from their Community Chairmen at once in order that the completed list may be given by the Carlisle Mercury and in order that supplies may be delivered to them. Speakers from the Speakers Bureau will be requested to attend the community meetings for the purpose of instructing the workers. There will be a county wide meeting in Carlisle on the 25th day of February, 1944, at 7:30 p. m., either at the Carlisle Armory or the High School auditorium for all workers and all friends and members of the American Red Cross.

In consideration of the fact that the quota for Nicholas County has been substantially increased it has become necessary to effect a rather large and elaborate organization. It is the hope of the Executive Committee that every family in Nicholas county shall be given the opportunity to contribute to this great cause which is so essential to the war effort. Chanter Chairman, I. B. Ross urges that this organization be set up at once, that all workers learn their jobs and be ready enthusiastically when the time for the drive comes to cover the county completely and quickly.

116,186 ARMY CASUALTIES REPORTED UP TO FEB 1

LOCAL REA CO-OP PROVIDES POWER TO PRODUCE FOOD

The Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Co-operative Corporation, Flemingsburg, has completed four years of supplying electric service to farmers and other rural consumers in this area February 4, according to Manager James K. Smith.

Since the Co-operative's lines were first energized, the system has brought electricity at cost to 2815 consumers who are able to use power to help increase production of food for the war effort served by the Co-operative has increased from 2379 to 2815 during the last year.

War Production Board restrictions have prevented the system from authorized the connection to rural power lines of nearby farms able to use electrical equipment in livestock, dairy and poultry production. Farms connected to the Co-operative's lines under the WPB regulations use water pumps for livestock, chick brooders, and other electrical labor-saving and food production devices.

Mr. Smith said that the farmers who have gotten service under the WPB regulations have found many ways to save labor with the use of various types of electric equipment.

Mr. Smith reported that the Co-operative is meeting its obligation on the construction loans, under putting adequate funds in a reserve fund which is one of the provisions. REA had advanced the Co-operative $811,224 on its construction allotments as of December 31, 1943. Principal and interest is due back to the Government on its construction loans amounting to $148,000 which is one-half of the 25-year amortization schedule demanded. In addition the Co-operative has invested $18,000.00 in War Bonds as a reserve for emergency and for later maintenance.

All U. S. bonds now sell at a premium and the only thing under war are those who don't buy them.

No airplane ever built will fly as fast as a rumor.

The World At War

NO. 112

By Charles M. Knapp, Professor of History, University of Kentucky

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC: Late Monday, January 31, Washington announced that a great air and sea offensive was under way in the Marshall Islands, northwest of the Gilberts and on a direct line drawn between Hawaii and New Britain Island. The Marshall Islands extend over a large area of the central Pacific. The islands geographically are atolls. An atoll is comprised of a large number of coral islets, which surround a lagoon. Some atolls are a single atoll composed of tiny islets which are little more than exposed reefs. Most of them were uninhabited even by natives. The soil is too low ground coral sand on which palm trees seem to thrive. Some of the islands are large.

The Marshalls are divided into two groups as well as of atolls which might be described as islands. A map dated Saturday the largest United States fleet ever assembled struck at the Kwajalein atoll, one of the largest in the whole Marshall group.

Kwajalein atoll is thus a group of islands and islets which encircle a lagoon some 80 miles long and 18 miles wide. The lagoon is entered by large ships at several points, channels. After weeks of aerial bombing by land-based planes, Australian, American Marine and Infantry divisions waded ashore from landing barges. The first day's establishes themselves in control of the largest islets at the northern and southern ends of the lagoon. By the end of the first week the American fleet has entered the lagoon where it is safe from Japanese counter-attack, where it can support the cleaning up operations on the smaller islets. To all intents and purposes this Kwajalein atoll is now in our hands. The casualties are reported to have been extremely light. The fact that the attack upon Kwajalein was unexpected by the Japanese, and that hundreds miles further east, nearer Hawaii and the Gilbert atolls, lie several other groups which the Japanese had fortified and which evidently believing that our navy would not dare to attack them, have left the western atolls in the Marshalls almost entirely unmanned. Further atolls and their defenders Japanese troops have been isolated by the success at Kwajalein and Majuro atolls. The great risk of heavy losses in ramming and other attempts to drive our fleet from the area of the Marshalls by a decisive battle. Since it is clear that the United States has complete air supremacy. Rear-Admiral Raymond Spruance has based planes on and now by land based planes from the newly captured air fields on Kwajalein and Majuro, since defending the rest of the Marshalls face ultimate surrender or destruction by starvation.

Rabaul on New Britain has now been made practically useless to the Japanese as a naval or air base by our land-based planes and submarines. Truk, some 1,200 miles further west, another atoll which the Japanese have fortified as a base for their fleet and naval base in the central Pacific. Our next objective to be captured or isolated by the Marshalls it stands, a shorter and more direct route to New Britain and New Guinea has now been gained. The route to the Philippines under the umbrella from the Marshalls and Carolines and New Britain and New Guinea would be much shorter be available soon. To interrupt this line the Japanese would have to fight with submarines and surface fleet on both. The United States Navy would like nothing better than for the Japanese to send a fleet to battle to engage in a life and death struggle on that new sea route. Larger and more important Japanese naval forces were to be imminent in the south and central Pacific.

THE EUROPEAN FRONTS: Russian gains on the eastern front have endangered the whole southern German line, the eastern Polish front and the defenders of the Baltic states. Heavier air raids have wrecked Berlin and Frankfurt again. The allied bombed south of Rome has been consolidated and is under very heavy counter-attack from the best German divisions in Italy.

WITH THE BASKET BALL TEAMS

The Carlisle High School team played the Bourbon High at Millersburg Tuesday. The game was very close with the Carlisle team leading 5-4 at the half. Several times the score was tied. At the final whistle the score stood 12-11 in favor of Bourbon High. Red Crawford was the high point man with 6 points to his credit. The team consists of Nichols F, Simpson F, Young C, Grey G, Crawford G, Second Team—Cannon F, Whaley G, Reynolds G, Wrench C.

The Junior High team defeated the Headquarters Junior High by a score of 20-10. The line up was: Dixon C, Clark G, Blake G, Nichols F, Hughes F, Bannister G, Stewart F, Young F. This Junior squad is clicking like a machine-hitting on all five. Their excellent zone defense, and accurate passing was too much for the Headquarters quintet.

There will be two games on the Carlisle floor Thursday night when the varsity meets the Mt. Olivet team and the second team clashes with the second team from the Mt. Olivet school. Rev. Barnette who has been appointed coach, reports that two boys are getting in fine condition to win some games at the close of the season.

LOCAL PERSONAL SOCIAL

NANCY HANKS
1784-1818
By Rosemary and Stephen Vincent Benet

If Nancy Hanks
Came back as a ghost,
Seeking news
Of what she loved most,
She'd ask first,
"Where's my son?
What happened to Abe?
What's he done?"

Poor little Abe.
Except for Tom,
Who's a rolling stone;
He was only nine
The year I died.
I remember still
How hard he cried.

Scraping along
In a little shack,
With hardly a shirt
To cover his back,
And a prairie wind.
To blow him down,
In pinching times
If he went to town.

You wouldn't know
About any son?
Did he grow tall?
Did he have fun?
Did he learn to read?
Did he get to town?
Do you know his name?
Did he get on?"

ENDORSE GAS COUPONS

Geo. H. Goodman, Louisville District Director of the OPA, in a radio address over Station WHAS has called on each citizen to endorse his own gasoline coupons, by showing his car license number and state of registration, and ask his filling station operator to do it for him. He said, "It is illegal to make such a request and it is highly unfair to the dealer to have a favorite customer put him in the awkward position of having either to refuse to sell gasoline because coupons are not endorsed, or to refuse to endorse them for his customer."

Goodman continued "endorsement of gasoline coupons is an important part of the anti-black market program now, going into nation-wide operation and failure upon the part of a customer to endorse his coupons is legitimate grounds for having his entge gasoline coupons revoked." He said "Black Markets in gasoline must be stopped and we must depend upon the honest dealer and consumer to back up the Armed Forces and the Home Front against the on-rush of blind, thoughtless and unscrupulous citizens. Endorsement is an important link in the chain of conservation of gasoline rationing regulations."
