Launching of the War Loan Drive here Sept. 20 will mark an innovation in local campaigns because of the fact that the drive this fall will include not only the raising of funds for the National War Fund but will include also the subscription of money for the use of a newly inaugurated Community Chest.

In other words, the single drive to be begun Sept. 20 will do away with the necessity for additional drives for various purposes as in the past since the over-all quota for the county allows for the raising of resources to be devoted to local Scout organizations, to the Kentucky Crippled Children's fund, toward the infantile paralysis movement and for research and control of cancer.

Formerly the community was faced with the necessity of meeting a number of campaigns during the year and this new method will be the means of sparing the work involved and the discommoding effect which a number of drives, coming one after the other at intervals, generally can have on donors and solicitors alike.

This manner of handling a situation, which every community must face, is a commendable one as it is a case of getting this duty over and done with in one drive.

Every one recognizes the need to continue to make provision for the USO and other means to minister to the needs of the armed forces even though the war is over because millions of our citizens are still in uniform, are still transcient and are still subjects for the generosity of a grateful people.

Every one recognizes the crying need to provide for youth, both in health and incapacitated, for the alleviation of suffering of children, and for research into causes and control of dread disease.

The general public will soon be asked to raise Nicholas county's share of funds needed for these worthwhile and necessary purposes. By doing so an obligation to the armed forces will be discharged and the initial drive for an annual Community Chest here will be given the stamp of approval.

Now that the horse and dog show has been assured and the date set, the Legion has moved in with characteristic thoroughness to see that the event is a success. Committees have been appointed from among citizens who are best acquainted with the staging of such affairs and the names of those selected give assurance that full effort will be given the work of organization and management.

Now that the war is over and more and more members of the armed forces will be returning home the Legion can be benefitted by the addition of young blood and these newer comrades in-arms will give additional energy and impetus to activities of the peaceful future.

It will behoove every citizen of the county to lend support to the aims of the Legion here to make the horse and dog show an occurance which will encourage the building up of a regional exposition as time goes on for it is the aim of those in charge of plans to expand the initial show this year into an agricultural and stock show which will be representative of the entire section and attract many visitors to Carlisle in years to come.

GLANCES HERE AND THERE
By I. D. Zern

Bernard J. Santen, Paris banker and prominent Legionnaire for many years, has expressed to me a keen interest in the upcoming horse and dog show to be staged here the 28th.

A subscriber to The Mercury, Bernard is a sort of step-son of Nicholas county, being the owner and operator of a 300 acre farm near Ellisville and being compelled by many other business interests to maintain too high a degree of absentee landlordship over his property here.

His energy, long a potent factor in Bourbon county affairs, should be of great assistance to local promoters of the horse and dog event, in the way of securing outside-the-county support for the Nicholas county Legion-sponsored fall show.

Bernard has long enjoyed a reputation for shrewd business acumen as well as having the happy facility of getting enjoyment out of life. As an old friend, I would like to suggest to him that if one day he retires to his farm here and becomes a bona-fide resident of Nicholas county, he will find out more about what the enjoyment of life is really like.

Among other subscribers to The Mercury since June 1 who reside in Bourbon county, sister county to Nicholas, between which Ed Prichard recently said there was really no county line are: Frederick A. Wallis, Clarence K. Thomas, Harvey Rogers, Billie Dale, Owings Kookendoffer, James L. Gorey, Ed Prichard, John Sauer, Luther Gaunce, Jack Cohan, Duke Smith and Clayton Cannon. As it is The Mercury enjoys a wide circulation in Bourbon since such former residents here as Chan Thompson, T. A. Richards, John Bishop, John Lee and Dr. Harry Mathers, to name a few, have taken the paper for years.

Many acquaintances like these coupled with running into such people here in Carlisle every few days as "Lute" Woodall, Emerson Woodall, Jack Thomas, Tommie Kincart, Bill Hudnall, Bill Phillips, Martin Judge and other former sojourners in Paris, has made things much easier for the management of this newspaper.

George D Scott, Jr., who does a lot of auctioneering around and about Kentucky was an unsuspecting guest of a Lexington radio broadcast several days ago when, while walking along the street, he was accosted by a man with a mike. George answered the usual questions, listeners reported, with a good deal of his usual alacrity and when queried why he took auctioneering stated at once that it was because he had decided to have a voice in things. He did some tobacco auctioneering for the unseen audience of the station and ended by selling a crop to Purcell's, sponsor of the program.

George told me yesterday that he had just returned from Alexandria where he conducted a $37,000 real estate sale, auctioned off several valuable saddle horses and a large number of catalogued pure-bred Holsteins.

* * *

John Anderson, the county sheriff, picked me up in Paris the other day and brought me with him to Carlisle thereby saving me bus fare and getting me back to the job earlier than I had hoped to be able to come.

While riding with him, John told me many things about Nicholas county which I was glad to learn and which will help me mightily in my work among the people here. John is a good official, knows the county and has the interests of the county at heart as his conversation with me revealed.

He can be numbered among those who wish to see the county achieve great things in the future and who will lend personal talents to every progressive endeavor.

Young Charles Harper, who has been visiting in Charleston, W. Va., says that he was regaled by a view while there of the 1946 Ford automobile. He enthusiastically informed his father and other members of the Harper garage personnel here that the new product of fast-moving American assembly lines appears to be a "honey" and passed the word along to a number of local residents, now lined-up to get new cars as they become available, that they won't be disappointed when the long-awaited day for delivery arrives.

* * *

Louise Swinford, who has been with the Mercury since before the change of management June 1, has left us and will attend the University of Kentucky where she will take up the study of law this fall. Louise has been an invaluable employe here and we are all sincerely sorry to lose her. Her careful attention to the task ahead, her amiability and her desire to learn, as these qualifications were daily manifested here, will serve to take her far in her chosen field. She takes with her the gratitude of the Mercury staff, for service well rendered and all best wishes for success in life.

* * *

Mrs. Howard Colliver, who formerly was identified with The Mercury has accepted employment again with the newspaper and her knowledge of the news and printing field will be an asset of incalculable value in the continued improvement of the paper as everyone here will readily agree. Mrs. Colliver is a member of a family which has efficiently staffed the Mercury for many of its most useful years.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY
END OF WAR TIME

People are beginning to ask: When are we going to get back to standard time? The question is being asked in city folk and farm-folk.

Doubtless the right and left abandonment of wartime controls has induced many persons to hope for repeal of daylight-saving or war time. Many persons do not like daylight-saving any more than they liked numerous other wartime restrictions on the traditional American way of life.

Cities have accepted daylight-saving time. Many favor adopting wartime. Most farmers, however, have a steadfast dislike of it. Generally, urbanites and ruralites alike would rather get back to standard time.

It is probable that Congress will do something about the matter within the next few weeks. Many of the members of that body have been in favor and sharpened for daylight-saving time.

It is to be hoped that there will not be the difference of opinion between the legislature and the executive branches of the government over the matter in restoring the nation's clocks which existed at the end of the war in 1918 as there was in the previous efforts to end daylight-saving time. Then, as now, President Wilson vetoes the last one being overridden in October, 1919. There seems likely to be a difference of opinion this time, repeal of daylight-saving time now having been brought about by concurrent resolution without reference to the President.—Woodford Sun.

WHY WRANGLE OVER A DEBT THAT CANNOT BE PAID

It seems pointless for the United States and Great Britain to engage in a long tedious and expensive controversy over the latter's debt to this country and the matter of cancelling lend-lease. Britain never paid her debt for World War I, which was small in comparison with that of the present war. There is no sound logic for believing that the Empire can or will pay the debt as the result of two wars.

The British Empire is a necessary expense in so far as this country is concerned. By holding on in the early years of the war Britain probably saved us an invasion of this country. That was worth a great deal to America, but at the same same time American intervention in a war that threatened the existence of the Empire. The United States could not in either of the two wars afford to let the British lose, and if there is another war the same situation will exist.

The British attitude over the cancellation of lend-lease and settlement of the debt is not good, and it won't be. Presumably the British think we can afford a war and should be willing to ease their load, if not take it over entirely. The United States cannot change the British way of thinking and there is no way to forcibly collect the debt. We might as well write it off and charge it off as a necessary expense, and hope we won't have to do it all over again thirty years from now.—Union County Advocate.

Part 2 of a grand homecoming . . .
(Part 1 is up to us)

Long before his troubles vanish in her warm embrace . . . long before he see home again, he can be there—if you will help him.

The first thought of thousands of weary men, now landing in the South, is to rush to the telephone and call home.

What a disappointment if they find all long distance lines busy and they can't get their calls through.

Your telephone company is doing all that is humanly possible and you can help, too, by skipping all unnecessary calls—and by cutting short the essential ones.

If you find this inconvenient, just remember what that first call home means to returning service men.

"From Over The Line"
(By J. W. Rogers)

"Blessed are the peace makers for they shall be called the children of God."

The Foreign Ministers Council composed of Secretaries from the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France and China (The "Big Five") are jointly working on a program that will be the foundation for world peace, happiness and prosperity.

The following trade and crop report from Harrison county may be timely:

Real estate trade is quite lively on high grade farms with quite a bit heavier lately and at slight decline in prices paid, owing to rush in dispersal sales. Old Lewis Hunter Distillery having recently been purchased for an indefinite length of time. Trade in sheep, lambs and wood is quite active and prices high level in quantity and quality. The 1945 crop of lambs is very promising.

An average crop of corn and wheat reported.

Harvesting of the tobacco crop is now in its full force. Less weight and better quality reported. Also best smoker type since 1936, is seen. Late crops may be injured by too much dry weather.

All in all, a good stock and crop report has been given us.

We read with special interest, the splendid V-J Day program and exercises in Carlisle reported in last week's Mercury. Wish we could have witnessed them We, too, staged an interesting V-J Day parade and public speaking program in Cynthiana Monday night, September 3. The parade consisted mainly of Legionnaires on horseback in advance, group of color guards of the remnants of World War II, led by the Cynthiana high school band, Gold Star Mothers car in honor of fallen sons, body of World War II service men and veterans, groups of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Cynthiana fire department truck, I. O. O. F.'s and lastly a trail of boys and girls riding and walking.

A strong sympathetic patriotic address by Rev. Frank King, Cynthiana Methodist church, at the court house, followed with an earnest prayer by Rev. C. N. Burnette. Cynthiana Christian church, conducted the program, and Bugle taps rang out soft and gentle.

Good people all of one accord, Keep on crossing the line;
You'll see us and we'll see you,
And that will be doing fine.

O. K. and on our way,
Back again some other day.

HE SHALL NEVER DIE

Just over the cloud,
Where the silver is shining,
God grant you a vision
Of this beautiful lining.

Think not he is dead
He is only away
To his heavenly Father,
He went home to stay.

He bathed in the bloods
Of the lamb of God,
And now he walks
Where saints have trod.

He accepted the grace
Of Jesus Christ,
And was born in the Kingdom
Of God above.

He lives on high,
Up in the sky
And in God's love
He will never die.

Your son waits there
To see you, dear,
Grieve not, have hope
And keep good cheer.

U. Of K. Lab Aided In Gasoline Research

It should be a great source of pride to Kentuckians generally to know that much of the essential work in the development of the "super" aviation gasolines which made possible those long-ranging bombing missions in Europe and the Pacific took place in a small but modern laboratory on a corner of the University of Kentucky campus.

Although much of the work done in this laboratory during the war was of a restricted nature, since ninety per cent was for the armed forces and has not yet been released for publication, it is well-known, according to Andre J. Meyer, laboratory director, "that fuel research now is at least two years ahead of engine research."

The University experiments started more than a year before the United States entry into the war, were conducted in a laboratory built by Axel L. Wenner-Gren, the Swedish industrialist later blacklisted for his connections with Nazi industry.

Understimating the potentialities of gasoline, Germany and Japan organized their air forces for 300-mile operations. The Allies, capitalizing on the blunder, sought maximum power for long-range performance.

The University of Kentucky experiments dealt with the behavior of fuels operated under high compression in the cruising range. The experts were concerned chiefly with detonation characteristics of several fuels. After determining these, experiments were able to prescribe specifications and treatments for production of a particular variety of high test fuel. The gasoline was then made to order for the engine it was to power.

The University operates the only full-scale aviation fuel research program in the country, according to Prof. Meyer.

Editor Resents Attempt To Sell Seaway Plan On Basis Of TVA And Its "Phony Bookkeeping"

Evasion Of Truth

"If the St. Lawrence Seaway is approved, thousands of additional men, transportation workers and others will suffer possible loss of jobs. While a few cities benefit from being on or near the seaway, the big center of population will be on the side of liability for the taxpayers as a whole, not only in initial costs but for effects after completion.

"Senator Aiken recently cited figures of the Federal Power Commission, showing that New York and New England paid $619,000,000 for electrical energy in 1943, which, at Tennessee Valley rates, would have cost only $312,000,000.

Is The Saving Real?

"THE figures truly show a great saving, but are TVA rates possible by reason of actual saving or because the taxpayers of the nation have made up the difference, and more?

"TVA long has been charged with phony bookkeeping — bookkeeping in which original cost and later operational costs are charged off in part to flood control. Which nowise is flood control. Development of power and flood control within the same project are not compatible. Nevertheless the power rates within the Tennessee River valley continue to build flood walls.

"It is further charged that land taken over by TVA for reservoirs represents a greater area than was ever flooded. In creating great reservoirs for the constant production of electrical power, TVA, it is charged, has made the valley more vulnerable to flood.

Evasion Of Truth

"If any case, charging costs off to navigation, private power or to power production is an evasion of truth. Private power companies long have charged that waterpower, except in unique situations such as Niagara Falls, is really an obsolete and too expensive source of energy.

"And they say that power produced by steam is much cheaper, because of lesser cost of original installations, because of lower operational costs and because increase in transmission of power over long distances are averted. The power companies offer figures.

Claims Much Exaggerated

"TVA has been sold to the American public by a flood of propaganda going on for years. But careful study of costs reveals TVA claims of cheap power greatly exaggerated. In fact, computing all costs which taxpayers must pay, TVA is more expensive than that produced by private companies. Cheap waterpower is a myth."

Facing the staggering debt of a victorious war, which can only be paid from taxes, how long are people going to permit TVA and other Government corporations to evade paying their fair share of these taxes and (in the case of TVA) interest on its debt of almost a billion dollars, to the Federal Treasury?
