FARM LAND AND PERSONAL PROPERTY

On account of ill health and no help compells Mrs. E. O. Browning to sell her home and farm land together with her personal property, which is located 6 miles North of Carlisle on Stony Creek pike.

The farms will be sold in two tracts.

TRACT NO. 1—Contains 77 acres. The improvements thereon consist of her home of 8 rooms, 2 halls, 2 porches, a 5-bent tobacco barn, stock barn, cellar under house, hen house, smoke house, cistern on back porch. 2 acres in cultivation, the rest in grass.

This is good strong limestone land, located in a good neighborhood and has been cultivated but very little for several years and is now ready for that good burley tobacco crop that is so much in demand. This also is good strong land known as the Horse Hollow land and is ready for the plow, as it has been cultivated very little; with a good site for a home to be built.

VETERAN LOCAL MERCHANT RECALLS PALMIER DAYS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Prices Were Cheaper And Work Was Harder But Notwithstanding Progress Living Was More Enjoyable, M. T. Ruddell Reminisces

Fifty three yaters is a long time and many things happen within such a, span. Customs, the manner of life and people undergo a transition in more than half a century so radical that if all the changes happened at once it would be like stepping from one world into another. The last half-century in the history of mankind has been without question the most eventful and the most chingeful of any similar period the world has ever witnessed.

And it has been during such a remarkable length of time and three years more, that Matt T. Ruddell, veteran Carlisle merchant, has been in business in this county.

Only one other business man S. T. Barlow, widely-known operator of a general store at Headquarters, is business here at the time, long ago, when Mr. Ruddell as a youth of 19 years began his career with the produce enterprises with which he has been connected since.

If one could step back to this day in Carlisle fifty-three years ago when Mr. Ruddell first decided to follow the produce business, he would find a community greatly different from that of today.

Many old landmarks as they stood in that day of horse and mule-drawn vehicles, of unpaved roadways and of vastly differently attired people have given way to the march of events.

And it is a far cry from this day of gargantuan motor trucks to the mode of travel when Mr. Ruddell drove a spring wagon through the county to purchase produce. One regular trip was to Piqua, a round-trip of about 34 miles. Roads were far from present day standards in some localities almost non-existent and often the wagon would mire to the axle.

On one occasion, Mr. Ruddell said, a wagon was pulled in two in the attempt to release it from the deep mud with the aid of teams enlisted in the neighborhood.

As about as different as the mode of travel were prices of those days.

Hens brought 5 cents a pound. Mr. Ruddell says he has purchased many a hen for 15 cents. Roosters brought 2½ cents; turkeys 5 and 6 cents; eggs were as low once as 6½ cents. The merchant has seen the time when at 8 1-3 cents for eggs he thought he was doing well.

The veteran produce man said that on many occasions he would be asked by farmers what the price of turkeys would be. If hens were bringing 5 or 8 cents, turkeys would be about the same he would tell them, for the price of hogs was a good indication of the price of turkeys, he said.

In former days when great quantities of poultry were dressed here for shipment, work would begin about 2 o'clock in the morning. Procurers of produce by purchase in the country around about would leave at 5 o'clock in the morning and return at 8 or 9 at night, according to the degree of bad with mud, high water and other common obstacles.

In the days when B'rer Rabbit was a more popular delicacy for the tables of the people, thousands of them were shipped from the Blue Grass Produce Company. That long before had passed from the name of the Ruddell establishment.

There was a standing order for 2,000 weekly-shipped rabbits from the eastern house. Mr. Ruddell said that at one time he had employed a man who dressed 600 rabbits in a single day at the current price of 1 cent apiece and thereby made an unheard of wage for his work.

Compared with present ways of doing things and present prices for produce and labor the old times may seem strange to those who have not experienced them, Mr. Ruddell declared but added that even considering what he took in consideration the old days were best.

The produce merchant started business with $50. he had been given by his father and another $50. he borrowed from the late John Ross, of the Deposit Bank, secured by the late "Uncle Billy" Dinsmore.

"Two hundred dollars would buy a lot of chickens and turkeys then," he reminisced this week.

Ruddell paid 25 cents per score and ten, Mr. Ruddell works as hard as ever, is hale and satisfied with life because of the rich experiences he has had for so many years.

Bus Tragedy

A fatal school-bus accident near Cowan involving a Fleming county bus, regardless of its causes, should serve to emphasize the wisdom being issued here by County Superintendent W. P. Dampier that great care be exercised by our drivers in approaching school buses. All drivers must come to a full stop when they come upon a standing school bus engaged in taking or bringing children to or from schools. The law forbids the passing of buses at such a time and when the bus signals that it is about to stop.

WATCH OUT FOR THE CHILDREN.
