BIBLE THOUGHT THIS WEEK.

Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.—Psalms 37:1.

UP TO THE PEOPLE

The industries of the United States have just starter a job that deserves unrestrained commendation. Thousands of them, through the National Industrial Information Committee, have joined in the greatest informational campaign to the people ever attempted by private enterprise.

The outstanding feature of this endeavor is the fact that a meeting of thousands of minds in all lines of diversified production and employment, was secured to act as a unit in presenting a program to the public on the Job industry must do and will do in meeting what are commonly called post-war problems. As a matter of fact, they are the problems that we have all fared since the world began, of earning our daily bread and butter. But never before has industry, in clear and concise language, tried to show the people where the public interest in helping to maintain conditions conducive to investment, and employment, and production, is greater than the interest of any industry involved.

In a series of advertisements that is running throughout the nation, the National Industrial Information Committee is endeavoring to make clear to the wage earner, the capitalist, the housewife and the employer, that there is no mythical means of making jobs either by industry or the government—that it is the people themselves who, by their own acts, create the conditions that make or destroy employment, earnings, savings and government.

While industry must furnish the jobs and will do all in its power to accomplish that end, the people who, in turn, are the workers, the investors and the government have the solution of industrial problems that create employment, in their own hands.

Industry in the United States represents America — not a few stockholders. The people must realize, and realize soon, that neither industry nor government can be more successful than the people will it to be. Industry is doing a tremendous job in focusing public attention on this issue.

OLD HANDS AT KEEPING AHEAD

Keeping a jump ahead of a competitor has always been the cardinal objective of the successful American enterprise. With this background, United States business men, when war came, turned from trying to outdo each other, to keeping ahead of the enemy in scientific development and production, like a dusk takes to water. They have not only been a jump ahead of the enemy but also, in most instances, have managed to keep a step ahead of the demands of our own military leaders.

Up to now, 100-octane gasoline has been considered the last word in aviation fuel. And yet representatives of the oil industry have announced that whenever the military authorities say the word, most of the up-to-date petroleum refining war plants in the country can turn out 'super fuel.' With it, carrier-based planes, and gigantic B-29 Superfortresses particularly, will have greater cruising range. It will imake possible the use of more powerful engines, will heighten maneuverability, and will permit bombers to carry heavier loads by delivering more horsepower per pound of engine."

Research in this fighter performance gasoline has been going on for two years. Laboratory analyses and field tests were made until the scientists knew they had the answer.

Here is another brief glimpse of what the United States, a land where the flames of individual ambition, inspiration and resourcefulness still burn brightly, has become the greatest military power on earth In a space of months.

FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, not only found time to endorse the March of Dimes, but also to send his personal contribution even before the drive opened on January 14th. In a letter to Basil O'Connor, President of The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, General Eisenhower declared: "Needless to say, I am sympathetic with all other Americans, applaud the fight you and your organization are making against infantile paralysis. I earnestly hope that your Campaign for raising funds during the coming January will be the most successful in your history. Enclosed you will find a personal donation."

Business And Professional People Of Carlisle

If you are interested in, and expect your local institutions to prosper and render the best service to behoven you to patronize them when and if they can render the service desired. If your local merchant can supply you with your needs he deserves your patronage as does any and all other businesses and institutions of your local community.

It is a know fact to the writer that some printing business has been sent out or taken out of Carlisle to be printed elsewhere. This practice is a clear indication of lack of interest in local industry. Your newspaper is the only local institution that portrays to readers outside Nicholas county the activities and "goings on" in your town and county. It publishes births of birth of your babies, marriages of your children, accounts of deaths of members of your families, personal, social and general news items of the activities, not least of these are the movements of your fighting men, all of which and much more is published at a cost to the management without any remuneration—and, it is published etiolly and freely without a thought of receiving anything for this service. However, if, when you have a job of printing or an advertisement, and refuse or neglect to recognize the services your newspaper is capable of rendering, you are sucking the life blood from one of your institutions you could not well get along without. The more paid business your editor has the better newspaper you will have. We have the equipment and have had, and will continue to have, sufficient force to take care any and all printing needs of this town and county. Kindly remember that when you are planning to send a job of printing to some firm outside Carlisle who has no interest in and who is not in a position to do any of the items mentioned above.

ROBOT BOMB ATTACKS ON AMERICA PREDICTED

Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commander-in-chief of the United States Atlantic Fleet, says that enemy robot bomb action against New York and other Atlantic points "is possible and probable within the next 30 or 60 days, but effective steps to meet this threat have been taken."

"If such an attempt is made," Admiral Ingram said a press conference, "it would probably be limited to 10 or 12 bombs. These would not be of the 'block-busting' type. They might strike a building and destroy it, but the casualties would be nothing like those which the people of London are suffering."

"Effective steps have been taken to meet the threat of Nazi buzzbombs, the admiral said, adding that meanwhile "there is no reason for any one to become alarmed."

SERGEANT MARSHALL WRITES ABOUT WAR

ed any division in the Battle of Europe.

"But the 30th Infantry Division received its baptism of fire on a tough assignment and in its rapid progress to the German frontier was marked by battles that have been vital in the master strategy of World War II.

"The all-important b r e a k-through south of pulverized St. Lo on July 25 and 26, already historically significant was spearheaded by the Old Hickorymen. A real fighting unit, the troops of the 30th had qualified for that assignment—which history cited as a passage through the hedgerow country allowing American armies to fan out over France—by a series of successful offensives against the Germans. At the outset the 30th drove the Germans back across the Vire River. Then in a spectacular attack the Old Hickorymen forced a crossing of the Vire River and pushed their drive on St Jo. These battles in the hedgerow section were real slugging matches, every foot of advance being bitterly and stubbornly contested and they were complicated by rough and frequent counter-attacks.

"However, some of the heaviest fighting remained to be accomplished by the 30th after it had given the "green light" to the armored drive that overwhelmed the Mortain-St. Barthelmy section when the 30th took over the area of the First Division at a time when four German panzer division struck in the most powerful blitz effort of the campaign, to drive through to Avranches and isoporate the American First and Third armies.

"It was there that infantry riflemen with bazookas, artillery and tank destroyers, cooks and messengers, with the help of U. S. planes and RAF rocketfiring Typhoons finally threw back the German tanks in a battle that seesawed for three days before the Germans concluded that they were no match for one American division. In this same battle, the great defensive at Mortain-St. Barthelmy, a battalion was isolated on a hill near Mortain, cut off without food ammunition and medical supplies for five and a half days and despite the fact the harassed infantrymen were under constant enemy observation artillery and mortar fire, they refused repeated demands to surrender.

"The 30th Infantry Division was commended for its heroic stand, for the courage and skill of its men who refused to let overwhelming odds discourage them in the battle against hell at St. Barthelmy, and for the loyalty and stamina of the men of what the "lost battalion" who defied surrender demands, their spokesman telling the Germans:

"Go to hell. We wouldn't surrender if our last round of ammunition was fired and our last bayonet broken off in a Jerry belly."

"This battle of the 30th against the best of the German armor started on the night of August 7-8 and a week later the Old Hickorymen again were forcing the retreat of the Germans.

"As opposed infantry spehd march record was made and another commendation won when on August 31 and September 1 the 30th dashed to Tournael, Belgium, covering 105 miles through enemy occupied territory in 72 hours. The march was motorized during the last two days and was screened by a task force of the division. The 30th was the first United infantry to enter Belgium.

"Still disrupting German efforts toward an orderly withdrawal, the Old Hickorymen drove on to become the first allied troops in Holland, arriving there on September 12, after having captured the famous border fortress, Eben Emael, on September 10. Maastricht, Holland, fell to the 30th on September 13 after which Old Hickory troops fought on into Germany, advance elements crossing the border at Horbach on September 14.

"The attack on the Siegfried Line started October 2, continued for two weeks, to establish the bridgehead in what was reputed to be the Germans to be their 'impenetrable West Wall.'

"More than 1,200 battle decorations have been awarded officers and men of the 30th Infantry Division for gallantry in action and meritorious service in the face of the enemy.

"The 30th Infantry Division is commanded by Major General L. S. Hobbs who has been twice decorated.

"Although it was originally built around troops from National Guard units of Tennesee, Georgia and the Carolinas, and thus gets its name, Old Hickory, from President Andrew Jackson, who led troops in that sector, the 30th's officers and men represent all states in the Union.

"The Division climaxed a colorful World War I history by cracking the Hindenburg Line, paving the way for Germany's ultimate defeat then. Will history repeat itself?"

LIFE
(Irene T. Downing)

Life is a space of time, perhaps a moment, may be years;
And when Wisdom comes space,
Life is full of doubts and fears,
Full of striving, longing too;
never with just Life content.
For a higher better plane.
Life is nearly always spent.

Life's a book of problems full,
some of which are never solved.
Ever Life on Future things and the Unknown is evolved.
Life is also love and joy; even here comes grief with mirth.
All thru Life Uncertainty waves its manner o'er the earth.

Life is really what 'tis made,
whether paths of ease or pain.
Summing Life up as a whole,
what's its end or what's its gain?
Death is Life's end on earth, the gain the happy Realms on High.
Taken as a whole, Life's to be born, live awhile and die.

A SOLDIER LETTER HOME

December 18, 1944

Somewhere in Luxembourg

I'm writing this short letter ever word is true.

Don't look away Draft Dodgers for its address to you. You feel at ease and in no danger back in your old home town.

You think up your pitiful stories but the Draft Board will turn you down.

You never think of the good men who are over day by day.

You just think of his girl friend you'll get while he is away.

You sit at home and read your paper, you jump up and say we win.

Just where do you get that we stuff that war will be won by men.

Just what would you do Draft Dodger. If this Free Nation would do.

If all the men were slackers and was scared to fight like you.

I guess we'd all Draft Dodger, for I know your face is red.

America is no place for your kind I mean every word I said from 18 to 39.

T-Sgt. Ollie C. Bussell.

MARINE WRITES POEM

Mr. and Mrs. Horman Shannon, of Moorefield, Ky., received the following poem from their son, Marine Pfc. Calvin Shannon, stationed somewhere in the South Pacific:

You can have your Army kakai,
You can have your Navy blue,
But there is still another fighter
I must introduce to you,
His uniform is different,
The best you ever seen.
His enemies call him devil dog.
His real name is Marine.
He is trained in San Diego,
The land that God forgot.
Where the sand is twenty-inches deep,
And the sun is scorching hot.
He has set many a table,
Many a dish he has dried.
He also learned to make a bed.
A broom he sure can guide.
He has peeled a million onions.
And twice as many spuds.
He has learned to mess time,
Washing up his duds.
Now, girls take a little tip
From me and you.
You get yourself a Leatherneck,
And there is nothing he can't do.
And when he goes to heaven.
To St. Peter he will tell
Another Marine reporting sir.
I've served my time in hell.

The Waiting Wives Club will meet Thursday, January 22, with Mrs. Billy Duncan at 7:15.

FORMER BEREA STUDENT GIVEN PRISON SENTENCE

A former Berea College student, Michael Fuhrmann, was given a four-year sentence at his trial in Federal District Court in New York for violation of the Selective Service Act, it is announced by M. W. McFarlin, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Louisville.

Fuhrmann, an army alien who was born Sept. 3, 1920, in Hedgen, Germany, came to this country on Sept. 30, 1938. He registered on Feb. 16, 1942, with Local Draft Board,113 at Richmond and later at his own request, was transferred to a New York board, Mr. McFarlin said.

On three occasions, the special agent stated, Fuhrmann did not report in response to induction calls issued by the two draft boards. He was indicted by a United States grand jury on Jan. 26, 1944.

IF HEAD COLDS HANG ON
DO THIS! To relieve discomfort, one of the best things you can do is to get a few spoonfuls of time-tested Vicks Vapoltub in a bowl of boiling water.
Then feel how wonderful relief come as you breathe in the steaming medicated vapors that penetrate to the cold-congested upper breathing passages! See how this soothes irritation, quiets coughing spells, helps bring on head-bringing grand comfort.
FOR ADDED RELIEF—rub throat, chest and back with Vapoltub at bedtime. Vicks Vapoltub works 2 ways—to relieve cold misery—to bring relief from distress. Try it. VICKS VAPORUB

WON'T YOU HELP?
THEY call it "The Crippler." For it leaves in its wake twisted bones and paralyzed muscles. Some of its victims die. Most recover and many recover completely. Hospital care is long and expensive. When an epidemic strikes, as it did last year, hundreds of victims might not get that care except for one thing — your support of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.
The Foundation will one day conquer "The Crippler." As it provides the healing facilities, it carries on continuous research. That, too, takes money. So once each year, culminating in a series of President's Birthday Parties, it asks your contribution.
State and county organizations conduct the solicitation and retain half the money for local hospitalization and research. The remainder serves as a great pool of health insurance which assures every victim of infantile paralysis, regardless of means, the best care medical science can provide.
If you are not solicited, mail your subscription to your County Polio Fund Chairman. Do your share during the campaign — January 15 to 31 — to end the terrible toll in human lives and suffering exacted "The Crippler."
