

THE GARDEN
 By A. Gardner, Extension Agent, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Forestry, Lexington, Ky.

LAST THINGS TO DO
 With active growing season drawing to a close, a review of the summer's activities should be undertaken. This is the time to look back on the things that have been done, and to plan for the future. The gardener's season is not over, for the harvest is still being gathered up. The season will not close until the frost comes, and then the same amount of work will have to be done again.

Here and there, last spring, tomato plants were sown and gardeners took what they could get. In some cases, the plants were not sown until late in the season, and the harvest was not as good as it should have been. The gardener should be careful to get the tomato plants sown in time to get a good crop.

Recipe of The Week
 Sweet potatoes are a highly nutritious food and a healthy addition to any diet. They are easy to grow and can be stored for a long time. The recipe for sweet potatoes is as follows:

Preparation:
 1. Wash the sweet potatoes and scrub them with a stiff brush.
 2. Cut them into slices or cubes.
 3. Boil them in salted water for 20-30 minutes.
 4. Drain them and mash them with butter and sugar.

Expert Urges Delay In Buying Clothes
 Don't buy clothes now for fall and winter if you can do without them is the advice of Miss Thelma Thelma, clothing store manager at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Forestry. She says that the price of clothes is still high and that it is better to wait until the price comes down.

Final Payment Made On 4-H, Utopia Camp
 An advance of about $500 from the state has been received for the final payment on the 4-H, Utopia Camp. The camp is located in Boone county and is one of the best of its kind in the state.

Homemakers Plan Before Spending
 With manufacturers promising to supply a large amount of goods at low prices, homemakers are urged to plan before spending. The plan should include a list of the things that are needed and the amount of money that is available.

It's Up to You Now, Son
 "Now maybe that sounds a little bit bragging. Well, I reckon we've got a long coming, me and my company both. They've treated me right all these years and they're treating me right now that the time for my pension is here."

"Like I said, you've got to do more than just take the old man's place. That's got to be done in good, dependable ways. New factories are moving in. Good, dependable electric service at low rates is being brought in. That's where you come in, Son. You have a great tradition to live up to—the service tradition of the K. U. Organization. You're helping Kentucky grow. And you're helping all our people—farmers, workers, merchants and all the rest, including yourself, Son—along the road to postwar prosperity and stability."

RADAR
 Spotted Enemy Targets Through Darkness, Smoke or Fog
 The Bell System—The largest source of Radar for our fighting forces
 This is the compelling for Radar development and production stems from the same roots that produced and continue to nourish this country's telephone system.
 Radar, the instrument which enabled our land, sea and air forces to spot enemy targets through darkness, smoke or fog, was one of the outstanding new fighting instruments of the war.
 Two years before Pearl Harbor the Government asked Bell Telephone Laboratories to put its wide experience and knowledge of electronics to work to help perfect Radar as a military instrument. From then on the Laboratories cooperated closely in the Radar program with the National Defense Research Committee, with Army and Navy specialists, and with scientists of Great Britain.
 The Western Electric Company, manufacturing branch of the Bell System, became the Nation's largest supplier of Radar systems. One type it made was universally used by B-29's in the Pacific for navigation, target location and high altitude bombing. Another played an important part in aiming the guns on our warships.
 If you're waiting for a home telephone, it helps a little to know that Radar is one of the reasons. For years telephone manufacturing plants were devoted to war needs.
