NICOLAS CO. GETS TRUCK

The Nicholas County Soil Conservation District Program is showing by hut gradually getting under way. Frank Henry, one of the supervisors, recently made a trip to Okolona, Miss., and drove back a new truck. The truck is now in Lexington being repaired and equipped with a new set of tires. It will soon be available for use by the district. The truck will be used to haul lime, phosphate, fertilizer, etc., for farmers who are cooperating with the district.

The following farmers have recently signed cooperative agreements with the district: Frank Caldwell, Edgar Darrell, John T. Barrett, C. B. Smith, Adelaide Mann, and Mrs. Mary Knight Asbury.

G. B. Pruit, the work unit leader, is in Lexington taking a four-day soil surveying course in Soil Conservation Work. He will return June 29.

TIDBITS of Kentucky Folklore

Cutting a Splurge

A few nights ago I was listening to a celebrated tobacco program on the radio, enjoying the music. When the commercial came on, I thought, got about the best laugh I have had lately at people who cut splurges. The announcer, with many a dramatic tone, told how his product had been great since the days of Henry Clay, who as a boy used to ride to mill with his turns of corn on his shoulder. I at once recalled how that very act was the test of what we would call a moron. Our version of it was that the good boy rested the load of meal on his shoulder to keep the horse from having so much load. I can just see Henry Clay using the same kindness, if that was what to call it. The announcer, of course, never went to mill and could hardly feature a bag of corn such as we rode on as a saddle. I wish I had his conception in a picture, to show the awkwardness of the slip. Of course, he probably thought that a bag of corn would turn out some such sack of meal as he had bought at the grocery, as if that stuff were ever found in one's going to mill. As I laughed at this ridiculous blunder, I knew the mellow-voiced announcer could have seen the type of boy who would clearly himself, not as a future Henry Clay, the "mill-boy of the slashes" but as the "good-old hood dumb-bell.

It is probably rather wicked in me to get such unholy glee from a thing like this, but it is only like many of the highly-educated things that just do not measure up to what they should be. Thousands of people are trying to cash in on the common folk who have never associated with common people and who assume that the New Yorker and "Lil' Abner" versions are authentic. It is bad enough when outsiders laugh at the folk, but such ignorance can be forgiven. What should be unforgivable is for people who know better to engage in the make-up of life and pretend that this is the real old pioneer stuff. If there were a real Kentucky mountaineer, as I am an appreciator of Kentucky mountain life and philosophy, I know my people came directly from the North Carolina hills into Tennessee and Kentucky, I would go gunning for native Kentuckians who had never our less educated people appear a bunch of Broadway comedians. It is not a crime to be ignorant, but to scale criticism as such that prompts this feeling of a realization that the ignorant and the unprincipled often have a chance to impress to their advantage. Only those who do not and cannot understand. I have found that the dramatic possibilities of Kentuckians usually blinds would-be students of our life to our genuine qualities.

The Southern Negro suffers from the same handicap. He was promoted by stage devices. To talk to people who know the people only through books and plays, one would think that the Negro is a potential Cab Calloway, that comedy or jazz or swing consitutes the only outlet that a colored person can have. Rather oddly, these same people, who are the ones who are quickest to believe that the only thing that prevents the rise of the Negro is unholy oppression by Simon Legrees.

What the Southern Highlander and the Negro need more than anything else is a sympathetic, reliable friend, and one whose head is in the cloud. The picturesque folk element that I have mentioned is of any more importance than enhanced of but to the observer. They are not to be interested in my turtle whose anecdotes only a few brief generations have served the folk and even boors in the country often find the very people who ridiculed today. If folklore is to have a permanent basis in study, toward anyone whom we have an honest interest, but may I again assure you. This is a necessity if that folklore really contributes to the love to study the human and personal attitudes of a race and a people.

CITED SINGERS LEAVE

Misses Doris and Eunice Hoil, of Springfield, Ill., who spent the past three weeks as guests of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Taylor, at the Christian church, returned to their home Monday for their home.

They are students at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary, and will continue the work of winning souls to Christ, in the field of evangelism. They had the charge of the music at the revivals held by Mr. Taylor at Bald Hill, Stoney Creek, and East Union, and delighted the local church with duets at each of the Sunday services during their stay.

WORKMAN TRIAL IS SET FOR JUNE 15

Nicholas Tenant Farmer To Be Charged With Double Murder of Employer and Wife

Jesse Workman, 58, who has been held in the Nicholas county jail since last Friday after he came to Carlisle and admitted to authorities that he had killed Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart, by whom he was employed on the Stewart farm in a remote and inaccessible section of Nicholas county, was brought into county court Monday morning before Judge Walter Shepherd, and waived examining trial till this Thursday morning, June 15.

County Attorney William H. Cossley, who will bring the charges against Workman, stated this week he investigation had disclosed that the only eye-witnesss to the shooting were Workman and the five children.

The real news of the tragedy was related by Workman when he came to Carlisle late Friday afternoon and said he hid shot Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart following an argument. Being unable to locate Sheriff Floyd Clark, Workman related his story to County Attorney William H. Conley, Jr., who turned him over to County Jailer Will Owings.

The farm where the shooting occurred is located on the north side of the Licking river in the Buffalo Trace section and is about a mile and a half off the road Access from the road to the farm was not possible with any conveyance other than a sled, it was reported.

Mr. Conley and Marcus Mathers of the Mathers, Potts and Sheaver funeral home went to the scene getting through to the farm and brought the bodies back to Carlisle. They reported that they found Mr. Stewart's body lying in the front room of the farm house with twice and apparently had died instantly. Mrs. Stewart had been shot only once and apparently had died for a short time.

According to the story told by Workman, who is a native of Bracken county and has been employed on the farm since last March, he and Stewart had had many arguments. About two weeks ago Workman says he was ordered off the farm but failed to leave.

The man occupied the old home building on the farm, while Stewart occupied by Mr Stewart and his family, who have moved recently to a new home on another part of the farm. Workman said he was planting seed corn when he saw Mr. and Mrs. Stewart approaching. Fearing there would be trouble he went into the house he occupied and obtained his shotgun. During the argument that ensued Workman says he first shot Mr. Stewart and, when Mrs. Stewart started throwing rocks at him, drew a fine of the gun and also charged with breach of peace.

CURIOSITY

Some folks are possessed with an over-abundance of curiosity. Recently a grocery clerk was overheard continued to eye the bell cord on the street car. Finally the person finally decided to pull the cord and see what happened. When the signal sounded the bus driver brought the bus to a stop and said "the person who pulled the cord may get off now." After a few minutes, the bus started on and this individual learned, probably for the first time, the use of the bell cord on the bus. Much chagrin.

LUNCH OR DINNER?

In the good-old-days it was an all-day singing with dinner on the ground. And as a result, we had something the school children took them to eat in a lunch box to school, or the workman carried with him to his place of employment. Dinner was never served in the evening—the evening meal was supper. Dinner was always at the noon hour. Not so to-day, lunch at noon and dinner in the evening. My, how time does change things.

WHERE FOOD COMES FROM

If the process of modern invention continues it is possible that coming generations will have the least knowledge of all generations as to where food actually comes from. Ere long Carlisle will have a modern frozen food locker and when the housewife desires to prepare the meal she will probably send one of the children to the locker to get the necessary foods. In years past, to prepare an all around meal it was necessary to go to the meat market, grocery store and the spring-house, or cellar. Will future generations have no more knowledge as to the origin of food than the city girl had about where the milk came from? She visited her country friend and accompanied her to the milk-gap and vowed she would drink no more milk after learning where the milk actually came from. She had always believed it came from the refrigerators.

CEDAR JUICE FOR BUGS

A conversation recently was heard between two gardeners concerning the extermination of bugs from growing gardens. One of the conversers remarked that he learned from an old colored gentleman that the best all-purpose remedy to get rid of bugs on beans, potatoes, etc., was to take some branches from cedar trees and cut into pieces and boil these till a moderately thick green juice developed and spray any garden vegetable or flowers and you would get the best results obtainable. This is an inexpensive preparation and is worth trying.

CURIOSITY

Some folks are possessed with an over-abundance of curiosity. Recently a grocery clerk was overheard continued to eye the bell cord on the street car. Finally the person finally decided to pull the cord and see what happened. When the signal sounded the bus driver brought the bus to a stop and said "the person who pulled the cord may get off now." After a few minutes, the bus started on and this individual learned, probably for the first time, the use of the bell cord on the bus. Much chagrin.

LUNCH OR DINNER?

In the good-old-days it was an all-day singing with dinner on the ground. And as a result, we had something the school children took them to eat in a lunch box to school, or the workman carried with him to his place of employment. Dinner was never served in the evening—the evening meal was supper. Dinner was always at the noon hour. Not so to-day, lunch at noon and dinner in the evening. My, how time does change things.

WHERE FOOD COMES FROM

If the process of modern invention continues it is possible that coming generations will have the least knowledge of all generations as to where food actually comes from. Ere long Carlisle will have a modern frozen food locker and when the housewife desires to prepare the meal she will probably send one of the children to the locker to get the necessary foods. In years past, to prepare an all around meal it was necessary to go to the meat market, grocery store and the spring-house, or cellar. Will future generations have no more knowledge as to the origin of food than the city girl had about where the milk came from? She visited her country friend and accompanied her to the milk-gap and vowed she would drink no more milk after learning where the milk actually came from. She had always believed it came from the refrigerators.

FIFTY-SEVEN CLUB CAPTAINS NAMED

To Supervise Neighborhood Groups of Club Members. Certificates To Be Awarded

With the announcement of the invasion of Europe the four hundred and ninety three 4-H Club members are keeping in step with the Victory drive. 4-H Club members have declared war on garden insects and disease; on other enemies of food production. Announcement is made this week by County Agent Wm. T. Straw that fifty-seven neighborhood 4-H Project Captains have been selected to supervise neighborhood groups of Club members. 4-H members live in all sections of Nicholas county. Neighborhood groups of eight to twelve Club members will be supervised by Neighborhood Captains. The duty of each Captain is to encourage interest in the production of food, and to see that a better job of 4-H project work be done during the summer.

This fall 4-H Captains will be given special recognition for this important war time service. Certificates will be awarded each 4-H Captain. The following are serving as Captains among the twelve neighborhood groups selected to supervise 4-H Clubs of the county:

SGT. CECIL JOLLY KILLED IN ACTION

Nicholas Man Who Helped Capture 61 German Prisoners Enlisted Here July 28, 1943

Sgt. Cecil Kenneth Jolly, 20, was killed in action May 23 on the Anzio-beachhead in Italy, according to a message received early this week by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Jolly, of Myers. The Jollys reside on the Everett Judge farm on the Upper Lick road.

Sgt. Jolly was the only child in the home. Besides his parents, he is survived by an aunt, Mrs. Sanford Lee, of near Lexington. He was educated at the Carlisle high school and was engaged in farming before he entered the army. He was trained at Camp Croft, S. C., and was sent overseas January 23, 1944. He is the fourth Nicholas county youth to give his life in this war for the cause of liberty.

Sergeant Jolly's last letter to his parents was dated May 22, 1944, the day before he was reported he was killed.

A feature story was published in The Mercury, issue of May 18, of Sgt. Jolly being among the 61 German prisoners on the Italian front.

Universal sympathy goes out to the parents of this gallant youth who has given his life.

No particulars were given on how he was killed.

REV. SWEAZY VOLUNTEERS AS AN ARMY CHAPLAIN

The Rev. Albert W. Sweazy, 25, pastor of the Versailles Methodist church, has volunteered as an Army chaplin and is awaiting ecclesiastical endorsement and acceptance in the service, according to a news dispatch.

He is a graduate of the Carlisle high school, having completed his high school education here while his father, the Rev. Clyde Sweazy, was minister here.

CUT DOWN LARGE MAPLE

Considerable local interest was manifested in the falling last Friday of the large double maple on the postoffice site. The tree was believed to be decaying and its destruction was decided upon. Mr. Frank Man, local contractor, who supervised the job, dug down and cut out the roots it was discovered the tree was sounder than had been expected.

TRANSFERRED TO INFANTRY

Private Ollie G. Snapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Snapp, Barterville, has voluntarily transferred to the Infantry and is now on duty at Camp Van Dorn, Mississippi. Private Snapp came to the 818the Tank Dest
