NEWS of KENTUCKY

Plans for establishing a Frances Jewell McVey scholarship fund in honor of the late educator and civic leader were formulated at Lexington last week.

A district meeting of the Kentucky Press Association was held at Mammoth Cave, Ky., Saturday, with representatives from about 40 newspapers attending Teaching techniques and training aids developed by the Army Air Forces will be demonstrated at the University of Kentucky next Friday, it was announced.

David Millard Look, 82, owner of Castleton Farm near Lexington, and for many years a leading figure in harness horse racing and breeding, died in New York City last week.

A field of more than 170 amateurs and 25 pros tuned up for the ninth annual Irvin Cobb golf championships, contested at Edwin J. Pastor Park at Paducah last Saturday and Sunday.

Kentucky's stars scintillated too brightly last Friday night for floodlights and a hundred-odd team of high school basketball players from the Blue Grass State defeated a similar group of Hoosiers 45-40.

Maj. Gen. Bertram M. Hoffmeister, commander of the Sixth Canadian Division, disclosed recently that his force will start training for the Pacific war early in September at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Ex-servicemen will be eligible for admission to law schools on the basis of what they learned in the Army, rather than on length of service, under a ruling of regulations approved by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Attorney General Dummit, of Kentucky, declared it is impossible to reopen election registration books to accommodate returning service men who want to register in order to vote in the August 4 primaries.

Commonwealth Air Transport, Covington, Ky., at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing, proposed the establishment of seven routes to serve seven Midwestern and Southeastern States, including numerous Kentucky points.

Kentucky Democrats have set their sights on at least 66 seats in the House and 23 seats in the Senate at the 1945 General Assembly. The party held 56 of the 100 House seats in the 1944 General Assembly and 23 of the 38 Senate seats.

County patrolmen are making an investigation to determine the extent of the theft and illicit slaughtering of beef for the black market in Lexington and Fayette county, County Patrol Chief John W. McCord announced.

The seven passenger cars that takes Gov. Simeon Willis on official trips was laid up for repairs following a collision with a truck in Woodford county late Monday afternoon.

New Commander

Gen. Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell, the hero of China, has been named to lead the triumphant Tenth Army—conquerors of Okinawa—to new battles against the Japanese, it was announced.

Notes On Local Soil Conservation

Stanley Hamm, near Blue Licks, has put in several diversion ditches according to G. B. Pruit, representative of the service. He also cut one large drainage ditch to protect a bottom from water coming off the adjoining farm.

W. E. Miller, of the Conway road, worked out a complete conservation plan with the district office. Included in the plan is a good stock and fish pond, spring development and several diversion ditches.

Albert Henry, of the East Union area, also signed a conservation agreement with the Nicholas county Soil Conservation district last week. Mr. Henry reports after observing results from diversion ditches, he would like to have help in constructing some on his own farm.

Several farmers have reported that diversion ditches have completely saved both the soil and crops during these recent heavy rains.

Casualties Reach High Figure

Combat casualties of the armed forces during the past four months ed 1,023,453, an increase of 6,356 in the last week.

The toll, as announced by the Army and Navy, included 234,711 killed, 620,032 wounded, 50,864 missing, and 117,846 prisoners.

The Army accounted for 903,701 of the aggregate and the Navy for 119,752. Undersecretary of War Patterson said the Army figure was based on individual names received through June 14 and reflected battle events through most of May.

691,018 Cars In 9 Months Authorized

The War Production Board, authorizing civilian production by 10 automobile manufacturers who have supplied nothing but war equipment since February, 1942, approved the manufacture of 691,018 passenger cars between July 1, 1945, and March 31, 1946.

The total is more than 90,000 cars greater than earlier estimates. Then it was predicted that 200,000 cars would be authorized for the last half of this year and 400,000 in the first three months of next.

Kentucky Drivers 'Stepping On It' 4 Of Mile Faster

Vehicles using Kentucky highways travel at the average rate of 40.9 miles an hour, four-tenths of a mile faster than was recorded in 1944 by the Division of Planning, Department of Highways, Commissioner J. Stephen Watkins announced.

Out-of-state motorists are the fastest drivers with an average of 42.9 miles an hour, and riders next at 42.4 miles. Buses travel at 40.9 miles an hour and trucks of all kinds only exceed the rural limit of 35 miles an hour by 2.5 miles, according to the study.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM GEORGE ROBERTS

George Roberts has kept the members of the local post office force abreast of his activities while on duty with a postal unit in the ETO in England, France, Belgium and now writes the following from Germany.

Dear Sis, & Bobbie

When I came the letter to you all last, we were stationed at Rheidt, a little to the west of Cologne, Since then we have moved almost five times. Our farthest point of advance in this end was to the town of Oschersleben, a little to the southwest of Magdeburg. We were stationed there from April 18 to May 13. At two other places between that town and the Rhine, we stopped for about five days each. Those were short-chatted stops that we have ever made and were so of course because of the miles of field artillery etc., were moving so swiftly thru Germany. At these two places we were located in farm-German army and Luftwaffe-building there at Detmold, our building seemed to have been the administration headquarters. It was well furnished and a lot of it had fine, class covered pictures of Hitler, Goering, etc. were hanging around, and orders, etc. were quite many on the bulletin board and doors.

It was at our next location at Hildesheim that we first talked to a lot of liberated American and British ever. They were being processed there for shipment home. Some of the British taken at Dunkirk had been prisoners of the Germans for five years. Most of the Americans we were taken in the Ardennes battle on December and January. They were very friendly with us that they couldn't be fed all they wanted.

This town of Goslar is about fifty miles west of our last location. We arrived here on the 15th. This place is not damaged at all and it looks as if the war had never touched it from it. The reason, I suppose is that there are no industrial plants here. I think that in peacetime Goslar was a resort and tourist spot. There are many hotels here and the town has a real old and quaint appearance. I'll include here a picture card. It is being used by an army outfit of course, but we are the regular hotel furnishings and German women still wait on the tables. We hope that we don't move too soon but we think it will be too good here to last.

I can imagine what good news it was there, at home when the war against the Germans was finally ended. It was very good here. There wasn't any celebrating, just work as usual. Most of us over here feel that we'll be doing our jobs as usual for some time to come, and everybody thinks it will be their back to it for the Pacific, and of course, a lot of them are right. Those with the eighty-five points are going home, they have a measley fifty-one, but it might eventually be ten more when the reported new campaign awards are made. For the time that I've been in service though, I am very well satisfied with the army.

Many welcome changes will come as a result of the ending of the war. Especially our letters do not have to be censored. Passes and furloughs will be plentiful and a man can visit almost any point that he may choose in western Europe or England. All soldiers will be stationed in buildings and under very nice conditions.

In the other letter I mentioned that the unit was intact as formed at Breckinridge. You have perhaps heard recently, by the two of them killed in a truck accident.

Sgt. Gault has the potential post to holding until there in Nichlas and if every thing goes well he will ride in unopposed. They look to be some real interesting months ahead.

In case I should go to the Pacific then I'll be home for a few months. As for time that I still have in the service, the surest thing I know is that a man gets out about two years I am getting so long to you all

Your friend,

George L. Roberts

Better Recreation For Young People

That there will be greater recreational opportunities provided for young people in rural communities following the war is the suggestion of a group of engineering groups are carried out was brought by Miss Myrtle Weidner, state leader of home demonstration work, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Most of the communities have recreational plans. For example, the lack of recreation facilities and are recommending the use of available buildings, as rural centers, the building of picnic grounds and, in a few instances, the promotion of organized and supervised youth centers.

BIRTHS

FREDERICK

Pfc and Mrs. W. S. Frederick of Mine, Miss., have announced the birth of a son born on June 11. He has been named William Virgil. Mrs. Frederick was formerly Miss Bobbie Nell Tanner, of Mississippi. Private Frederick, who is a son of Elmer Frederick, this county, is stationed in a West Virginia hospital. He was wounded in action while serving with the armed forces and was returned to this country in September.

The United States has produced 50 per cent more food annually in this war than in World War I.

HOLLYHOCKS

How tall and stately they stand! They are one only grass

They are proud—and rightfully so—

Of their splendid loveliness.

We may perceive that they look upward

Toward the calm, blue, June sky.

Is that the secret of their strength—

The reason they grow so high?

You see, I have communed with them

While following garden walks.

And learned that they truly love Him:

The God who lives hollyhocks

LETTERS FROM OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

The following is taken from a letter written by Yeoman Hubbard M. Endicott of the U. S. Navy.

The picture which you are using for the Seventh War Loan drive must have been one which we witnessed. Of course, we might have missed the exact timing with the photographer, but with field glasses we viewed all action on Mount Suribachyu before and after both flags were placed there. The flags beautifully symbolized the Marine conquest of the very spots where only a few hours before we had watched Japs moving and hurrying around. In fact, Dog Nine became so brazen that a few special shots were taken at them with our own little battery. We were unable to ascertain the results, but they did become less noticeable. I shall not speak of the price we paid for the victory because that would emphasize the passing of some very good friends, some of whom I have not yet learned about.

We can now mention some of the things we have been doing since the Two Jima Campaign. You've no doubt followed the Okinawa story in the newspapers and on the radio through the bombardment, landings and suicide plane attacks, but only until dawn came ships, big ships, little ships, all types, sizes and descriptions, to join in the well planned fracas that was to in-
