BIBLE THOUGHT THIS WEEK

Children obey your parents in the Lord for this is right.—Ephesians 6th Chapter, first verse.

WE ARE WINNING THE WAR —BUT—

Are the people of the United States being adroitly educated into the belief that they are no longer competent as individuals to manage their own affairs? Are these influences at work in our country taking advantage of the war to sow the seeds of state socialism? There is a persistent effort being made to convince the people that wartime controls and restrictions must follow into the postwar era.

War brings not only the threat of an attacking enemy, but the danger of entrenched officialism which never willingly relaxes its grip.

The United States in the world's greatest example of the accomplishments of a free people, as contrasted with nations where governments have been in the drivers seats.

When this war started, free enterprise in the United States was prepared to produce; the railroads were ready to transport; the electric power companies were ready to furnish power, the coal mines, the oil wells, the etail distributing system, agriculture, our automobile, industry, all business was ready to go at the drop of a hat. American industry long had been producing on an efficient, competitive basis, as contrasted with the lethargy of government monopolies in foreign nations.

Mobilization and distribution of a nation's resources in wartime, including her sons and daughters, is one thing — but -bureaucratic control of the industries and business of a free nation, and the substitution of political management and judgement for individual energy, intelligence and resposnsibility in peacetime, is another thing. The latter leads to the death of liberty as surely as the first prevents the encroachment of tyranny.

A PRIZE WINNER

A bill introduced in the last session of Congress to provide for a Rural Telephone Administration with some hundred million dollars to disburse in various ways has been reintroduced as Senate Bill 73 in the present Congress. While the bill provides for loans for or expanding public money for private or public telephone service in rural areas, its real objective appears to be to open the way for governmental agencies to get into the telephone business.

Just why public funds should be spent for this purpose, other than to increase the field of government competition with business, is hard to see. Before the war the telephone industry, including thousands of independent and farmer lines, was the wonder of all nations, as it gave this country the greatest telephone service in the world.

Wartime manpower and materials shortages slowed up extension of telephone service. Under this unavoidable delay in construction as an excuse for exorbitant taxpayers' money to build telephone lines, is not logical, for essential projects which are materials and manpower during the present emergency, would be as damaging to the war effort as would private construction. Once the emergency is over, the private industry can go ahead with a program already planned for rapid expansion, which does not require tax funds.

Of all the uncalled-for devices to tap the Federal treasury, a Rural Telephone Administration would seem to take the prize.

SORRY SPECTACLE

Contending that Congress and the War Production Board have legalized the so-called cooperative method of initiating railroad rates during the war, R. V. Fletcher, of Washington, D. C., Vice-President of the Association of American Railroads, in commenting on the Department of Justice's antitrust suit against the railroads, says:

"This is no time for either public or private agencies to require an essential industry to answer charges based upon a narrow and technical interpretation of the law.

"I measure my words when I say that it is a tragic thing for men to be charged with violation of law by reason of their doing what the highest authority in the government has approved as being essential to the war effort and in the public interest.

"The Association of American Railroads . . . does not exist as a rate-making body. In this time of war, when it is necessary for the War and Navy Departments to secure rate adjustments upon short notice, the Association has been functioning as a part of an every-day rate authority, with power to make changes in rates applicable to military traffic when the ends of justice require prompt action.

"Yet the Justice Department seeks the dissolution of the Association of American Railroads at a time when, without some such central organization, we would have a repetition of what happened in the First World War, when, as a result of congestion, conflicting orders and confusion, the war effort was seriously retarded.

"The action of the Justice Department in its attack upon the railroads, is in effect, a direct attack on the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is a sorry spectacle in a nation which is giving its lives and its wealth to perpetuate American ideals of justice, liberty and freedom.

LOAFERS AND HOARDERS

The Mead Committee has made public glaring examples of loafing on the job and labor hoarding.

Stories of a similar nature from unofficial sources have been of common knowledge. Private citizens can recount from their own experience, disgraceful examples of deliberate loafing on war jobs. Many conscientious workers have quit war jobs because they could not stand the waste of time they were required to endure.

The answer to criticism of labor loafing and labor hoarding is always, "We have produced the goods." That may be true, but at what a price! How much more could have been produced otherwise! We have now reached the point where both money and manhours are growing scarcer. Let us hope that if the Mead Committee is not able to penalize or punish labor loafers or labor hoarders, that revelations which it can make will expose the nation and shame the offenders into a correction of their ways.

The World At War
No. 164

By Charles M. Knapp,
Professor of History,
University of Kentucky

THE PHILIPPINES: Gen MacArthur's armies in the Philippines continued to roll on and over the Japanese defenders of Manila, Bataan, Corregidor and central Luzon. Ruined city streets were cleared of Japanese and the air and seaborne invaders of Corregidor wiped out Japanese troops penned up in that area. Japanese resistance in the intramuros city of Manila were also breached last week and organized Japanese resistance within the city was ended. Several additional thousands of military and civilian prisoners, American, British, Dutch and Filipino were liberated, some by extremely willing and dramatic actions. The strait between Bataan and Luzon was opened by the capture of small Japanese garrisons on several islands in the strait. While there are probably many thousands of Japanese troops still at large on Luzon and other islands as well as on Mindanao, the southernmost island where the Japanese apparently expected the Filipino to put his first landings, it would not appear to be the case that all these troops can be formed up by American troops and those of the Filipino guerrillas who have been giving extremely valuable aid all along.

IWO JIMA AND TOKYO: Iwo Jima, a small volcanic island less than eight miles square in the half-way between Guam and Tokyo, saw American Marines ashore last Sunday morning to build a terrific naval and air base. The first days glances and all sorts and kinds of navy craft had shelled the island and emplacements carved out of the volcanic rock. Dozen deposits of volcanic ash had literally absorbed the shock of large shells and bombs. Direct hits had knocked out guns but gunners usually had been remained and the troops had been safely sheltered most of the time. The beachhead was narrow and the footing poor. But in spite of a withering fire from machine guns and rifles and heavier fire of casualties sustained, the Marines on troops in this war, the Marines fought their way ashore and secured a narrow beachhead that morning.

At this writing latest reports claim that one air strip and a half of another, as well as the highest peak on the island, has been captured by the Marines The capture of the remainder of the island will require time and the casualties will, in the end, be far higher even than at Tarawa last year. In spite of continued raids by planes of all sorts on the Japanese mainland airfields, some Japanese planes have succeeded in raiding the fleet shelling Iwo Jima and in inflicting some damage on American naval craft. Carrier planes have again today been reported raiding Tokyo and as having caused some damage to the Emperor's palace grounds.

THE WESTERN FRONT: As the flood waters of the Rhine have receded during the week the American armies are that front resumed on an even greater scale offensive operations. Advances measured in miles rather than in yards marked the rule toward the end of the week The Roer river dams were left behind and th advanced lines came within 13 miles of Cologne, the immediate objective of the Eisenhower's Allied offensive. Gen Patton's Third Army has been driving further south against Coblenz. The German resistance seems to be intent on fighting-it out to the end in the terrain west of the Rhine. Directed from the air, it seemed that only a fraction of their vast forces will be able to cross the Rhine. Most of the bridges have been destroyed and the rail and highway communications have been under the heaviest kind of air attack all along the line. Communications system should, by now, be pretty thoroughly snarled up.

THE RUSSO-GERMAN FRONT: The drive of Gen. Konstantin Russian commander of the forces operating in East Prussia, was reported last week, but only after he had succeeded in capturing almost all of that province. Elsewhere, the Russians have spent the week in preparing for what Stalin has announced as the final drive for victory.

SERGEANT HOLLAR WRITES MERCURY

Gives Report On Hospital Construction. Sends Poem; Greets Friends

The following is received by The Mercury from Sgt. Wm. L. Hollar, whose address is Hq. 3 York Co., Feb. 1, 1945.

To Carlisle Mercury,—

Dear Friends of Nicholas County

I'm getting settled fine and enjoying good health. Have acquired a knowledge of European countries and the people from which I hope will be of value in later years.

I want to wish everyone in Nicholas county as much success and happiness as possible under war conditions. We are doing our best to make this a victorious year.

The followind is a clipping giving some information of the work of the hospital of which I am proud to be a member.

Hospital Put Up Around Busy Medics

With Advance Sawdy Forces, Belgium, Jan. 28 — While Army medics treated wounded GIs in a 200-year-old Tyrolean mental asylum and advancing infantry and cavalry past, the 372nd Engr Regt built a modern 3,000-bed hospital around them without halting any activities, operations and using advanced French and German materials.

"Our hospitals in England were all built according to design," said Capt. Edgar H. Bachrach, former New York surgeon. "When we moved to France we had a number of the Masonic Lodge Orient Temple being rebuilt Now we're in better operating rooms than in those permanent hospitals."

Didn't Wait For Plans

The medics told us what they wanted so we started to build it," Col Fred S. Arnold, of S. n Francisco, Cal., chief surgeon of the Engineers. "By the time the operating room we had nearly finished the job."

French plumbing and German lumber and steel from captured dumps were used in the construction. Generators, stoves, water heaters, guns and rifles and heavier rate of casualties sustained by American troops in this war, the Marines fought their way ashore and secured a narrow beachhead that morning.

At this writing latest reports claim that one air strip and a half of another, as well as the highest peak on the island, has been captured by the Marines The capture of the remainder of the island will require time and the casualties will, in the end, be far higher even than at Tarawa last year. LOCAL PERSONAL SOCIAL

JOY

Joy dwells within each consciousness
Beyond the reach of hate it glows
In shining strength, redeeming all,
As man his true dominion knows.

Joy is the light emitting good,
The motivating force that bathes
With radiant love the hungry hearts
It comforts, heals, and saves.

Joy is a quality of God,
Man's birthright, his present goal
Joy overflows the heart which sings,
"Because God is, I too am whole!"
