When Eddie Anderson auditioned for a one-time appearance on Jack Benny's NBC show, he was selected without a hearing of the other role contestants. Listeners were so captivated by the fast-talking, gravel-throated Anderson that a deluge of fan mail helped Benny decide to make Eddie, as Rochester, a regular cast member.

Carlisle Defeats Bethel; Score 37-18

(By Dorthy Hughes)

The Carlisle Musketeers in their first game of the season defeated the Bethel Wildcats 37 to 18. There was a large group of Musketeer supporters to witness this first basketball game of the season. The Musketeers were in good shape and showed much promise. The team is much improved and the Musketeers expect to have a good season.

The Musketeers led throughout the game. Crawford led the scoring for the Musketeers by tallying up 15 points. Dickson was high point man for the Wildcats.

In the first quarter of the game Carlisle showed their power by ringing up 9 points and holding the Wildcats to one basket. The Musketeers still held the Wildcats in the second quarter. In the third quarter Bethel scored an even number of points with Carlisle, which looked like a threat to the Musketeers. In the fourth quarter, the Musketeers still leading, scored basket after basket to defeat the victory for 37-18.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

BAUCH PREDICTS INFLATION

WASHINGTON.—Elder Statesman Bernie Baruch revealed some interesting figures on inflation recently in an off-the-record session with 14 younger congressmen at his Shoreham hotel apartment. Baruch's prediction was that the nation was hell-bent for inflation—and soon.

Piecemeal increases in wages, profits, and the cost of living have been going on, Baruch said, with wages lagging behind. For that reason he no longer favored his previous idea of a freeze on both prices and wages. One only hope, said the elder statesman, is that we can weather the next six to nine months without running into serious inflation. If we do that, our chances of a strong recovery from the war boom are good.

"The huge post-up demand for products which we will see during the next nine months, is a very serious threat," said Baruch, stressing the importance of holding down prices.

He amazed his listeners by saying that he is completely opposed to any reduction of any nature at this time. "Not only does the government look needed economy out of it, an unhealthy thing for our general economy," argued Baruch.

Rep. Andy Biemiller of Milwaukee asked what Baruch thought of the statement by Labor Victory price ident C. E. Wilson that if wages are raised 30 per cent, prices can go up 30 per cent. Baruch talked at some length on the general question of raising prices, but got a very direct answer. Finally, Biemiller repeated his question.

"I'm afraid I can't agree with Mr. Wilson," Baruch said.

WAGE NOT PRICE INCREASE

"Isn't it true that industry can give a 30 per cent wage increase without having to raise prices more than about 7½ per cent?" Biemiller persisted.

"You are approximately right," Baruch agreed. "I believe the figure you may have heard is actually 6½ per cent."

Baruch also told his guests that he felt we were making a mistake in spending manpower demobilization, that the world in its present situation," he said, "it seems to me it would be wiser to proceed slowly with demobilization. For we should not weaken ourselves at a time when power is apparently still an important thing."

He agreed also with an idea proposed by one of his guests, Estes Kefauver of Chattanooga, to have cabinet members and other high officials appear before the floor of congress where they can be questioned by congressmen. Such a practice would make for much greater cooperation between the executive and legislative departments, Baruch said.

Present in addition to Biemiller and Kefauver were Representatives Albert Gore and Percy Priest of Tennessee, John Sparkman of Alabama, Mike Mansfield of Montana, Brent Spence of Kentucky, Jerry Voorhis and Chet Holifield of California, Bob Sikes of Florida, Bob Ramspeck of Georgia, and James Whitten and Arthur Winstead of Mississippi.

CHURCHILL IN DEFEAT

Winston Churchill recently told friends how he felt after his defeat in the British elections. The first few days after the returns were irrevocable, Churchill confessed. The very first morning there was some real heartbreak because there were no diplomatic cables to read. Through the war, his most harrowing chore was to read the top-secret military and diplomatic cables from other chiefs of state; and he paced up and down intermittently for days. Every time because there were no cables coming in and because, though he felt things were going wrong, there was no one to whom he could send cables to tell them about it.

"Finally I went down to the south of France," Churchill confessed. "There I started the well there, I painted several pictures and they fed me some excellent food. But still I couldn't get over this idea of not having cables to read and things going out. Each morning I fretted when I read the papers. But finally one morning I felt better. It suddenly dawned on me that I wasn't prime minister any more and it wasn't my worry, and I've felt better ever since."

Note — Churchill's health is in touch and go. His doctor has ordered him to cut down on his food and drinking.

Vocational Training Plan For Veterans Announced

A three-fold plan for vocational training for war veterans was announced today by Watson Armstrong, director of Vocational Education, Kentucky State Department of Education, Frankfort.

Veterans may study farming, trade and industrial occupations, and retail and wholesale distributive trades.

Veterans wanting trade and industrial training can attend any of the 13 area trade schools in Kentucky, or veterans can get on-the-job training.

Veterans wanting to learn a wholesale or retail distributive occupation can be employed by firms and be given jobs within the organization.

Veterans may take trade and industrial training in aircraft engines, sheet-metal work, woodwork, welding, automechanics, drafting, bookbinding, business machine operator, business education, commercial art, electrical wiring, industrial electricity, foundry, machine shop practice, masonry, painting, radio servicing, refrigeration, and other subjects.

Complete information regarding veteran training in vocational education can be had by contacting or writing the Division of Vocational Education, Frankfort, Ky., for trade and industrial training, by writing to a coordinator in an area trade scool. The nearest trade school is the Fayette County Vocational School, Lexington.

ON THE AIR

By Fred Emery

Versatile Actor

Barry Fitzgerald, who won an Academy Award for his performance as the lovable old priest in the motion picture, "Going My Way," and now is starred in "His Honor, the Barber," WLW - NBC Tuesday, 11:30 p. m., E.S.T., confesses that he went on the stage because he was lazy.

Stored with his job as a civil service clerk, he was happiest in the evenings that he spent backstage at Dublin's famed Abbey Theatre, idolizing the actors. His brother, a member of the Abbey Players, tired of seeing him inactive and advised a director to put him to work with a walk-on. He was soon given four words to say as the second sentry in "The Critic," three years later, in 1916, got his first good part — and then decided on an acting career.

He kept his government job for the first 10 years that he was associated with the Abbey Players, and to hide his identity from fellow government workers who might ridicule his acting aspirations, he took the name he has since made famous. His real name is William Joseph Shields. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, on March 10, 1888.

He played his first professional engagement in London in Sean O'Casey's "The Silver Tassie" in 1929. Then the Abbey Players went to Hollywood in 1937 to film O'Casey's "The Plough And The Stars," Fitzgerald made such a hit in the role of Father Good that he was offered a generous picture contract.

One of the proudest moments came while on a New York tour with the Players in 1934, when actors and critics presented him with a scroll naming him the most versatile comic actor of the English-speaking world."

Fitzgerald, a ruddy looking man with shaggy eyebrows that defy gravity, training or barber-shop cajoleries, is as much at home in Hollywood as in Ireland because he does exactly as he pleases. He shocks the colony's cosmopolites by arriving at the studio on motorcycle. He takes piano lessons because he had always wanted to, and when in New York, he spends hours wandering around the waterfront with an old pipe for company.
